SLAYERS FACING MURDER TRIAL

TERROR HOLDS MURDERERS OF ROBERT FRANKS

(United Press.)

CHICAGO, May 31.—Cringing, fear-stricken, in their cell at an outlying police station, broken and haggard by the ordeal of the last twenty-four hours, Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, who admitted killing Robert Franks, 14 years old, a school boy, "just for the fun of it," tonight faced trial for first degree murder.

"They killed an innocent child 'for the fun of it'—they'll be brought to justice as rapidly as the wheels of the court can be turned," was the word that went out from the office of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

A coroner's inquest over the slain youth's body will be held Monday at 11 a. m. Charges of murder will be given to the county grand jury which convenes Tuesday. Indictments, Mr. Crowe said, should be returned by Wednesday. The trial will follow as soon as the law permits.

The two confessed murders, both 19 and both sons of Chicago's "first families," were torn by terror as they sat in their cells tonight. All the bravado, the defiance, the perverted sense of pride displayed when they described the murder to police were gone.

Pleads With Guards.

"Please, please tell me that this is all a horrible nightmare,' Leopold pleaded with jail guards as he wrung his hands and wailed.

"We did not know what we were doing—we were just plumb damned fools."

Loeb was too exhausted too speak. Soon after the confession he broke down and collapsed. He was taken to a hospital and revived: then forced to accompany Leopold and a party of officers on a trip over the scene of the murder, re-enacting the crime in all its revolting details. Tonight he was crumpled in a corner of the cell, limp and motionless, save for incessant wringing of his hands.

While attaches of the state's attorney's office were preparing the case against the two youths, attorneys for their wealthy parents were hastily setting up a defense, Benjamin Bachreach, counsel for Lopold's father, was temporarily heading the defense. No definite course of action in behalf of the two boys has yet been decided upon, Bacherach said.

U. S. AVIATORS RESUME FLIGHT AROUND GLOBE

PLANES ROAR OVER JAPANESE CAPITAL

ARRIVE AT KUSHINOTO.

OSAKA, Japan, June 1.—(Sunday.)—The three United States planes which left Kasumigaura, near Tokio, early today, landed safely at Kushimoto in the province of Waktyama, 200 miles south of here, according to a dispatch received here today.

Kushimoto is about half way to Nagasaki, the fliers' next overnight stop.

(United Press)

TOKIO, June 1.—(Sunday) America's attempt to circle the earth by air was resumed at 2:10 a. m., today when the three air cruisers hopped off from Kasumigaura flying field forty miles north of here, and winged their way over Tokio toward Nagasaki, 410 miles to the southwest.

Led by the plane flown by Lieut Lowell H. Smith, who assumed charge when Maj. Frederick Martin abandoned the flight because of repeated accidents, the three planes swooped over Tokio in V formation, roaring toward the China sea.

The planes landed at Kasumigaura a week ago after a dangerous flight across the north Pacific from Attu island via the Kuriles and northern Japan. Early yesterday repair work and the business of overhauling was pronounced completed and the planes ready.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The weather outlook for the week beginning Monday follows:

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Local showers beginning and again near end of week, otherwise generally fair; temperature near or slightly below normal.

BISHOP BROWN FOUND GUILTY BY A TRIBUNAL

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—"I will knock at every door in the land to get justice. I am not through. This will be the last heresy trial."

TWO BANKERS, EX-TREASURER SEEK FREEDOM

SIMMONS APPLICATION FOR COMMUTATION UP

Arlow D. Sutter, Convicted in Lancaster County of Killing Wife, Asks That 10-Year Sentence Be Shortened.

Two bankers and a former county treasurer, serving terms in the Nebraska penitentiary, are included among the parole applicants whom the state board of pardons will hear at its monthly meeting June 10. The board is also to consider the case of Walter R. Simmons on that date and decide whether or not his execution shall take place then or another hearing given him a month later.

Herbert H. Barge, serving 1 to 10 years for embezzling funds of the Farmers' State bank of Hoskins, and Math J. Ramaekers, under sentence of 1 to 5 years for falsifying the books of his bank at Raeville in order to deceive a state examiner, are the bankers asking to be released. Both pleaded guilty. Barge was denied a parole by the former pardon board in December, 1922, and by the present board in May last year. Ramaekers has had an application on file for about two years, but has not been heard up to this time.

The former county official that wants out is Finis L. Anderson, who pleaded guilty in Nance county to embezzlement of public funds entrusted to his possession. He was given 1 to 5 years, of which he has just completed the first year. His shortage of about $30,000 has been made good, with interest, by himself.

CALIFORNIANS IN FAVOR OF BRYAN

College Club Circularizing the Country On Behalf Of Governor.

The Davis Agricultural Farm School Byran club, located at Davis, Cal, has had printed and is circulating throughout the country a letter advocating the nomination of Governor Charles W. Bryan as the democratic candidate for the presidency. The club, of which James Monroe Bragg is president, says that Bryan can win if he is nominated, and the south in particular is urged to get back of him and a platform containing a plank favoring the development of the country's water power and the electrification of the south. The letter in full follows:

"Governor Charles W. Bryan can win the election if he can get the nomination.

"Such a man is much stronger for democrats than a man who can win the nomination but will without any question lose the election. Gov. Bryan is the logical dark horse. Consider the power of this new man, fulfilling the requirements of the country's aroused conscience.

"Gov. Bryan and a southern electrification program plank: We urge Bryan on a systematized Southern electrification plank. The Southern support of the democratic party justifies the people of the south demanding recognition by a strong plank seeking electrical economic development—a great conservation measure, to bless the south, and, in turn, the whole United States.

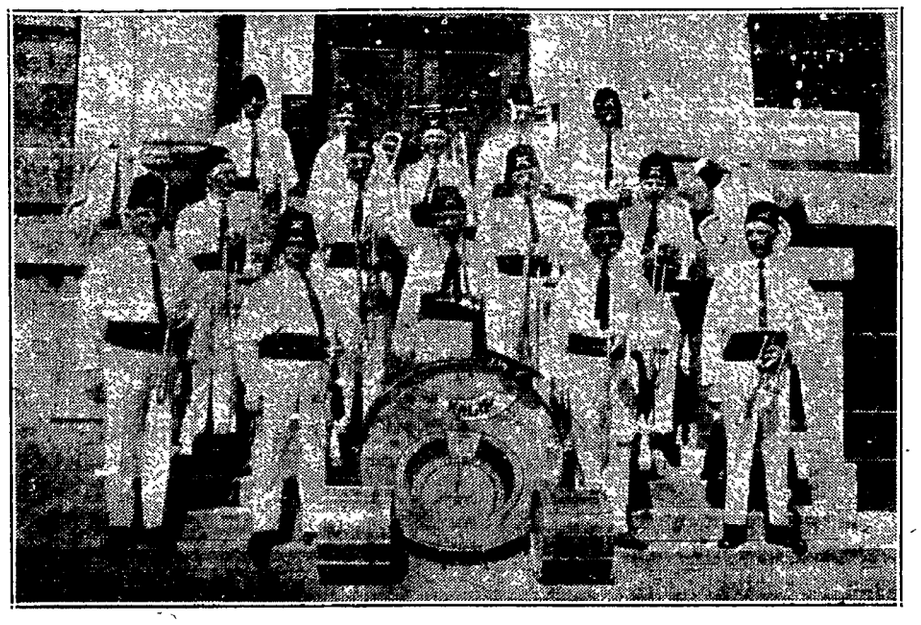

"But furthermore — we western progressive democrats urge immediate congressional co-operation of progressives of all parties for developing Muscle Shoals for and by the people. Southland, our Southland Plan and make secure your economic future! Insure your development for the greatest moral good by avoiding monopoly, and concentration of foreign populations as in the steam-monopoly controled north. Avoid such festering, centralized, stagnant population swills as presented by New York City, with its resulting personal and social immorality and political degradation. Southland! Cooperate with the progresives now to maintain in the coming new south all the beauty and charm of the old. Southern democrats, here is an opportunity Co-operate with the open, golden west.

FUND OVER-SUBSCRIBED.

MANILA June1.—(Sunday) —Going over with a margin over $50,000 the $250,000 independence fund campaign ended today with a total contribution of $300,000, it was revealed today. Most of the money is declared to have been contributed by laborers, clerks and government employes. The largest individual contribution was said to have been only $3,000

Shrine Trombone Band Parades Here Sunday

In connection with the Imperial Council session of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at Kansas City the first week in June, Lincoln will be afforded the opportunity to hear and see the Kalif Temple trombone band and patrol from Sheridan, Wyo., as the delegation from that city will spend the afternoon of Sunday, June 1 here.

The musical organization is probably the most novel one in Shrinedom, as it is made up entirely of slide trombones and is the only one of its kind in the United States. The tonal quality of this instrument is so effective for parades, that this little band from a small western city promises to be the sensation of the coming convention. While the band is under the leadership of Mark Hayward, a professional musician, it was conceived by the present potentate of Kalif temple, Theodore G. Diers, a former Nebraskan. Potentate Diers was born in Seward and received his early musical training at the old Nebraska Conservatory of Music. He later studied under such well known teachers as Rudolph Ganz, Herman Devries and Oscar Saenger, and was a professional actor with James K. Hackettt and other stars for several years. He plays the trombone tuba in the band and will be with the Sheridan delegation.

The captain of the Kalif Patrol is also well known in Lincoln, for this splendid drill team is under the direction of Robert E MacFarlane, a graduate of Lincoln high school and a former student of the University of Nebraska. Noble Bob served in the marines during the world war and has been the inspiration of this patrol since beginning.

The Kalif temple delegation will arrive in Lincoln Sunday on Burlington train 42 and will parade from the station immediately. Invitations have been extended from Sesostris temple and arrangements have been made for extensive entertainment

Baptists Favor World Court Of League Nations

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 31—In a resolution adopted here tonight the Northern Baptist convention went on record endorsing the world court as proposed by the late President Harding. Copies of the resolution were sent to Secretary of State Hughes, the president of the senate and the chairman of the foreign relations committee.

CLASS RATINGS GIVEN APPROVAL

A formal order proving western freight classification No. 38, proposed by the railroads, so far as it applies to the thirteen recognized jobbing points in Nebraska, was issued Saturday by the state railway commission to become effective on one day's notice. This will put all class ratings from the jobbing points to local stations in Nebraska on the same basis as the interstate tariffs provide.

The question of applying the new classification, either in its proposed form or modified to meet possible objections of shippers, as between all other points in Nebraska will be decided later. Shippers at non-jobbing points have been given until June 15 to present objections, and a conference between shippers and railroad men will be held at a subsequent date in the hope of threshing out the differences and reaching a general agreement.

Ultimately, the commission and the carriers hope, the same classification will govern all shipments in this territory, both state and interstate.

The thirteen jobbing points where the tariff changes will take place immediately are Lincoln, Omaha, Fremont, Grand Island, Hastings, Norfolk, Beatrice, St. Paul, Nebraska City, Columbus, Kearney, Fairbury and Plattsmouth.

Six Girls Hurt; Many Missing In Coast Fire

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 1.—(Sunday 1 a. m.)—Six inmates of the Hope Development school for feeble minded girls at Playa Del Rey, near Venice, were injured and nineteen were reported missing when fire of unknown origin destroyed the building tonight.

Latest reports from the Venice police department do not indicate whether the missing young women were trapped by the flames or if some of them wandered away in the darkness in night attire.

Sixty girls were residents in the building.

M'NARY BILL DEFEAT LOOMS NEXT TUESDAY

Rejection Of Farm Relief Measure In House Predicted When Advocates Of Bill Fail To Secure Final Vote Saturday Night.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY IS ORDERED

Opponents Of Measure, Including The Administration Forces, Confident of Sufficient Strength To Reject When Action Comes.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — Defeat of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in the house next week was forecast tonight when friends of the measure failed in efforts to hold the house in session for a final vot.

By a vote of 180 to 136, the house voted at 7:30 p. m., to adjourn until Monday. A vote will not be possible before Tuesday when it is expected that opponents of the bill, including administration forces, will have enough strength to defeat it.

Bockers Take Poll.

Polls of the house, made by friends of the McNary-Haugen bill, have placed the number of its supporters at 174 or forty fewer than a majority. With light attendance of house membership they realized defeat, but clung obstinately to the measure.

When Republican Leader Longworth sought to secure consent to a vote on the bill next Monday or Tuesday he was shouted down. Congressman Rubey, democrat, Missouri, asserted the purpose of delaying the vote to defeat the bill.

"Next week there will be fifty or sixty members here who are not here today and they are opposed to this bill and will vote against it," he said.

Congressman Tincher made Longworth admit the president had not notified him of opposition to the McNary-Haugen and then challenged any other member to say the president had condemned the legislation. His challenge was unaccepted.

Japanese Plan Dash To U. S.

TOKIO, May 31.—Following a conference today of shipping men, it was announced that freighters will be pressed into service in transporting Japanese from their native land to the United States before July 1 to beat the new United States immigration which goes into effect on that date.

More than 3,000 Japanese are now at Yokohama and Osaka awaiting passage on America-bound ships. All regular passenger lines report their ships are over booked.

NOTE OUTLINES OBJECTIONS TO EXCLUSION ACT

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, May 31. — The Japanese government solemnly protested today to the United States against the new oriental exclusion policy adopted by congress and approved by President Coolidge.

The protest was presented to Secretary of State Hughes by Masanao Hanihara, the Japanese ambassador, acting under instructions from the Tokio foreign office.

"It is not denied," he said, "that it lies within the inherent sovereign power of each state to limit and control immigration to its own domains, but when, in the exercise of such right, an evident injustice is done to a foreign nation in disregard of its proper self respect, of international understandings and of ordinary rules of comity, the question necessarily assumes an aspect which justifies diplomatic discussion and adjustment."

Hanihara declared that the provisions of the new immigration law are "clearly indicative of discrimination against Japanese," and have made it possible for Japan to longer observe the so-called "gentlemen's agreement," abrogated by congress in adopting the exclusion policy.

Text of Protest Note.

The text of the Hanihara note was made public tonight by the state department without comment. It follows in part:

"It is perhaps needless to state that international discriminations in any form and on any subject, even if based on purely economic reasons, are opposed to the principles of justice and fairness upon which the friendly intercourse between nations must, in its final analysis, depend. To these very principles, the doctrine of equal opportunity now widely recognized, the United States owes its being. Still more unwelcome are discriminations based on race The immigration act of 1924, considered in the light of the Supreme court's interpretation of the naturalization laws, clearly establishes the rule that the admissibility of aliens to the United States rest not upon individual merits or qualifications, but upon the division of race to which applicants belong. In particular, it appears that such racial distinction in the act is directed essentially against Japanese.

Point to Japanese History.

"It has been repeatedly asserted in defense of these discriminatory measures in the United States that persons of the Japanese race are not assimilable to American life and ideals. It will, however, be observed, in the first place, that few immigrants of a foreign stock may well be expected to assimilate themselves to their new surroundings within a single generation. The history of Japanese immigration to the United States in any appreciable number dated but from the last few years of the nineteenth century. The period of time is too short to permit of any conclusive judgment being passed upon the racial adaptabilities of immigrants in the matter of assimilation, as compared with alien settlers of the races classed as eligible to American citizenship.

"It should further be remarked that the proceeds of asimilation can thrive only in a genial atmosphere of just and equitable treatment. Its natural growth is bound to be hampered under such a pressure of invidious discriminations as that to which Japanese residents in some states of the American union have been subjected, at law and in practice, for nearly twenty years. It seems hardly fair to complain of the failure of foreign elements to merge in a community while the community chooses to keep them apart from the rest of its membership. For these

Cable To Manila Is Reported Severed

MANILA, June 1.—The cable connecting Corregidore, United States army post in Manila bay, was cut several times some time Saturday, presumably by native or Japanese fishermen, it was revealed today.

Authorities publicly state it is believed the cable was cut to secure the heavy copper wire it contained to be used in anchoring boats or strengthening fish traps.

However, shipping men declare it would have been almost impossible for fishermen to have cut the wire because of its extreme weight and the difficulty in raising and cutting it.

Entire State Is Visited By Light Drizzling Rains

Practically the entire state was visited Saturday by light drizzling rains, according to the Burlington reports Saturday night. These rains extended from McCook east to the Missouri river, and in the eastern parts of the state from the extreme northern part of the state to the Kansas line. The only places which received no moisture were in the southwestern part.

Although the rains fell in drizzling showers these continued throughout the entire day in most localities. Over the Lincoln, Omaha and Wymore divisions the amount of precipitation averaged about the same.

BACKING JAPANESE

MANILA, June 1.—(Sunday)—Filipino sentiment is strongly in favor of the Japanese stand in the exclusion controversy with the United States. This was reflected today editorially in almost every native newspaper.

MINNESOTA NOT BACKING M'ADOO

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 31.—Minnesota democrats are overwhelmingly against William G. McAdoo for president.

This was demonstrated at every turn in the state convention here today. Delegates from Duluth and St. Louis counties were the only ones who put up a fight for McAdoo.

Of the twenty-four delegates elected to the democratic national convention in New York, only two are instructed to vote for McAdoo. Likewise only two delegates were instructed to vote for Gov. Al Smith of New York, but the uninstructed twenty are nearly all for the Tammany favorite.

From the start of the convention it was apparent the wets, favoring Governor Smith, were in full control.

Prisoner Threatens Civil Action When He Is Liberated, In "Sassy" Letter Demanding Parole Hearing

When he gets out of the penitentiary—if he gets out—Edward F. McPherson says he is going to sue somebody for something or other, but he doesn't say whom or what. He gives fair warning, in a letter written to the state pardon board that such is his intention.

And that isn't all. Goodness knows, it isn't. For McPherson purposes to enter the literary profession when he bids boodbye to the gray walls of prison. He may decide to "write up" the institution and tell the world what he thinks of it. He has been trying his hand at the author business during his spare time in the last two or three years, but hasn't yet succeeded in breaking in, as all the short stories he sent to magazines and periodicals were returned, according to Warden Fenton

McPherson is one of the most prolific letter writers who ever served time at Lancaster. He has been addressing "sassy" epistles to State Probation Officer Harmon more or less regularly for a year past, demanding a hearing before the pardon board. At last his idea has brought results and he is to be given a hearing before that body on June 10 with other applicants for parole.

Prospects are not bright for his release, mainly because he has been convicted of several previous crimes and has done time in other penitentiaries, twice at Jefferson City, Mo., and once at Buena Vista, Colo The Nebraska law does not permit the pardon board to parole any prisoners other than first offenders.

Twice Paroled Under Old Law.

Before the states were amended to this effect, McPherson obtained a parole on two different occasions. He was convicted of breaking and entering a banker's home at Omaha back in 1911, and would have completed his term of 1 to 10 years long ago, had he not escaped from parole in 1913 and remained away more than eight years On a previous occasion, he had been returned from parole just a week after being set at liberty.

It was during this eight-year interval that he spent a couple of terms in the Missouri prison at Jefferson City. His Colorado term was served before his conviction in Nebraska. At Buena Vista he went under the nom de plume of Elmer McVey. He has been back in the penitentiary here since November 1921.

McPherson asserts that he was finally released from the Nebraska institution in 1913 and is therefore illegally held in confinement now, but the prison records have him down as escaping from parole at that time. He was arrested at Kansas City soon afterward, but the Nebraska authorities did not send for him at that time, preferring to let Missouri deal with him.

One of the questions on the parole application blank reads: "What do you have the greatest dislike for?" To this query McPherson replied: "Restriction of man's natural liberty."

Doesn't Care What Board Does.

"I do not care what the action of the board may be, but I do want a chance to be heard. I want the board to be cognizant of the facts in the case, for I mean to bring civil action as soon as I am released and do not want any of the authorities to say they did not know the facts."

Writing at another time, McPherson told Probation Officer Harmon: "I want to go to South America and start anew."

"I have taken up writing as an avocation and I am certain that I can make both wealth and a name in the world that neither I nor my folks need be ashamed of."

McPherson declares his wife is a trained nurse. He does not know her present address. He says he has a son 5 years old.

LAFOLLETTE BACK TO LEAD FORCES

To Fight Adjournment June 7 Unless Progressive Program Acted Upon.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — Senator Robert M. LaFollette, looking a trifle older and his eyes sunken a little deeper, came back to congres today and immediately the halting progressive machine gained mometum.

LaFollette returned to thwart the plans of leaders to adjourn a week from tonight without acting upon the progressive legislative program.

His first move was to bring pressure upon the senate interstate commerce committee and obtain a favorable report on the Howell-Barkley bill abolishing the railroad labor board.

This measure is one of the chief points in the program of progressives for revisionary railroad legislation, but it has been sleeping in commit-

Southland, our Southland Plan and make secure your economic future! Insure your development for the greatest moral good by avoiding monopoly, and concentration of foreign populations as in the steam-monopoly controled north. Avoid such festering, centralized, stagnant population swills as presented by New York City, with its resulting personal and social immorality and political degradation. Southland! Cooperate with the progresives now to maintain in the coming new south all the beauty and charm of the old. Southern democrats, here is an opportunity. Co-operate with the open, golden west.

FUND OVER-SUBSCRIBED.

MANILA, Junel.—(Sunday) —Going over with a margin over $50,000 the $250,000 independence fund campaign ended today with a total contribution of $300,000, it was revealed today. Most of the money is declared to have been contributed by laborers, clerks and government employes. The largest individual contribution was said to have been only $3,000

Shrine Trombone Band Parades Here Sunday

In connection with the Imperial Council session of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at Kansas City the first week in June, Lincoln will be afforded the opportunity to hear and see the Kalif Temple trombone band and patrol from Sheridan, Wyo., as the delegation from that city will spend the afternoon of Sunday, June 1 here.

The musical organization is probably the most novel one in Shrinedom, as it is made up entirely of slide trombones and is the only one of its kind in the United States. The tonal quality of this instrument is so effective for parades, that this little band from a small western city promises to be the sensation of the coming convention. While the band is under the leadership of Mark Hayward, a professional musician, it was conceived by the present potentate of Kalif temple, Theodore C. Diers, a former Nebraskan. Potentate Diers was born in Seward and received his early musical training at the old Nebraska Conservatory of Music. He later studied under such well known teachers as Rudolph Ganz, Herman Devries and Oscar Saenger, and was a professional actor with James K. Hackettt and other stars for several years. He plays the trombone tuba in the band and will be with the Sheridan delegation.

The captain of the Kalif Patrol is also well known in Lincoln, for this splendid drill team is under the direction of Robert E. MacFarlane, a graduate of Lincoln high school and a former student of the University of Nebraska. Noble Bob served in the marines during the world war and has been the inspiration of this patrol since beginning.

The Kalif temple delegation will arrive in Lincoln Sunday on Burlington train 42 and will parade from the station immediately. Invitations have been extended from Sesostris temple and arrangements have been made for extensive entertainment.

Baptists Favor World Court Of League Nations

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 31.—In a resolution adopted here tonight the Northern Baptist convention went on record endorsing the world court as proposed by the late President Harding. Copies ofthe resolution were sent to Secretary of State Hughes, the president of the senate and the chairman of the foreign relations committee.

CLASS RATINGS GIVEN APPROVAL

A formal order proving western freight classification No. 53, proposed by the railroads, so far as it applies to the thirteen recognized jobbing points in Nebraska, was issued Saturday by the state railway commission to become effective on one day's notice. This will put all class ratings from the jobbing points to local stations in Nebraska on the same basis as the interstate tariffs provide.

The question of applying the new classification, either in its proposed form or modified to meet possible objections of shippers, as between all other points in Nebraska will be decided later. Shippers at non-jobbing points have been given until June 15 to present objections, and a conference between shippers and railroad men will be held at a subsequent date in the hope of threshing out the differences and reaching a general agreement.

Ultimately, the commission and the carriers hope, the same classification will govern all shipments in this territory, both state and interstate.

The thirteen jobbing points where the tariff changes will take place immediately are Lincoln, Omaha, Fremont, Grand Island, Hastings, Norfolk, Beatrice, St. Paul, Nebraska City, Columbus, Kearney, Fairbury and Plattsmouth.

Six Girls Hurt; Many Missing In Coast Fire

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 1.—(Sunday 1 a. m.)—Six inmates of the Hope Development school for feeble minded girls at Playa Del Rey, near Venice, were injured and nineteen were reported missing when fire of unknown origin destroyed the building tonight.

Latest reports from the Venice police department do not indicate whether the missing young women were trapped by the 6flames or if some of them wandered away in the darkness in night attire.

Sixty girls were residents in the building.

M'NARY BILL DEFEAT LOOMS NEXT TUESDAY

Rejection Of Farm Relief Measure In House Predicted When Advocates Of Bill Fail To Secure Final Vote Saturday Night.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY IS ORDERED

Opponents Of Measure, Including The Administration Forces, Confident of Sufficient Strength To Reject When Action Comes.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — Defeat of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill in the house next week was forecast tonight when friends of the measure failed in efforts to hold the house in session for a final vot.

By a vote of 180 to 136, the house voted at 7:30 p. m., to adjourn until Monday. A vote will not be possible before Tuesday when it is expected that opponents of the bill, including administration forces, will have enough strength to defeat it.

Bockers Take Poll.

Polls of the house, made by friends of the McNary-Haugen bill, have placed the number of its supporters at 174 or forty fewer than a majority. With light attendance of house membership they realized defeat, but clung obstinately to the measure.

When Republican Leader Longworth sought to secure consent to a vote on the bill next Monday or Tuesday he was shouted down. Congressman Rubey, democrat, Missouri, asserted the purpose of delaying the vote to defeat the bill.

"Next week there will be fifty or sixty members here who are not here today and they are opposed to this bill and will vote against it," he said.

Congressman Tincher made Longworth admit the president had not notified him of opposition to the McNary-Haugen and then challenged any other member to say the president had condemned the legislation. His challenge was unaccepted.

Japanese Plan Dash To U. S.

TOKIO, May 31.—Following a conference today of shipping men, it was announced that freighters will be pressed into service in transporting Japanese from their native land to the United States before July 1 to beat the new United States immigration which goes into effect on that date.

More than 3,000 Japanese are now at Yokohama and Osaka awaiting passage on America-bound ships. All regular passenger lines report their ships are over booked.

Entire State Is Visited By Light Drizzling Rains

Practically the entire state was visited Saturday by light drizzling rains, according to the Burlington reports Saturday night. These rains extended from McCook east to the Missouri river, and in the eastern parts of the state from the extreme northern part of the state to the Kansas line. The only places which received no moisture were in the southwestern part.

Although the rains fell in drizzling showers these continued throughout the entire day in most localities. Over the Lincoln, Omaha and Wymore divisions the amount of precipitation averaged about the same.

BACKING JAPANESE

MANILA, June 1.—(Sunday)—Filipino sentiment is strongly in favor of the Japanese stand in the exclusion controversy with the United States. This was reflected today editorially in almost every native newspaper.

NOTE OUTLINES OBJECTIONS TO EXCLUSION ACT

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, May 31. — The Japanese government solemnly protested today to the United States against the new oriental exclusion policy adopted by congress and approved by President Coolidge.

The protest was presented to Secretary of State Hughes by Masanao Hanihara, the Japanese ambassador, acting under instructions from the Tokio foreign office.

"It is not denied," he said, "that it lies within the inherent sovereign power of each state to limit and control immigration to its own domains, but when, in the exercise of such right, an evident injustice is done to a foreign nation in disregard of its proper self respect, of international understandings and of ordinary rules of comity, the question necessarily assumes an aspect which justifies diplomatic discussion and adjustment."

Hanihara declared that the provisions of the new immigration law are "clearly indicative of discrimination against Japanese," and have made it possible for Japan to longer observe the so-called "gentlemen's agreement," abrogated by congress in adopting the exclusion policy.

Text of Protest Note.

The text of the Hanihara note was made public tonight by the state department without comment. It follows in part:

"It is perhaps needless to state that international discriminations in any form and on any subject, even if based on purely economic reasons, are opposed to the principles of justice and fairness upon which the friendly intercourse between nations must, in its final analysis, depend. To these very principles, the doctrine of equal opportunity now widely recognized, the United States owes its being. Still more unwelcome are discriminations based on race. The immigration act of 1924, considered in the light of the Supreme court's interpretation of the naturalization laws, clearly establishes the rule that the admissibility of aliens to the United States rest not upon individual merits or qualifications, but upon the division of race to which applicants belong. In particular, it appears that such racial distinction in the act is directed essentially against Japanese.

Point to Japanese History.

"It has been repeatedly asserted in defense of these discriminatory measures in the United States that persons of the Japanese race are not assimilable to American life and ideals. It will, however, be observed, in the first place, that few immigrants of a foreign stock may well be expected to assimilate themselves to their new surroundings within a single generation. The history of Japanese immigration to the United States in any appreciable number dated but from the last few years of the nineteenth century. The period of time is too short to permit of any conclusive judgment being passed upon the racial adaptabilities of immigrants in the matter of assimilation, as compared with alien settlers of the races classed as eligible to American citizenship.

"It should further be remarked that the proceeds of asimilation can thrive only in a genial atmosphere of just and equitable treatment. Its natural growth is bound to be hampered under such a pressure of invidious discriminations as that to which Japanese residents in some states of the American union have been subjected, at law and in practice, for nearly twenty years. It seems hardly fair to complain of the failure of foreign elements to merge in a community while the community chooses to keep them apart from the rest of its membership. For these

Cable To Manila Is Reported Severed

MANILA, June 1.—The cable connecting Corregidore, United States army post in Manila bay, was cut several times some time Saturday, presumably by native or Japanese fishermen, it was revealed today.

Authorities publicly state it is believed the cable was cut to secure the heavy copper wire it contained to be used in anchoring boats or strengthening fish traps.

However, shipping men declare it would have been almost impossible for fishermen to have cut the wire because of its extreme weight and the difficulty in raising and cutting it.

MINNESOTA NOT BACKING M'ADOO

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 31.—Minnesota democrats are overwhelmingly against William G. McAdoo for president.

This was demonstrated at every turn in the state convention here today. Delegates from Duluth and St. Louis counties were the only ones who put up a fight for McAdoo.

Of the twenty-four delegates elected to the democratic national convention in New York, only two are instructed to vote for McAdoo. Likewise only two delegates were instructed to vote for Gov. Al Smith of New York, but the uninstructed twenty are nearly all for the Tammany favorite.

From the start of the convention it was apparent the wets, favoring Governor Smith, were in full control.

Prisoner Threatens Civil Action When He Is Liberated, In "Sassy" Letter Demanding Parole Hearing

When he gets out of the penitentiary—if he gets out—Edward F. McPherson says he is going to sue somebody for something or other, but he doesn't say whom or what. He gives fair warning, in a letter written to the state pardon board that such is his intention.

And that isn't all. Goodness knows, it isn't. For McPherson purposes to enter the literary profession when he bids boodbye to the gray walls of prison. He may decide to "write up" the institution and tell the world what he thinks of it. He has been trying his hand at the author business during his spare time in the last two or three years, but hasn't yet succeeded in breaking in, as all the short stories he sent to magazines and periodicals were returned, according to Warden Fenton.

McPherson is one of the most prolific letter writers who ever served time at Lancaster. He has been addressing "sassy" epistles to State Probation Officer Harmon more or less regularly for a year past, demanding a hearing before the pardon board. At last his idea has brought results and he is to be given a hearing before that body on June 10 with other applicants for parole.

Prospects are not bright for his release, mainly because he has been convicted of several previous crimes and has done time in other penitentiaries, twice at Jefferson City, Mo., and once at Buena Vista, Colo. The Nebraska law does not permit the pardon board to parole any prisoners other than first offenders.

Twice Paroled Under Old Law.

Before the states were amended to this effect, McPherson obtained a parole on two different occasions. He was convicted of breaking and entering a banker's home at Omaha back in 1911, and would have completed his term of 1 to 10 years long ago, had he not escaped from parole in 1913 and remained away more than eight years. On a previous occasion, he had been returned from parole just a week after being set at liberty.

It was during this eight-year interval that he spent a couple of terms in the Missouri prison at Jefferson City. His Colorado term was served before his conviction in Nebraska. At Buena Vista he went under the non de plume of Elmer McVey. He has been back in the penitentiary here since November 1921.

McPherson asserts that he was finally released from the Nebraska institution in 1913 and is therefore illegally held in confinement now, but the prison records have him down as escaping from parole at that time. He was arrested at Kansas City soon afterward, but the Nebraska authorities did not send for him at that time, preferring to let Missouri deal with him.

One of the questions on the parole application blank reads: "What do you have the greatest dislike for?"

Doesn't Care What Board Does.

"I do not care what the action of the board may be, but I do want a chance to be heard. I want the board to be cognizant of the facts in the case, for I mean to bring civil action as soon as I am released and do not want any of the authorities to say they did not know the facts."

Writing at another time, McPherson told Probation Officer Harmon: "I want to go to South America and start anew."

"I have taken up writing as an avocation and I am certain that I can make both wealth and a name in the world that neither I nor my folks need be ashamed of."

McPherson declares his wife is a trained nurse. He does not know her present address. He says he has a son 5 years old.

LAFOLLETTE BACK TO LEAD FORCES

To Fight Adjournment June 7 Unless Progressive Program Acted Upon.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — Senator Robert M. LaFollette, looking a trifle older and his eyes sufiken a little deeper, came back to congres today and immediately the halting progressive machine gained mometum.

LaFollette returned to thwart the plans of leaders to adjourn a week from tonight without acting upon the progressive legislative program.

His first move was to bring pressure upon the senate interstate commerce committee and obtain a favorable report on the Howell-Barkley bill abolishing the railroad labor board.

NEBRASKA PEOPLE HONOR THE DEAD

Memorial Services Held In Many Cities Throughout The State.

(Special to The Star.)

GENEVA, Neb., May 31.—Memorial day exercises were held here Friday when the graves of ninety-six veterans of the Civil war, sevon of the Spanish American and four of the World war were decorated with flowers. The main program was held at the city auditorium where Rev. David Tudor made an address in which the name of Lincoln was eulogized, the veterans lauded for preserving the American republic and the conviction expressed that the people of the world will not permit settlement of disputes in the future by bringing into the carnage the flower of the world's manhood. There will be a demand for some sort of tribunal whether league of nations, world court or some other organization where differences may be settled in a judicial manner.

At the conclusion of the program at the auditorium the line of march to the cemetery was taken up headed by the Community band. The exercises at the cemetery were conducted by members of the American Legion and at the conclusion taps were sounded on the bugle by Paul Curtiss, leader of the band.

Only Five Veterans.

WYMORE, Neb., May 31.—Anderson post No. 25, American Legion conducted memorial services here Friday afternoon at Furnas park. The parade to the park was headed by the Wymore band in full uniform, the American Legion and the five remaining Civil war veterans in automobiles. The entire business section was decorated with flags planted at the curb in front of each business house.

Post Commander L. D. Densmore, who is also state representative from this district, had charge of the exercises at the park. Captain C. B. Ellis delivered the memorial address and Major F. E. Crawford pronounced the benediction. At the cemetery the graves of soldiers were decorated and members of Anderson post fired a military salute.

(Special to The Star.)

McCOOK, Neb., May 31 — The memorial day address at McCook was delivered by L. A. Kiplinger, who emphasized the importance of the Woodrow Wilson world vision. He said that the unbiased thought of the world is conducing its wisdom and asked the people to pay less attention to religious formula and decide economic problems upon their merits alone: Music was furnished by the High School band and a male quartet. The exercises took place at the Temple theatre, the Grand Army and the American Legion co-operating.

Exercises at Madison.

(Special to The Star.)

MADISON, Neb., May 31.—Decoration day was observed here with the usual solemnities, the American Legion in charge. Not only the busines streets were lined with flags but the residences of the city as well. Thousands of people early in the day visited Crownhill and St. Leonard's cemeteries and they presented the appearance of flower gardens.

At 2 o'clock nine veterans of the Civil war, the few remaining of the Woman Relief corps, a company of Spanish American veterans, and a great number of World war veterans, met at the Legion hall and were escorted to the Union Opera House, J. R. Kinder, commander of American Legion post, presiding. Judge F. L. Putney delivered the address.

PLATTSMOUTH TO OWN UTILITIES

Will Create Sinking Fund With Which to Make Purchases.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., May 31.—City council has passed an ordinance creating a sinking fund to be used exclusively in acquiring or constructing utilities. Annual levies will be made for this fund, which the ordinance provides shall be invested in Cass county farm mortgages or municipal bonds, until such time as it may be feasible to take the municipal ownership step. Under the plan proposed, the levy will be small when other city taxes run high, while in other years when general city taxes are considerably reduced the number of mills levied for this fund will be higher, the annual sum raised varying from $1,000 minimum to several times that amount.

The municipal ownership sinking fund ordinance was introduced by Mayor John Sattler, who, in former incumbency in this office several years ago, first proposed as assessment for a sinking fund to pay off bonded indebtedness, under which plan the city's outstanding bonds have been reduced from $114,000 to $65,000. Mr. Sattler is a proponent of municipal ownership and was elected to office this year on a platform pledged to securing it in the case of at least a part of the privately owned utilities now serving Plattsmouth.

Remove Safety Pin From Babe's Throat

(Special to The Star)

NEWCASTLE, Neb., May 31.—The infant son of Mr and Mrs. Albert Pfister of this place, who swallowed a medium sized safety pin a few days ago, returned home from the hospital with Mrs. Pfister, having been saved from an operation by a severe attack of vomiting. An examination, after the child had been rushed to the hospital, showed that the pin had changed positions so that it could be reached with an instrument, inserted from the mouth.

The safety pin, which was open when the child swallowed it, lodged in the esophagus about half way between the throat and the stomach in such a way that an operation would have been necessary, if the pin had not changed its position.

WEDDING SECRET NEAR TWO YEARS

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., May 31.—Miss Ruth Thoms, for that is the name by which she has been known for the past two years, surprised a large party of her friends Friday at an announcement party at which she was supposedly to announce her engagement to Joe Wood, but she announced the fact that she had been married to him for two years.

The announcement party followed a large number of parties which had been given to her by her other friends preparatory to her supposed wedding. She had been showered repeatedly and had been the guest and toast at many a fine party, receiving all of these courtesies with smiling face as the future bride of Joe Wood, when in reality she had been his wife since July, 1922.

Mr. Wood is a senior at the state university, having received his degree in agricultural engineering with the ciss of 1924. The young people were schoolmtes in the Aurora high school and while in Montana two years ago entered into the contract of marriage and were successful in keeping it quiet for two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood will make their home in California.

MAKE PLANS TO HANDLE GASOLINE

Edgren Prepares Specification For Spur to County's Storage Yard.

Shaw Protests Board's Action In Entering Oil Business.

Specifications for a spur track from the railroads yards to the county's storage yard at Second and P streets have been prepared by County Engineer A. H. Edgren and are now in the hands of Burlington officials. The track will be used to switch cars of gasoline for the county's new filing stations to storage tanks which will be placed in the yard.

Many oil men, who claimed to have had long experience in the filling station busines, have called upon the county commissioners with a view of getting the job of managing the stations. No one has been hired and the commissioners will not consider this matter until the plans have been more definitely arranged.

O. J. Shaw, of the Shaw Oil Co., which owns several stations in Lincoln, called on Commissioner Bennett to protest the county's action in entering the business.

Several offers to supply gas at the prevailing rates to the commissioners have been made and no difficulty is expected in arranging for a source of supply.

Strate Addresses Humboldt People

(Special to The Star.)

HUMBOLDT, Neb., May 31—The Decoration day program here was in charge of the local post of American Legion. The day was an ideal one and the exercises were held in the city park at ten o'clock in the morning, Bruce Dorland, who has been retired from the navy, presided. The address of the day was delivered by Rev. W. H. E. Strate, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, who ably presented the more important lessons taught by Decoration or Memorial day. Reid's orchestra, a duet by Miss Fay Boss and M. M. Ramey and the Emmanuel quartet supplied an appropriate musical program. Following the park exercises, the usual decoration exercises took place at the cemetery. Rev. Bothwell of the Methodist church, spoke and a squad in khaki fired the salute. The attendance throughout was the largest in recent years.

GUGENHEIM'S

ESTABLISHED 1869

A Clothing Establishment of This Day and Age

"I wonder why they are tearing down that building? Wonder what's going up there?"

The Gugenheim Clothing Folk are building there; same folk who now have a clothing house directly west of the dismantled building. Gugenheim's will, of course, stay where they are at until the new buillding is complete —say three months or so.

Everything's planned; everything's measured and being made; other stores in other cities have been studied; strictly Lincoln made ideas will be incorporated also. It's going to be one of those snappy, inviting clothing houses. You are going to form YOUR idea of clothing styles, grades and prices at the new store. You'll think of it when you think of clothing.

Come. Watch with us. We are just as anxious about it as you.

McCOOK, Neb., May 31.— The memorial day address at McCook was delivered by L. A. Kiplinger, who emphasized the importance of the Woodrow Wilson world vision. He said that the unbiased thought of the world is conducing its wisdom and asked the people to pay less attention to religious formula and decide economic problems upon their merits alone. Music was furnished by the High School band and a male quartet. The exercises took place at the Temple theatre, the Grand Army and the American Legion co-operating.

Exercises at Madison.

(Special to The Star.)

MADISON, Neb., May 31.—Decoration day was observed here with the usual solemnities, the American Legion in charge. Not only the busines streets were lined with flags but the residences of the city as well. Thousands of people early in the day visited Crownhill and St. Leonard's cemeteries and they presented the appearance of flower gardens.

At 2 o'clock nine veterans of the Civil war, the few remaining of the Woman Relief corps, a company of Spanish American veterans, and a great number of World war veterans, met at the Legion hall and were escorted to the Union Opera House, J. R. Kinder, commander of American Legion post, presiding. Judge F. L. Putney delivered the address.

PLATTSMOUTH TO OWN UTILITIES

Will Create Sinking Fund With Which to Make Purchases.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., May 31.—City council has passed an ordinance creating a sinking fund to be used exclusively in acquiring or constructing utilities. Annual levies will be made for this fund, which the ordinance provides shall be invested in Cass county farm mortgages or municipal bonds, until such time as it may be feasible to take the municipal ownership step. Under the plan proposed, the levy will be small when other city taxes run high, while in other years when general city taxes are considerably reduced the number of mills levied for this fund will be higher, the annual sum raised varying from $1,000 minimum to several times that amount.

The municipal ownership sinking fund ordinance was introduced by Mayor John Sattler, who, in former incumbency in this office several years ago, first proposed as assessment for a sinking fund to pay off bonded indebtedness, under which plan the city's outstanding bonds have been reduced from $114,000 to $65,000. Mr. Sattler is a proponent of municipal ownership and was elected to office this year on a platform pledged to securing it in the case of at least a part of the privately owned utilities now serving Plattsmouth.

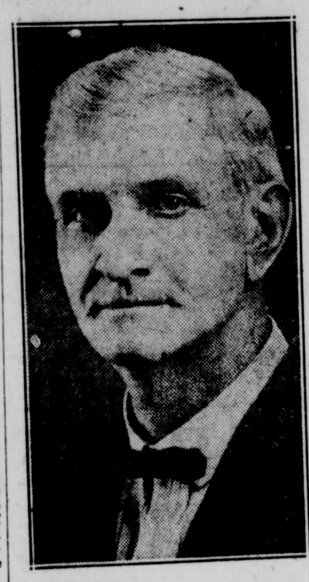

Remove Safety Pin From Babe's Throat

(Special to The Star)

NEWCASTLE, Neb., May 31.—The infant son of Mr and Mrs. Albert Pfister of this place, who swallowed a medium sized safety pin a few days ago, returned home from the hospital with Mrs. Pfister, having been saved from an operation by a severe attack of vomiting. An examination, after the child had been rushed to the hospital, showed that the pin had changed positions so that it could be reached with an instrument, inserted from the mouth.

The safety pin, which was open when the child swallowed it, lodged in the esophagus about half way between the throat and the stomach in such a way that an operation would have been necessary, if the pin had not changed its position.

Postmaster Hears Final Summons

DAVID CITY, Neb., May 31.—Funeral services for T. J. Hinds, who has been for the past nine years postmaster for David City, were held Friday. Mr. Hinds died suddenly last Monday of heart trouble. He had been for many years one of the most prominent business men o fthis city and was a Mason, Knight of Pythias and an Elk.

Nebraska Road Conditions

Following is the weekly road report of the Lincoln Automobile club, issued Saturday afternoon, giving the condition of Nebraska highways:

Rains Saturday were quite general west and south and also northwest. It began raining at Beatrice, Fairbury, Hebron, Hastings, Grand Island, Columbus and vicinity about 9 a. m., and by afternoon roads were slippery and it was necessary to use chains. East of Lincoln, at Ashland, Nebraska City and Tecumseh, it started to rain from 1 to 2 p. m. and roads were still good Saturday afternoon. (More accurate reports can be obtained by calling B1336 Sunday morning from 8 a. m. to 12 m.

D-L-D to Omaha reported good Saturday afternoon, slightly rough in places. Rains were going east by Sunday unless weather clears roads will be slippery.

D-L-D to Hastings, fair to Friend, rough in places to Fairmont, and heavy rains from Fairmont to Hastings and Holdrege. Loyd Thomas of Hastings reports roads very muddy both directions on D-L-D out of Hastings, chains necessary, steady rain. Rains reported into Denver. In vicinity of Holyoke about three inches of rain has fallen the past week. Roads are fair to good in western Nebraska and Colorado.

C. H. fair to good to Beatrice, although late Saturday afternoon, it was necessary to use chains in driving to Beatrice, Fairbury and west to Hebron and Superior.

C. H. to Fremont, is fearly good. Fremont to Sioux City, light showers, roads fair. Started to rain around Wahoo and Fremont about 1 p. m. Saturday.

S-Y-A fair to Seward, raining Saturday. Use chains to Grand Island, roads in poor condition. Very rough from recent rains, and some new grading work.

O-T to Nebraska City, was good until Saturday afternoon, slow rains made roads slippery. Nebraska City to Kansas City fair. (This is the preferable route at this time, however, road through Marysville is fair, too.)

East O fairly good to Union and Plattsmouth, just light rains reported.

Golden Wedding Of Wymore Pair

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., May 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Julius Neumann will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary next Tuesday at their beautiful home at Wymore. Mr. Neumann came here from Illinois in 1883 and engaged in the mercantile business. In 1901 he erected a fine business block in which one son, C. H. Neumann, and the elder daughter, Mrs. Fred Kelly, own and conduct the department store under the old firm name of Julius Neumann company.

There are seven children, R. H. Neumann of Philadelphia; Mrs. Fred Kelly, Minneapolis; Mrs. H. Hinman, Duluth, Minn.; Mrs. William Ansmus, Nashville, Tenn.; Warren J. Neumann, Lawrence, Kas.; and two sons, M. J., and C. H. Neumann of Wymore. There are seven grandchildren. All of the children and grandchildren are here to attend the celebration.

WEDDING SECRET NEAR TWO YEARS

(Special to The Star.)

AURORA, Neb., May 31.—Miss Ruth Thoms, for that is the name by which she has been known for the past two years, surprised a large party of her friends Friday at an announcement party at which she was supposedly to announce her engagement to Joe Wood, but she announced the fact that she had been married to him for two years.

The announcement party followed a large number of parties which had been given to her by her other friends preparatory to her supposed wedding. She had been showered repeatedly and had been the guest and toast at many a fine party, receiving all of these courtesies with smiling face as the future bride of Joe Wood, when in reality she had been his wife since July, 1922.

Mr. Wood is a senior at the state university, having received his degree in agricultural engineering with the clss of 1924. The young people were schoolmtes in the Aurora high school and while in Montana two years ago entered into the contract of marriage and were successful in keeping it quiet for two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood will make their home in California.

MAKE PLANS TO HANDLE GASOLINE

Specifications for a spur track from the railroads yards to the county's storage yard at Second and P streets have been prepared by County Engineer A. H. Edgren and are now in the hands of Burlington officials. The track will be used to switch cars of gasoline for the county's new filing stations to storage tanks which will be placed in the yard.

Many oil men, who claimed to have had long experience in the filling station busines, have called upon the county commissioners with a view of getting the job of managing the stations. No one has been hired and the commissioners will not consider this matter until the plans have been more definitely arranged.

O. J. Shaw, of the Shaw Oil Co., which owns several stations in Lincoln, called on Commissioner Bennett to protest the county's action in entering the business.

Several offers to supply gas at the prevailing rates to the commissioners have been made and no difficulty is expected in arranging for a source of supply.

Strate Addresses Humboldt People

(Special to The Star.)

HUMBOLDT, Neb., May 31—The Decoration day program here was in charge of the local post of American Legion. The day was an ideal one and the exercises were held in the city park at ten o'clock in the morning, Bruce Dorland, who has been retired from the navy, presided. The address of the day was delivered by Rev. W. H. E. Strate, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, who ably presented the more important lessons taught by Decoration or Memorial day. Reid's orchestra, a duet by Miss Fay Boss and M. M. Ramey and the Emmanuel quartet supplied an appropriate musical program. Following the park exercises, the usual decoration exercises took place at the cemetery. Rev. Bothwell of the Methodist church, spoke and a squad in khaki fired the salute. The attendance throughout was the largest in recent years.

GUGENHEIM'S

ESTABLISHED 1869

A Clothing Establishment of This Day and Age

"I wonder why they are tearing down that building? Wonder what's going up there?"

The Gugenheim Clothing Folk are building there; same folk who now have a clothing house directly west of the dismantled building. Gugenheim's will, of course, stay where they are at until the new buillding is complete —say three months or so.

Everything's planned; everything's measured and being made; other stores in other cities have been studied; strictly Lincoln made ideas will be incorporated also. It's going to be one of those snappy, inviting clothing houses. You are going to form YOUR idea of clothing styles, grades and prices at the new store. You'll think of it when you think of clothing.

Come. Watch with us. We are just as anxious about it as you.

WOMAN LOSES DAMAGE ACTION

District Judge Leslie Directs Verdict In Favor Of Lancaster County.

Plaintiff Sought $30,000 Judgment For Injuries In Accident Near Eagle.

County Attorney Charles E. Matson returned Saturday from Omaha where he has been trying the $30,000 damage suit of Rosetta Hodgen against Lancaster county and the Missouri Pacific railroad. Judge Leslie directed a verdict for the defense.

Mrs. Hodgen claimed that she was injured Christmas day, 1921, when the car in which she was riding crashed against a Missouri Pacific semaphore on East O street, near Eagle.

She said that the semaphore was too near the roadway and that the lower part was painted black, making it impossible to see it at 9 o'clock at night, when the accident happened.

Mrs. Hodgen said that her left leg had been broken in two places and that she had received permanent injury. It was said that while she weighed 220 pounds before the accident she now weighed only 210.

The defense claimed that the semaphore had been built in accord with the best practice and that the defendants were therefore not liable.

The trial of the case started Tuesday morning.

Real Estate Firm Moves Offices To New Location

After seventeen years in the same location Culbertson & Roe, Inc. have moved to their new location on the ground floor of the Little building, 115 North Eleventh street which is vidence of this firm's faith in the future growth of Lincoln. The new location is one of the finest in the city and it has been fitted up into an ideal business office. Mr. Culbertson, president of the firm has been in the real estate business in Lincoln for the past thirty-five years the last fifteen of which he was a member of the firm of Culbertson & Waite. Mr. Roe came to Lincoln two years ago and purchased the interest of Mr. Waite and has actively engaged in the business.

While it is not generally known, this firm, besides being one of the most active in the sale of city real estate and rental is the largest farmer in Lancaster county, where for over twenty-five years they have farmed over three thousand acres, seventeen farms in all.

GETS PETITIONS FOR LAFOLLETTE

Sorenson Receives Blanks From Chicago But Is Not Circulating Them.

LaFollette-for-president petitions are not as yet being circulated in Nebraska, though blanks have been sent to C. A. Sorenson of this city Chicago in the interest of the Wisconsin senators' candidacy. In several other western states the petitions movement is said to be under way.

Soenson and some of the others here who are friendly to the political ideas espoused by LaFollette are inclined to wait and see what the national conventions of the two major parties do, before undertaking an independent movement in his behalf. Information of this attitude has been conveyed to the Chicago headquarters.

A month ago the chairman of the Wisconsin railroad commission visited Lincoln and conferred with some of the local people in regard to the presidential boom for LaFollette. He outlined plans for bringing out the senator as a cindidate along the lines which are now being followed. The movement shows signs of having been carefully thought out beforehand as to all its principal details.

HOLD MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES

Memory of Departed Honored In Havelock Services Friday.

Memorial day exercises were held Friday in the Havelock cemetery, where a large crowd congregated in commemoration of departed soldiers and to decorate their graves. The American Legion drilled and fired salutes in honor of the occasion. John Hollander was master of ceremonies. The bugler was Neil Webster.

Prayer and benediction was offered by Rev. Hugh Van Valkenburg of the Congrgational church. Patriotic songs were sung by the woman's club, boy scouts, American Legion and the audience, led by Mr. Hollander.

The speaker of the day was Rev. Randall of the Methodist church. He paid a high tribute to the men who gave their lives in the service of their country.

"It is not only our purpose to decorate the graves of our soldiers," he said, "but also the graves of our loved ones. As we tarry here on this beautiful and sacred hill, let us remember that we stand among the dead; that God reigns here and that we ought to be reverent. Let us also remember that as we are citizens of this country that we should also be citizens of that great country above where the great Commander of our souls waits our coming."

Names Committee To Select Girl Winner of Prize

Miss Laura Pfeiffer, chairman, Miss Louise Pound, and Miss Amanda Heppner have been appointed a committee by Chancellor Samuel Avery to select the girl in the Arts and Science college who has been self supporting and who has made the highest scholastic average in her four college years. The presentation will be made Ivy Day morning by Miss Pfeiffer to the winner, who will not know of her selection before the award. The watch is presented for the first time this year.

The watch may be worn in three ways, as a wrist watch, as a pendant, or in a ring, for which the setting is given with the watch.

Dream Land of Splendid Homes In Hazelhurst

House o' dreams with winding walks and curved drives, with adorable fire place and pretty windows that look out upon the prettiest sites in Lincoln—that is the kind of a house one may find in Hazelhurst, Lincoln's newest and one of the most attractive additions.

Hazelhurst is not a man made affair. There are no rows of trees mechanically placed here and there, there are no built up terraces, everything is natural and consequently that much more beautiful than any other spot. In the distance are groves of huge trees that lend their protecting beauty to the lovely homes that have been built so close to them.

And the homes, colonial in architecture, are some of the loveliest in Lincoln. There have been nine built altogether, each of them different, and each of them as attractive as the other.

Each home is complete with the breakfast nook furniture all ready but the decoration and that is up to Milady of the house. The wall decorations, also, are left to her judgment, but the rest of the house is done by the owners of Hazelhurst and a glimpse inside of each shows no cause for sorrow that this is the case.

The kitchens, which mean so much to Milady and incidentally to Milord, are wonderful. There are all kinds of convenient cupboards and work tables and clothes and dust chutes, and broom closets, and, well, so many other features that it would take too long to tell them.

The living rooms are the modern kind that give ample opportunity for the attractive arrangement of furniture and pretty shaded lights. The colonial fire places are in each house and the mantles of each match the wood finish which is in ivory.

The Pemberton Case

Last Sunday we mentioned the Pemberton case (107 N. W. 996) as differing from the Koffka case as well as that of Sarah Matilda Peterson. In the two latter cases there was no writing in evidence and all the proof was parol or oral testimony.

In 1863 Kate A. Griffith secured a divorce from her husband in Douglas County, and the custody of her young son, Thaddeus. Shortly afterward she entered into a written contract with Samuel A. Whittier and his wife, Deborah, whereby she "relinquished all right, claim and demand" to Thaddeus, and authorized the Whittiers to adopt the child as their own.

This contract, "ineffective as a legal statutory adoption," was signed and acknowledged by all three on April 27, 1863. But two months later the Whittiers turned over the child and the written document to George Pemberton and wife, who from then on had the care and custody of Thaddeus or "Charles" as he was usually called.

The lad grew to manhood with the Pembertons and called them "Pa" and "Ma." After reaching the age of 21 he went to Oregon and engaged in business there; but wrote frequent letters to his foster parents, and in turn received letters from his "Ma", she being the letter writer of the family. Once when Mr. Pemberton had a stroke of paralysis, Thaddeus came back when telegraphed of the illness.

It appears that the Pembertons modified the contract by scratching out the Whittiers' names and inserting their own; and then they signed and acknowledged it. After the death of George Pemberton, in 1893, an administrator was appointed, the debts paid and administration closed. A brother and a sister of the deceased claimed a share of the lands in Washington County not covered by the widow's dower.

Having in his possession the ineffective contract of adoption, Thaddeus Pemberton brought suit in the District Court of Washington County for specific performance of the contract. The Court dismissed his bill and gave judgment for the defendant brother and sister. But our Supreme Court in a well-reasoned opinion by Commissioner Oldham, reversed the case and ordered a decree in favor of Thaddeus.

The contract did not make Thaddeus Griffith the adopted son of either the Whittiers or the Pembertons; but it was one which on a proper showing could be enforced in equity proceedings.

HOLD MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES

Memory of Departed Honored In Havelock Services Friday.

Memorial day exercises were held Friday in the Havelock cemetery, where a large crowd congregated in commemoration of departed soldiers and to decorate their graves. The American Legion drilled and fired salutes in honor of the occasion. John Hollander was master of ceremonies. The bugler was Neil Webster.

Prayer and benediction was offered by Rev. Hugh Van Valkenburg of the Congrgational church. Patriotic songs were sung by the woman's club, boy scouts, American Legion and the audience, led by Mr. Hollander.

The speaker of the day was Rev. Randall of the Methodist church. He paid a high tribute to the men who gave their lives in the service of their country.

"It is not only our purpose to decorate the graves of our soldiers," he said, "but also the graves of our loved ones. As we tarry here on this beautiful and sacred hill, let us remember that we stand among the dead; that God reigns here and that we ought to be reverent. Let us also remember that as we are citizens of this country that we should also be citizens of that great country above where the great Commander of our souls waits our coming."

Names Committee To Select Girl Winner of Prize

Miss Laura Pfeiffer, chairman, Miss Louise Pound, and Miss Amanda Heppner have been appointed a committee by Chancellor Samuel Avery to select the girl in the Arts and Science college who has been self supporting and who has made the highest scholastic average in her four college years. She is to be awarded a $75 white gold wrist watch by Fred A. Hallett.

The presentation will be made Ivy Day morning by Miss Pfeiffer to the winner, who will not know of her selection before the award. The watch is presented for the first time this year.

The watch may be worn in three ways, as a wrist watch, as a pendant, or in a ring, for which the setting is given with the watch.

Dream Land of Splendid Homes In Hazelhurst

House o' dreams with winding walks and curved drives, with adorable fire place and pretty windows that look out upon the prettiest sites in Lincoln—that is the kind of a house one may find in Hazelhurst, Lincoln's newest and one of the most attractive additions.

Hazelhurst is not a man made affair. There are no rows of trees mechanically placed here and there, there are no built up terraces, everything is natural and consequently that much more beautiful than any other spot. In the distance are groves of huge trees that lend their protecting beauty to the lovely homes that have been built so close to them.

And the homes, colonial in architecture, are some of the loveliest in Lincoln. There have been nine built altogether, each of them different, and each of them as attractive as the other.

Each home is complete with the breakfast nook furniture all ready but the decoration and that is up to Milady of the house. The wall decorations, also, are left to her judgment, but the rest of the house is done by the owners of Hazelhurst and a glimpse inside of each shows no cause for sorrow that this is the case.

The kitchens, which mean so much to Milady and incidentally to Milord, are wonderful. There are all kinds of convenient cupboards and work tables and clothes and dust chutes, and broom closets, and, well, so many other features that it would take too long to tell them.

The living rooms are the modern kind that give ample opportunity for the attractive arrangement of furniture and pretty shaded lights. The colonial fire places are in each house and the mantles of each match the wood finish which is in ivory.

The Pemberton Case

Last Sunday we mentioned the Pemberton case (107 N. W. 996) as differing from the Koffka case as well as that of Sarah Matilda Peterson. In the two latter cases there was no writing in evidence and all the proof was parol or oral testimony.

In 1863 Kate A. Griffith secured a divorce from her husband in Douglas County, and the custody of her young son, Thaddeus. Shortly afterward she entered into a written contract with Samuel A. Whittier and his wife, Deborah, whereby she "relinquished all right, claim and demand" to Thaddeus, and authorized the Whittiers to adopt the child as their own.

This contract, "ineffective as a legal statutory adoption," was signed and acknowledged by all three on April 27, 1863. But two months later the Whittiers turned over the child and the written document to George Pemberton and wife, who from then on had the care and custody of Thaddeus or "Charles" as he was usually called.

The lad grew to manhood with the Pembertons and called them "Pa" and "Ma." After reaching the age of 21 he went to Oregon and engaged in business there; but wrote frequent letters to his foster parents, and in turn received letters from his "Ma", she being the letter writer of the family. Once when Mr. Pemberton had a stroke of paralysis, Thaddeus came back when telegraphed of the illness.

It appears that the Pembertons modified the contract by scratching out the Whittiers' names and inserting their own; and then they signed and acknowledged it. After the death of George Pemberton, in 1893, an administrator was appointed, the debts paid and administration closed. A brother and a sister of the deceased claimed a share of the lands in Washington County not covered by the widow's dower.

Having in his possession the ineffective contract of adoption, Thaddeus Pemberton brought suit in the District Court of Washington County for specific performance of the contract. The Court dismissed his bill and gave judgment for the defendant brother and sister. But our Supreme Court in a well-reasoned opinion by Commissioner Oldham, reversed the case and ordered a decree in favor of Thaddeus.

The contract did not make Thaddeus Griffith the adopted son of either the Whittiers or the Pembertons; but it was one which on a proper showing could be enforced in equity proceedings.

thinkers and worldly wise, should carry out a plot for murder, "just for the fun of it," is a problem for the alienists to solve.

It may lead, one of them admitted, to the writing of a new chapter in the text books of criminology.

Leopold, son of the president of the Morris Paper Box company, holder of a degree of bachelor of philosophy from the University of Chicago, and for many years a student of all forms of perversion, admitted it was he who plotted the kidnaping and murder. Just before confessing, young Leopold was discussing philosophy and religion with his examiners. He professed to be an atheist.

Youngest Graduate.

Loeb, son of Albert H. Loeb, vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., mail order firm, was Leopold's accomplice. Loeb is known as the youngest graduate of the University of Michigan, receiving his A.B. degree at the age of 17.

Both confessed murderers have been students in the law department of the University of Chicago. They continued their daily classes until their arrest. The plans for the kidnaping and murder were laid in spare moments between classes and during evenings when they went together to out-of-the-way places, ostensibly to "study nature."

In addition, to the strange mental complex which prompted the crime, the case attracts wide attention because of the extreme wealth and social prominence of the three families involved—their combined wealth being estimated at $25,000,000.

TWO BANKERS, EX-TREASURER SEEK FREEDOM

All Three Left Penniless.

In behalf of each of the three men, the board of pardons is informed in letters written by their friends that all the property they possessed was turned over to cover the deficits caused by their acts. Anderson had $16,000, and his relatives supplied the rest. His wife is now teaching a rural school in Wyoming and living in the schoolhouse with their daughter, 10 years old. His aged father is working for a living at a gasoline filling station in Fullerton. An old friend of the family has promised Anderson a position in case he is paroled.

Many letters and a petition or two from his friends and former neighbors, have come to the board interceding for clemency to Ramaekers, who is 63 years of age. A certificate from the clerk of the district court at Albion says that the fine of $200 imposed on him together with the prison sentence has been paid. His four youngest children and his wife, living with relatives at Greeley, have also written to the board.

Ramaekers admitted having forged notes and other papers to the gross amount of $80,000 or more. His excuse was that he did this as a last desperate expedient to save his bank in a period of extreme financial depression. He has served two years of his sentence.

Barge has been in the penitentiary over three years. He is 44 years old. Letters from Fred Berry of Wayne, who prosecuted him as county attorney, and Judge A. A. Welch, raise no objection to a parole. Berry says that Barge's wife and two children are at Fremont, in destitute circumstances.

The records show that on March 3, last, Barge was given a special leave of absence from the penitentiary, on Governor Bryan's written order, to visit his wife at Fremont when she was about to undergo a surgical operation. He did so and returned.

Sutter Wants Time Cut Down.

Arlow D. Sutter, of Lincoln, who was sentenced to serve ten years for killing his wife, is asking the board to credit on that term two years which he spent in the penitentiary and the Lancaster county jail under a former life sentence for first degree murder, which the supreme court set aside, and while waiting to be retried. On his second trial the jury disagreed. The third time he was found guilty of murder in the second degree, and the 10-year sentence was imposed for that crime.

County Attorney Matson has written a letter opposing the partial commutation. He says Sutter killed his wife without provocation and is fortunate in not having been condemned to suffer the death penalty. The last jury recommended mercy, and the trial judge gave him the minimum for the offense.

Shooting Due to Jealousy?

Mike Supik, Knox county, is asking to be relieved of the balance of his term, 1 to 20 years, for shooting William Hagge, a young farmer with intent to kill. The two men had been working together on a threshing crew. A shotgun was fired through the window at Hagge while he was calling on a young woman, Kate Peitzmeier, one Sunday evening.

Twenty or more balls of shot entered his head and face. He was not badly injured, but his muscles twitch on one side of the face, the hearing of one ear is gone, his jaw has been affected so that he must have some teeth pulled, and he suffers occasional headaches. X-ray pictures have been sent by his father, Claus Hagge of Bloomfield, to show his condition. The elder Hagge strongly protests clemency for Supik.

Jealousy is the motive which county officials imputed to Supik in explanation of the shooting. He claims to be innocent. He has served two and a half years thus far.

Kicks On Return to Germany.

"I have been in prison since the year of 1919, and now to be sent to Germany is quite severe punishment in my opinion," say Fred Miller, 29 years old under double sentence from Knox county for 5 years each on the charges of hog stealing and breaking jail. The United States labor department inspector at St. Louis is waiting for his release in order to deport him to that country, he being a German alien.

Miller seeks a commutation in order to avoid being sent back to his native country. He and a companion Fred Klatt, have served time together in Minnesota and Iowa prisons and were sentenced together from Knox county, after escaping from jail at Center, stealing an automobile and being recaptured in their flight.

Bogus World War Hero.

Fred Peterson, 35, who claims to have been born in Ireland in spite of his name, and who has been turned down twice before on his request for parole, will try it again at the June meeting of the pardon board. He is doing 1 to 7 years for stealing an automobile from S. M. Gillespie at Hastings, in 1919. Records show that he impersonated a Canadian lieutenant and delivered lectures during the world war, visiting Canada, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas in that guise and imposing on the people at various places. Several fingers are missing on one hand. He claimed this was an injury received in the military service, but they are reported to have been lost in a railroad accident. Peterson was taken to Canada as an orphan during infancy and he came to the United States in 1907.

The following is the list of cases:

Penitentiary—(Paroles.)

Ross P. Johnson, Douglas, forgery, 3-5.

Harold Taylor, Douglas, forgery, 2-5.

Art D. Barnes, Douglas, robbery, 3-15.

Michael McWilliams, Otoe, burglary, 1-10.

Frank L. Eddings, Morrill, larceny, 1-10.

Tony Carlo, Harlan, grand larceny, 1-2.

Women's Reformatory (Paroles.)

Katherine Augustine, Lancaster, vagrancy, indeterminate.

Refers to Negotiations.

Hanihara referred at length to the negotiations of the United States and then said:

"One of the chief pre-occupations of the Japanese government was to protect their nationals from discriminatory immigration legislation in the United States. That position of Japan was fully understood and appreciated by the American government and it was with these considerations in view that the existing treaty was signed and the exchange of its ratifications effected. In this situation, while reserving for another occasion the presentation of the question of legal technicality, whether and how far the provisions of the immigration act of 1924 are inconsistent with the terms of the treaty of 1911, the Japanese government desires now to point out that the new legislation is in entire disregard of the spirit and circumstances that underlie the conclusion of the treaty.

"With regard to the so-called 'gentlemen's agreement,' it will be recalled that it was designed on the one hand to meet the actual requirements of the situation as perceived by the American government, concerning Japanese immigration, and on the other, to provide against the possible demand in the United States for a statutory exclusion which would offend the just susceptibilities of the Japanese people. The arrangement came into force in 1908. Its efficiency has been proved in fact. The figures given in the annual report of the United States commissioner general of education authoritatively show that during the fifteen years from 1908 to 1923, the excess, in number, of Japanese admitted to continental United States, over those who departed, was no more than 8,681 all together—including not only immigrants of the laboring classes, but also merchants, students and other non-laborers, and non-immigrants, the numbers which naturally increased with the growth of commercial, intellectual and social relations between the two countries. If even so limited a number should in any way be found embarrassing to the United States, the Japanese government has already manifested its readiness to revise the existing arrangements with a view to further limitation of immigration.

Declare Effort Wasted.

"Unfortunately, however, the sweeping provisions of the new act, clearly indicative of discrimination against Japanese, have made it impossible for Japan to continue the undertakings assumed under the 'gentlemen's agreement.' An understanding of friendly co-operation reached after long and comprehensive discussions between the Japanese and American governments has thus been abruptly overthrown by legislative action on the part of the United States. The patient, loyal and scrupulous observance by Japan for more than sixteen years of these self-denying regulations, in the interest of good relations between the two countries, now seems to have been wasted.

"It is not denied that fundamentally speaking, it lies within the inherent sovereign power of each to limit and control immigration to its own domains, but when in the exercise of such right an evident injustice is done to a foreign nation in disregard of its proper self respect, of international understandings or of ordinary rules of comity, the question necessarily assumes an aspect which justifies diplomatic discussion and adjustment.

"Accordingly, the Japanese government considers it its duty to maintain and place on record its solemn protest against the discriminatory clause in Section 13 (C) of the immigration act of 1924 and to request the American government to take all possible and suitable measures for the removal of such discrimination."

INTERESTING EVENTS DURING COTNER COMMENCEMENT

ADAMS HINTS AT PLATFORM

Republican National Chairman Tells Public What May Be Expected.

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—Chairman John T. Adams, of the national committee today told the American public what it can expect in the republican party platform to be adopted at the convention here a week fro Tuesday.

"It will contain a concise statement and a frank statement of the political problems of the nation, and a strong republican program for meeting them," said Adams.

"The pledges to be fund in the republican platform this year can be made in good faith, because of the manner in which the pledges of four years ago have been fulfilled."

With the convention only little more than a week off, final plans for the gathering were being speeded up over the week end.

MEET NEW DELAYS.

BERLIN, May 31.—Efforts to reorganize the cabinet following the recent parliamentary elections, continued to meet with delays today, as conferences between Chancellor Marx and the party leaders continued. Chancellor Marx probably will not be able to attend the funeral of his mother in Cologne because of the confused political situation, it was siad.

London Fog Cost Set at $5,000,000 Per Day

LONDON, May 31.—Efforts to compute the cost of a London fog have been made by Lawrence W. Chubb, secretary of the Coal Smoke Abatement society. He places the loss to the city at $5,000,000 a day. Into this sum goes the loss to transportation companies; loss of time to individuals, estimated at $500,000 on the basis of 2,000,000 persons losing an hour a day at 25 cents an hour; decreased efficiency of workers in industry; extra laundry bills and doctor fees, and damage to carpets and curtains by the soot.

Before installing a new timer, it is well to make sure that the magneto is normally strong and that it has a good contact.

WORLD COURT TO BRING SHOWDOWN

Coolidge And Republican Leaders Of Senate At Loggerheads Over Issue.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Almost on the eve of the republican national convention, President Coolidge and the republican leaders of the senate are at loggerheads over the method of adherence of the United States to the permanent court of international justice, while the democrats have jumped into the breach to uphold the president's views.

In a few days, the writing of the foreign relations plank of the republican platform at Cleveland will bring the divergent views of the president and the senate republicans into sharp conflict.

In the battle that follows the prestige of either the president or the leaders of his party in the senate must suffer.

All Three Left Penniless.

In behalf of each of the three men, the board of pardons is informed in letters written by their friends that all the property they possessed was turned over to cover the deficits caused by their acts. Anderson had $16,000, and his relatives supplied the rest. His wife is now teaching a rural school in Wyoming and living in the schoolhouse with their daughter, 10 years old. His aged father is working for a living at a gasoline filling station in Fullerton. An old friend of the family has promised Anderson a position in case he is paroled.

Many letters and a petition or two from his friends and former neighbors, have come to the board interceding for clemency to Ramaekers, who is 63 years of age. A certificate from the clerk of the district court at Albion says that the fine of $200 imposed on him together with the prison sentence has been paid. His four youngest children and his wife, living with relatives at Greeley, have also written to the board.

Ramaekers admitted having forged notes and other papers to the gross amount of $80,000 or more. His excuse was that he did this as a last desperate expedient to save his bank in a period of extreme financial depression. He has served two years of his sentence.

Barge has been in the penitentiary over three years. He is 44 years old. Letters from Fred Berry of Wayne, who prosecuted him as county attorney, and Judge A. A. Welch, raise no objection to a parole. Berry says that Barge's wife and two children are at Fremont, in destitute circumstances.

The records show that on March 3, last, Barge was given a special leave of absence from the penitentiary, on Governor Bryan's written order, to visit his wife at Fremont when she was about to undergo a surgical operation. He did so and returned.

Sutter Wants Time Cut Down.

Arlow D. Sutter, of Lincoln, who was sentenced to serve ten years for killing his wife, is asking the board to credit on that term two years which he spent in the penitentiary and the Lancaster county jail under a former life sentence for first degree murder, which the supreme court set aside, and while waiting to be retried. On his second trial the jury disagreed. The third time he was found guilty of murder in the second degree, and the 10-year sentence was imposed for that crime.

County Attorney Matson has written a letter opposing the partial commutation. He says Sutter killed his wife without provocation and is fortunate in not having been condemned to suffer the death penalty. The last jury recommended mercy, and the trial judge gave him the minimum for the offense.

Shooting Due to Jealousy?

Mike Supik, Knox county, is asking to be relieved of the balance of his term, 1 to 20 years, for shooting William Hagge, a young farmer with intent to kill. The two men had been working together on a threshing crew. A shotgun was fired through the window at Hagge while he was calling on a young woman, Kate Peitzmeier, one Sunday evening.

Twenty or more balls of shot entered his head and face. He was not badly injured, but his muscles twitch on one side of the face, the hearing of one ear is gone, his jaw has been affected so that he must have some teeth pulled, and he suffers occasional headaches. X-ray pictures have been sent by his father, Claus Hagge of Bloomfield, to show his condition. The elder Hagge strongly protests clemency for Supik.

Jealousy is the motive which county officials imputed to Supik in explanation of the shooting. He claims to be innocent. He has served two and a half years thus far.

Kicks On Return to Germany.

"I have been in prison since the year of 1919, and now to be sent to Germany is quite severe punishment in my opinion," say Fred Miller, 29 years old under double sentence from Knox county for 5 years each on the charges of hog stealing and breaking jail. The United States labor department inspector at St. Louis is waiting for his release in order to deport him to that country, he being a German alien.

Miller seeks a commutation in order to avoid being sent back to his native country. He and a companion Fred Klatt, have served time together in Minnesota and Iowa prisons and were sentenced together from Knox county, after escaping from jail at Center, stealing an automobile and being recaptured in their flight.

Bogus World War Hero.

Fred Peterson, 35, who claims to have been born in Ireland in spite of his name, and who has been turned down twice before on his request for parole, will try it again at the June meeting of the pardon board. He is doing 1 to 7 years for stealing an automobile from S. M. Gillespie at Hastings, in 1919. Records show that he impersonated a Canadian lieutenant and delivered lectures during the world war, visiting Canada, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas in that guise and imposing on the people at various places. Several fingers are missing on one hand. He claimed this was an injury received in the military service, but they are reported to have been lost in a railroad accident. Peterson was taken to Canada as an orphan during infancy and he came to the United States in 1907.

The following is the list of cases:

Refers to Negotiations.

Hanihara referred at length to the negotiations of the United States and then said:

"One of the chief pre-occupations of the Japanese government was to protect their nationals from discriminatory immigration legislation in the United States. That position of Japan was fully understood and appreciated by the American government and it was with these considerations in view that the existing treaty was signed and the exchange of its ratifications effected. In this situation, while reserving for another occasion the presentation of the question of legal technicality, whether and how far the provisions of the immigration act of 1924 are inconsistent with the terms of the treaty of 1911, the Japanese government desires now to point out that the new legislation is in entire disregard of the spirit and circumstances that underlie the conclusion of the treaty.

"With regard to the so-called 'gentlemen's agreement,' it will be recalled that it was designed on the one hand to meet the actual requirements of the situation as perceived by the American government, concerning Japanese immigration, and on the other, to provide against the possible demand in the United States for a statutory exclusion which would offend the just susceptibilities of the Japanese people. The arrangement came into force in 1908. Its efficiency has been proved in fact. The figures given in the annual report of the United States commissioner general of education authoritatively show that during the fifteen years from 1908 to 1923, the excess, in number, of Japanese admitted to continental United States, over those who departed, was no more than 8,681 all together—including not only immigrants of the laboring classes, but also merchants, students and other non-laborers, and non-immigrants, the numbers which naturally increased with the growth of commercial, intellectual and social relations between the two countries. If even so limited a number should in any way be found embarrassing to the United States, the Japanese government has already manifested its readiness to revise the existing arrangements with a view to further limitation of immigration.

Declare Effort Wasted.

"Unfortunately, however, the sweeping provisions of the new act, clearly indicative of discrimination against Japanese, have made it impossible for Japan to continue the undertakings assumed under the 'gentlemen's agreement.' An understanding of friendly co-operation reached after long and comprehensive discussions between the Japanese and American governments has thus been abruptly overthrown by legislative action on the part of the United States. The patient, loyar and scrupulous observance by Japan for more than sixteen years of these self-denying regulations, in the interest of good relations between the two countries, now seems to have been wasted.

"It is not denied that fundamentally speaking, it lies within the inherent sovereign power of each to limit and control immigration to its own domains, but when in the exercise of such right an evident injustice is done to a foreign nation in disregard of its proper self respect, of international understandings or of ordinary rules of comity, the question necessarily assumes an aspect which justifies diplomatic discussion and adjustment.

"Accordingly, the Japanese government considers it its duty to maintain and place on record its solemn protest against the discriminatory clause in Section 13 (C) of the immigration act of 1924 and to request the American government to take all possible and suitable measures for the removal of such discrimination.'

"My Rheumatism is gone—"

"THERE are thousands of you men and women, just like I once was—slaves to rheumatism, muscle pains, joint pains, and horrible stiffness. I had the wrong idea about rheumatism for years. I didn't realize that increasing blood-cells had the effect of completely knocking out rheumatic impurities from the system. That is why I began using S. S. S.! Today I have the strength I used to have years ago! I don't use my crutches any more." S. S. S. makes people talk about themselves the way it builds up their strength. Start S. S. S. today for that rheumatism. You'll feel the difference shortly.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more ecohomical.

Among the attractive events during commencement week at Cotner college were the crowning of the May queen; the traditional cutting of the ivy chain; the tapping of members of the Blue Flame, the senior honorary fraternity for men.

London Fog Cost Set at $5,000,000 Per Day

LONDON, May 31.—Efforts to compute the cost of a London fog have been made by Lawrence W. Chubb, secretary of the Coal Smoke Abatement society. He places the loss to the city at $5,000,000 a day. Into this sum goes the loss to transportation companies; loss of time to individuals, estimated at $500,000 on the basis of 2,000,000 persons losing an hour a day at 25 cents an hour; decreased efficiency of workers in industry; extra laundry bills and doctor fees, and damage to carpets and curtains by the soot.

WORLD COURT TO BRING SHOWDOWN

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Almost on the eve of the republican national convention, President Coolidge and the republican leaders of the senate are at loggerheads over the method of adherence of the United States to the permanent court of international justice, while the democrats have jumped into the breach to uphold the president's views.

In a few days, the writing of the foreign relations plank of the republican platform at Cleveland will bring the divergent views of the president and the senate republicans into sharp conflict.

In the battle that follows the prestige of either the president or the leaders of his party in the senate must suffer.

Mr. Coolidge has declared his insistence upon the Harding-Hughes' plan for American entrance into the world court. The republican members of the senate foreign relations committee are fighting for the plan of Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania.

ADAMS HINTS AT PLATFORM

Republican National Chairman Tells Public What May Be Expected.

CLEVELAND, O., May 31.—Chairman John T. Adams, of the national committee today told the American public what it can expect in the republican party platform to be adopted at the convention here a week fro Tuesday.

"It will contain a concise statement and a frank statement of the political problems of the nation, and a strong republican program for meeting them," said Adams.

"The pledges to be fund in the republican platform this year can be made in good faith, because of the manner in which the pledges of four years ago have been fulfilled.'

With the convention only little more than a week off, final plans for the gathering were being speeded up over the week end.

MEET NEW DELAYS.

BERLIN, May 31.—Efforts to reorganize the cabinet following the recent parliamentary elections, continued to meet with delays today, as conferences between Chancellor Marx and the party leaders continued. Chancellor Marx probably will not be able to attend the funeral of his mother in Cologne because of the confused political situation, it was siad.

Firms You Like To Deal With

Did you ever stop to consider why you deal with certain firms in preference to others?

If you do, you'll find it's a matter of confidence, first in them, secondly in their fair prices and only thirdly in the merchandise they carry.

If you have confidence in them you know their merchandise is good.

We enjoy the confidence of a lot of people here; we try to deserve it. We want to gain the good will of a lot more.

A SLACKENING IN BUSINESS WORLD

"Political Halt" Making Its Effect Felt In The Industrial World.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The "political halt" in the business world became more apparent this week. Production figures were lower and activity on the New York stock exchange slackened to a marked degree.

In the international money market Holland furnished a feature by exporting $21,000,000 worth of gold to the United States against exportation of $14,000,000 by Britain, normally the leader.

Japanese securities were less popular on American markets because of the excusion law protests. Both sterling and francs declined.

Liberty bonds were generally low. New flotations of utility and industrial bonds for the week totalled $108,000,000.

The money rate dropped during the week to 2¾ per cent, the lowest in two years.

The stock market marked time. The average price of twenty representative industrial shares was 91.79 against 98.97 last week. The average for twenty rails was 82.26 against 83.25 last week.

Heavier demand than for cash had indicated sent wheat and corn up during the week. The visible supply of wheat decreased by more than 2,000,000 bushels. Work shipments were under 14,000,000 bushels.

Continued cold weather was a bullish cotton market influence.

Commodity prices were lower during the week. Steel production declined, but prices were steady. Pig iron prices were slightly lower. The week's review showed slackening in building activities.

Wives Of Miners Run Stills While Men Are At Work

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 31.—Women are the unwilling, but numerous violators of the prohibition laws in this section of the anthracite coal region, according to welfare agencies who have started a drive to aid the wives of foreign born workers who are compelled by their husbands to operate stills while the men are in the mines.

Testimony which came to light in Police courts caused the welfare workers to start an investigation which shows that hundreds of women are unwilling accomplices of their "men" in making moonshine, but are afraid to inform the police or even testify when they are arrested

Most of the smaller stills in homes here, according to the welfare workers, are among the class of people where the wife and mother have been raised to obey unquestionably.

The Lehigh Valley Coal company recently issued orders that tenants who operate stills in company houses will be summarily ejected and other coal companies are waging campaigns to wipe out the numerous illicit moonshine stills.

According to Captain Clark, commanding the state police here, there are more stills in operation in the anthracite region that any other section of the country. Exploding stills have caused a dozen deaths within the past years and deaths from poison whisky have mounted alarmingly, the coroner reports.

Margaret Brown To Attend World S. S. Convention

Miss Margaret Ellen Brown

Miss Margaret Brown, secretary of the Nebraska State Sunday School association, will leave Lincoln Wednesday for Montreal to sail on the steamer Doric, June 7, for Liverpool, for a stay of a couple of days and then on to Glasgow to attend the World Sunday School convention, held in that city June 18 to 26. Miss Brown will be accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Oastler of Howells, Neb., Mrs. J. Henry Stitt of Grand Island and Rev. Leon Dudley of Kearney.

After the convention the party will see the sights in Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land, arriving in New York September 16 and Lincoln about the 21st.

These conventions occur every four years and this is the ninth one to be held. Miss Brown attended the last tone in Tokio, Japan This is her third trip across; the first and second trips were around the world.

There will be two thousand delegates from United States and Canada.

Arrest Many On Liquor Charges In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, May 31. — Philadelphia is leading the cities of the United States in the number of seized breweries according to information given out by federal prohibition agents. During the past month thirteen breweries are reported to have been seized by the federal agents throughout the country and of that number eight of them are reported to be in and about Philadelphia The Philadelphia district during the period was second to New York in the number cases carried out by agents. In addition to this, revocation proceedings have been begun against ninety-one alcohol dealers, it is reported.

If the plans as stated by the federal agents are carried out, Philadephia is going to be "thoroughly cleaned up" in this respect before the drive of the agents is brought to a close

NEBRASKA SCHOOL OF BUSINESS.

Miss Helen Stacy, office secretary, went to her home in Iowa, Friday, for a few days' visit with relatives.

Miss Doten of the faculty is spending the week at her home in Albion, where she went to attend the wedding of her sister, on May 28.

The Normal training class, under the direction of Miss Gertrude Beers, has been busy with Gregg shorthand teachers' examinations, the past week.

Miss Ethel McAfee, N. S. B. Normal, '23, has been elected to a commercial teaching position in the Omaha schools, according to word received at the college office.

The new term, beginning June 2, is starting out very promisingly. A second section will be organized Monday, June 9, for those unable to register earlier.

Miss Ione C. Duffy, owner of the Van Sant School of Business, Omaha, was a guest of the faculty at the N. S. B. banquet and graduating exercises, Thursday evening. She also visited the college Friday morning.

Word has been received at the college of the wedding of Miss Edith Ferguson was graduated from the normal department of N. S. B., with the class of 1923, and for the past year has been in charge of the commercial department of the high school at Osceola.

The annual commencement exercises of the Nebraska School of Business were held at the Social Science building May 29 Adrian M. Newers, the chief speaker of the evening, holding the audience spell-bound with his dramatic rendition of "To Him That hath." The class numbered one hundred forty, eliminating all duplicated names. This is an increase of eighteen per cent over the number graduating in 1923, and seventy-two per cent more than in 1918, when the plan of holding formal graduating exercises was first inaugurated by the school. The musical numbers by Misses Coniglio Misko, and Bartunek were enthusiastically received, and the accompaniments by Misses Wagner and Heald were greatly appreciated. Miss Gardner, principal of the stenographic department, and Mr. Bryant, principal of the commercial department, assisted President Blakesiee in presenting the diplomas

Music to Feature Los Angeles Meet Of Women's Clubs

LOS ANGELES, May 31. — Music hath it charms and also a meaning, according to the musical program arranged for the seventeenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs, here, June 3 to 13.

Mrs. Max Oberndorfer, chairman of the division of music, has arranged for the appearance here on the evening of June 10 of Raymond Koch, prominent baritone. Koch will also appear under the fine arts department of the convention on the afternoon of June 11. He will give a demonstration of English opera, showing the difference between a dramatic aria and a quiet one, both being taken from folk music.

James Gordon, concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will make a special trip here to play at one of the opening musical evenings.

On the fine arts program, a group of modern American compositions will be played by Amy Neill, an American violinist who has created a sensation in European musical centers.

A group of folk songs of all nations and the Haberna from the opera "Carmen" will be sung by Olga Slobodskaja at one program arranged by the foreign relations division.

Grabrilowitsch, the noted pianist, will also play during the convention, rounding out a musical program of talented artists.

Actress Has Tinney Arrested

IMOGENE WILSON & FRANK TINNEY

Frank Tinney, internationally famous black-faced comedian has been arrested in New York City, charged with felonious assault on Imogene Wilson, beautiful chorus girl in The Follies. She charged that Tinney beat her up in her apartment, and her physician declared she looked as if an automobile had struck her. The girl, who admitted she was desperately in love with Tinney, had previously staged a "suicide" party but the "poison" she took was a harmless sugar-coated pill.

NEW YORK, May 31.—As he left the court room of Magistrate Henry. Goodman today after his arraignment on a charge of assault preferred by Imogene Wilson, beautiful blonde haired star of the "Follies," papers in a $100,000 civil action were served on Frank Tinney, widely known comedian.

"The loveliest girl on Broadway," alleged Tinney called at her apartment last Tuesday night, summoned her to come and kiss him and then struck her with his fists.

Edna Davenport, an actress, and Tinney's wife, was in court when the comedian was examined.

"People vs. Frank Tinney."

As a court officer held open a side door, Imogene, "the most beautiful blonde on Broadway," appeared. Flanked on one side by her nurse, Miss Emma Lovely, on the other, by her sister, Mrs. A. C. Rondeau.

"Where is the defendant?" asked Magistrate Goodman.

Counsel for the comedian stepped hurriedly and said.

"He's better be here in a minute or I'll forfeit his bail," declared the magistrate.

Then Tinney entered and pleaded not guilty.

After arguments by counsel, Magistrate Goodman set the hearing for June 6.

As Tinney turned to leave, he was served with papers in the civil suit.

Attorney Herman explained:

"Damages which your teeth and fists inflicted upon the body of Miss Wilson."

"My God, this is awful," the comedian declared.

Champion Coffee Maker Tells Her Secret Process

LONDON, May 31.—Wet the coffee before putting it into the percolator.

That is the secret of good coffee, vouchsafed by Mrs. Mary Quinn who, having won first prize in Jamaica for her brew, has been imported to London to show the Empire exhibition at Wembley how to do it.

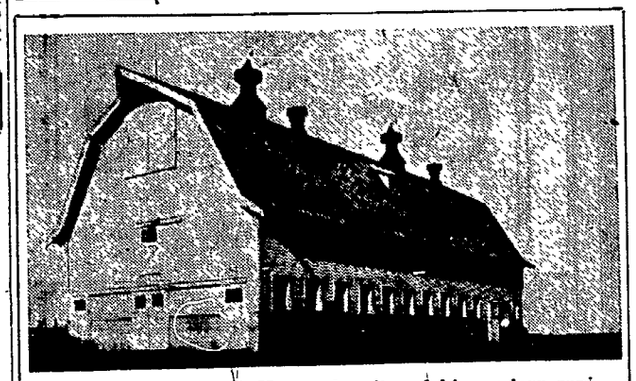

Mrs. Quin believes in the percolator. The only trouble with it, she says, is that it lets the best of the coffee escape in aroma. The boiling water coming up through the coffee grounds tosses off in steam the most delicate part of the berry. It smells good, but the result is just that much weaker. And so, she says wet the grounds before placing them in the percolator.

The old way is all right, she says. The old formula, one tablespoonful of coffee to one cup of water, has never been beaten. But if you wet the grounds before placing them in the percolator, you can save that extra spoonful which your mother always dedicated to the "pot."

A SLACKENING IN BUSINESS WORLD

"Political Halt" Making Its Effect Felt In The Industrial World.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The "political halt" in the business world became more apparent this week. Production figures were lower and activity on the New York stock exchange slackened to a marked degree.

In the international money market Holland furnished a feature by exporting $21,000,000 worth of gold to the United States against exportation of $14,000,000 by Britain, normally the leader.

Japanese securities were less popular on American markets because of the excusion law protests. Both sterling and francs declined.

Liberty bonds were generally low. New flotations of utility and industrial bonds for the week totalled $108,000,000.

The money rate dropped during the week to 2¾ per cent, the lowest in two years.

The stock market marked time The average price of twenty representative industrial shares was 91.79 against 98.97 last week. The average for twenty rails was 82.56 against 83.25 last week.

Heavier demand than for ecars had indicated sent wheat and corn up during the week. The visible supply of wheat decreased by more than 2,000,000 bushels. Work shipments were under 14,000,000 bushels.

Continued cold weather, was a bullish cotton market influence.

Commodity prices were lower during the week. Steel production declined, but prices were steady. Pig iron prices were slightly lower.

HAVELOCK NOTES

Roy Dillon, former principal in the high school, who has been visiting friends here for the past week, left Friday for Bern, Kansas, where he will be married Wednesday to Miss Ethel Minger, of that place. They will go to Kansas City for the Shriners' convention, then to Jet, Okla., to visit Mr. Dillon's parents, and to Yellowstone Park, where they will spend the greater part of the summer. Miss Minger has been teacher of journalism in the Kansas City schools for several years.

The Central Lancaster County Farmers club met at the Methodist church parlors Wednesday about 150 attending. The West Shason group was in charge. Rev. H. C. Kellon of Ithica spoke. The hosts and hostesses for the day were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. York, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Young, Fred Fender, Charles Wageman, Ed Hoffman, Joe Hedges, Fred Johnson, E. A. Cochell and E. K. Young.

The Golden Rod Delphian chapter met Monday night at the city library for its regular meeting. The leader was Mrs. R. E. Ashman, and the subject "The Medo-Persian Empire." "The Medes," Blanche Hecht; "Cyrus the Great," Miss Johanson; "Persian Religion and Customs," Easther Portlock; "Mesopotamia," Mrs. C. L. Stanley; "Phoenecian Colonies," Mrs. Harry Tyler; "Phoenecian Civilization," Mrs. George DeLong; "Description of Syria," Mrs. H. F. Hecht, were on the program. The next meeting wil lbe held June 9 with Mrs. F. D. Brown as leader.

The O. E. S. gave its annual May party Thursday night at the Masonic hall. A program was given and lunch served, after which music was provided for those who wished to dance. The first on the program was a May pole dance and an "Overall and Apron Drill" given by the following young ladies: Misses Eva and Elsie Anderson, Koa and Joa Young, Helen Jacobs, Ada Bell, Irene Taylor, Gertrude Boehme, Elinor Ackerman, Eva Hermanson, Clara McKinney and Mrs. Helen McDonald. Vocal solos were given by Miss Vesta Summers, a musical reading by Maxine Maddy, vocal solo, Miss EleanorAckerman; vocal solo, Miss Helen Jacobs; musical reading, Eva Burns; and a playlet by three university girls.

Rev. and Mrs. Tucker, who left Fraday for Lexington, Ky., where Mr. Tucker will go into the education work at Transylvania university, were given a farewell reception at the Christian church Wednesday evening at the close of the Wednesday evening Bible study by the congregation. Rev. Mr. Van Valkenburgh and Rev. Mr. Randall were guests. Refreshments were served and Rev. and Mrs. Tucker presented by Harry Stiles with a beautiful chest of silver as a remembrance from the congregation.

Wives Of Miners Run Stills While Men Are At Work

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 31.—Women are the unwiling, but numerous violators of the prohibition laws in this section of the anthracite coal region, according to welfare agencies who have started a drive to aid the wives of foreign born workers who are compelled by their husbands to operate stills while the men are in the mines.

Testimony which came to light in Police courts caused the welfare workers to start an investigation which shows that hundreds of women are unwilling accomplices of their "men" in making moonshine, but are afraid to inform the police or even testify when they are arrested.

Most of the smaller stills in homes here, according to the welfare workers, are among the class of people where the wife and mother have been raised to obey unquestionably.

The Lehigh Valley Coal company recently issued orders that tenants who operate stills in company houses will be summarily ejected and other coal companies are waging campaigns to wipe out the numerous illicit moonshine stills.

According to Captain Clark, commanding the state police here, there are more stills in operation in the anthracite region that any other section of the country. Exploding stills have caused a dozen deaths within the past years and deaths from poison whisky have mounted alarmingly, the coroner reports.

Margaret Brown To Attend World S. S. Convention

Miss Margaret Ellen Brown

Miss Margaret Brown, secretary of the Nebraska State Sunday School association, will leave Lincoln Wednesday for Montreal to sail on the steamer Doric, June 7, for Liverpool, for a stay of a couple of days and then on to Glasgow to attend the World Sunday School convention, held in that city June 18 to 26. Miss Brown will be accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Oastler of Howells, Neb., Mrs. J. Henry Stitt of Grand Island and Rev. Leon Dudley of Kearney.

After the convention the party will see the sights in Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land, arriving in New York September 16 and Lincoln about the 21st.

These conventions occur every four years and this is the ninth one to be held. Miss Brown attended the las tone in Tokio, Japan. This is her third trip across; the first and second trips were around the world.

There will be two thousand delegates from United States and Canada.

Arrest Many On Liquor Charges In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, May 31. — Philadelphia is leading the cities of the United States in the number of seized breweries ,according to information given out by federal prohibition agents. During the past month thirteen breweries are reported to have been seized by th fdral agents throughout the country and of that number eight of them are reported to be in and about Philadelphia The Philadelphia district during the period was second to New York in the number cases carried out by agents. In addition to this, revocation proceedings have been begun against nineyone alcohol dealers, it is reported.

If the plans as stated by the federal agents are carried out, Philadephia is going to be "thoroughly cleaned up" in this respect before the drive of the agents is brought to a close.

NEBRASKA SCHOOL OF BUSINESS.

Miss Helen Stacy, office secretary, went to her home in Iowa, Friday, for a few days' visit with relatives.

Miss Doten of the faculty is spending the week at her home in Albion, where she went to attend the wedding of her sister, on May 28.

The Normal training class, under the direction of Miss Gertrude Beers, has been busy with Gregg shorthand teachers' examinations, the past week.

Miss Ethel McAfee, N. S. B. Normal, '23, has been elected to a commercial teaching position in the Omaha schools, according to word received at the college office.

The new term, beginning June 2, is starting out very promisingly. A second section will be organized Monday, June 9, for those unable to register earlier.

Miss Ione C. Duffy, owner of the Van Sant School of Business, Omaha, was a guest of the faculty at the N. S. B. banquet and graduating exercises, Thursday evening. She also visited the college Friday morning.

Word has been received at the college of the wedding of Miss Edith Ferguson was graduated from the normal department of N. S. B., with the class of 1923, and for the past year has been in charge of the commercial department of the high school at Osceola.

The annual commencement exercises of the Nebraska School of Business were held at the Social Science building May 29. Adrian M. Newers, the chief speaker of the evening, held the audience spell-bound with his dramatic rendition of "To Him That hath." The class numbered one hundred forty, elminating all duplicated names. This is an increase of eighteen per cent over the number graduating in 1923, and seventy-two per cent more than in 1918, when the plan of holding formal graduating exercises was first inaugurated by the school. The musical numbers by Misses Coniglio Misko, and Bartunek were enthusiastically received, and the accompaniments by Misses Wagner and Heald were greatly appreciated. Miss Gardner, principal of the stenographic department, and Mr. Bryant, principal of the commercial department, assisted President Blakeslee in presenting the diplomas.

LOS ANGELES, May 31. — Music hath it charms and also a meaning, according to the musical program arranged for the seventeenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs, here, June 3 to 13.

Mrs. Max Oberndorfer, chairman of the division of music, has arranged for the appearance here on the evening of June 10 of Raymond Koch, prominent baritone. Koch will also appear under the fine arts department of the convention on the afternoon of June 11. He will give a demonstration of English opera, showing the difference between a dramatic aria and a quiet one, both being taken from folk music.

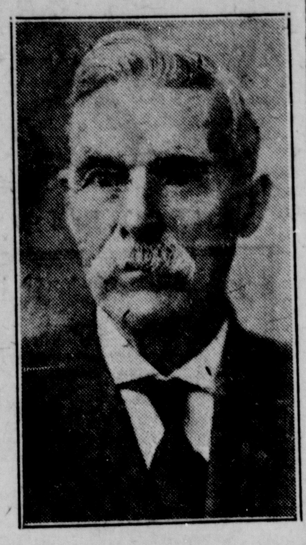

James Gordon, concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will make a special trip here to play at one of the opening musical evenings.

On the fine arts program, a group of modern American compositions will be played by Amy Neill, an American violinist who has created a sensation in European musical centers.

A group of folk songs of all nations and the Haberna from the opera "Carmen" will be sung by Olga Slobodskaja at one program arranged by the foreign relations division.

Grabrilowitsch, the noted pianist, will also play during the convention, rounding out a musical program of talented artists.

Actress Has Tinney Arrested

IMOGENE WILSON & FRANK TINNEY

Frank Tinney, internationally famous black-faced comedian has been arrested in New York City, charged with felonious assault on Imogene Wilson, beautiful chorus girl in The Follies. She charged that Tinney beat her up in her apartment, and her physician declared she looked as if an automobile had struck her. The girl, wh oadmitted she was desperately in love with Tinney, had previously staged a "suicide" party but the "poison" she took was a harmless sugar-coated pill.

NEW YORK, May 31.—As he left the court room of Magistrate Henry Goodman today after his arraignment on a charge of assault preferred by Imogene Wilson, beautiful blonde haired star of the "Follies," papers in a $100,000 civil action were served on Frank Tinney, widely known comedian.

"The loveliest girl on Broadway," alleged Tinney called at her apartment last Tuesday night, summoned her to come and kiss him and then struck her with his fists.

Edna Davenport, an actress, and Tinney's wife, was in court when the comedian was examined.

"People vs. Frank Tinney."

As a court officer held open a side door, Imogene, "the most beautiful blonde on Brbadway," appeared. Flanked on one side by her nurse, Miss Emma Lovely, on the other, by her sister, Mrs. A. C. Rondeau.

"Where is the defendant?" asked Magistrate Goodman.

Counsel for the comedian stepped hurriedly and said.

"He's better be here in a minute or I'll forfeit his bail," declared the magistrate.

Then Tinney entered and pleaded not guilty.

After arguments by counsel, Magistrate Goodman set the hearing for June 6.

As Tinney turned to leave, he was served with papers in the civil suit.

Attorney Herman explained:

"Damages which your teeth and fists inflicted upon the body of Miss Wilson."

"My God, this is awful," the comedian declared.

Champion Coffee Maker Tells Her Secret Process

LONDON, May 31.—Wet the coffee before putting it into the percolator.

That is the secret of good coffee, vouchsafed by Mrs. Mary Quinn who, having won first prize in Jamaica for her brew, has been imported to London to show the Empire exhibition at Wembley how to do it.

Mrs. Quin believes in the percolator. The only trouble with it, she says, is that it lets the best of the coffee escape in aroma. The boiling water coming up through the coffee grounds tosses off in steam the most delicate part of the berry. It smells good, but the result is just that much weaker. And so, she says wet the grounds before placing them in the percolator.

The old way is all right, she says. The old formula, one tablespoonful of coffee to one cup of water, has never been beaten. But if you wet the grounds before placing them in the percolator, you can save that extra spoonful which your mother always dedicated to the "pot."

AUTO BRAKES ARE TO BE INSPECTED

The Lincoln Automobile club is planning a week of inspection of brakes on all automobiles in the city of Lincoln for the week June 9 to 14. This inspection will be made by expert mechanics, who will stand on the running board of the car while the driver attains the speed of twenty miles an hour. As the car crosses a white line on the pavement, the driver will apply his brakes and endeavor to stop his car within thirty-seven feet for cars with two wheel brakes and in a distance of 22.4 feet for cars with four wheel brakes.

If the driver succeeds in making the stop as prescribed, he will be given a sticker to place on his windshield, showing that his brakes are in good condition. Should he fail to make the stop in the prescribed distance, he will be given free advice and inspection of his brakes. This is a safety measure fostered by the club and similar inspections are being made in other cities throughout the United States, in an attempt to reduce the number of accidents.

It is piannd to have a booth erected and the white lines drawn on Q street between Fourtenth and Sixtenth streets An attempt will be made to have every motor vehicle in Lincoln, pass through this inspection, sometime between Monday, June 9, and Saturday June 14. There is nothing compulsory about the inspection.

While the inspection is being sponsored by the Lincoln Automobile club, it will receive the support and cooperation of the Lincoln Motor Trades association and the city police force and will be under the personal supervision of W. G. Cavanough of Detroit.

CHRYSLER MAKES SPEEDY ROAD RUN

Distance covered by amotor car on the road within a given time depends more on outstanding flexibility and ease of handling than on sheer speed. This was strikingly illustrated recently when a Chrysler Six averaged 51 42 miles an hour in a test road run of 94.1 miles between Portsmouth and Columbus, Ohio, without being allowed to travel more than 65 miles an hour at any time.

The run is regarded by officials of the Chrysler Motor corporation as being one of the most important tests of an automobile's roadability ever attempted.

Few people realize, these officials point out, that the distance a motor car can cover in a given time is not nearly as much a question of its speed as of its flexibility—or rapid change of speed and easy handling, fast pick up and ability to keep out of threatened traffic tangles.

During the trip the Chrysler had to go through four right angle, underground railroad crossings, around fifteen right angle corners, through eight incorporated towns, five unincorporated villages, and over six railroad crossings The quickness and precision with which it could be slowed down at these various points and again raised to a fast pace is shown in the fact that it averaged more than 50 miles an hour without traveling more than 65, and though higher speed could have been attained, the run was one of the half dozen fastest ever made by an automobile in a distance road test. It was by far the fastest ever made between Portsmouth and Columbus.

The test was the result of a wager between R. G. Johnson, vice president of the dealer company, who drove the car, and three wealthy Portsmouth men who believed it was not possible for any automobile to make the run in less than two hours.

Ira Miller Is Now Engaged In Battery Business

Former Sheriff Ira Miller has purchased the Ziegler Battery business at 1609 N street from Guy Ziegler and is now in charge of the establishment. Mr. Miller will engage in the general battery and electrical business, for which he prepared himself by special course of study after his administration as sheriff. Mr. Miller will continue the Ziegler standard of service in the manufacture, repairing and re-charging of batteries. He will also handle radio batteries.

SPARK PLUG WEEK TO START JUNE 1

National Campaign to Convince Motorist of Need to Change Them.

Slumping Motor Gradually Losing Its Vitality Is a Symptom.

In an attempt to convince motorists that because spark plugs have not worn out within a year or after 8,000 to 10,000 miles of driving is no reason why they should not be changed at the end of that time, a national spark plug week is to be held from June 1 to 7.

Intensive experiments by manufacturers go to prove that after delivering the spark from 600 to 1,500 times per minute in a temperature averaging 1,300 degrees Fahrenheit, and undergoing the stress of the strokes for a long period, the efficiency of a plug is gradually deteriorated. The spark plug will continue to fire and ignite the gas, but combustion is not nearly so complete.

The chemical action of the residue which clings to the core of the plug after the combustion also tends to weaken the spark by causing surface leakage.

Because of the tremendous heat and incessant sparking, the electrodes are pitted and oxidized and the electrical resistance is materially weakened

All this takes place slowly, and the motorist is hardly aware that his engine is gradually losing vitality. It slumps on the upgrades, and lacks its old snap and punch as the unconsumed gasoline seeps past pistons and dilutes the oil in the crank shaft. Sluggishness, slower acceleration and lack of pickup are indications of the gradual loss of power.

To many motorists, the purchase of a new set of spark plugs comes as a revelation. The difference is unmistakable, and the cost of the new plugs is actually made up by the savings in gasoline and oil.

A factory expert of the Champion Spark Plug company, whose wares are distributed in this territory by the Nebraska Buick company, has been in Lincoln to explain these reasons why the plugs should be changed yearly. Dealers are stocking up on spark plugs ,said the expert, at this time of year, so that this is the period in which autoists should make their purchase.

Loss of Power.

The principal causes of power leakage are:
Dragging brakes.
Improper timing.
Weak compression
Overheating of the engine.
Defects in the ignition circuit.
Lack of sufficient lubrication
Carbon in the engine or valves.
Improper adjustment of the valves.
Lack of traction on wet roads or sandy surfaces
Too much friction in the transmission or differential
Air leaks in the connection between the carburetor, manifold or cylinder blocks.

Any of these can be remedied with comparatively little trouble and at small expense, and it is always well to have the job attended to as soon as possible to save gasoline which otherwise would be wasted.

Fan Belt Care.

A fan belt will give best service if it is kept soft and pliable by dressing it once a month with neatsfoot oil. This application will allow the belt to drive the fan without slipping.

Partly inflate a tube before placing it in a casing. Insert it carefully, the side bearing the stem always being kept in sight.

Says Battery Needs Going Over Same As Other Parts of Car

June days, spring fever and the wander-lust go hand in hand and between ten and twelve million auto owners are tinkering with their cars, getting them in shape for summer trips to cure their restlessness and longing for new scenes.

Cars that have gone through the winter are in the shop for overhauling and painting. Cars that were laid up for the winter are being put in shape for the summer use.

"That is as it should be," says J. L. Robb, local Willard storage battery dealer. "But while giving the rest of the car a thorough going over, many motorists forget about the battery, hidden away underneath the floor boards or seat.

"The storage battery is the most neglected thing in the average motorist's car," Mr Robb says. "Out of sight, out of mind, must have first been said said about a storageb attery. Motorists who are wise will have their battery examined before starting out on that fishing trip or vacation tour," he says.

Mr. Robb says his battery station is prepared to care for all battery needs from a new one to fit any car and any pocketbook down to a filling with water for those who need nothing else.

Danger of Inflating Old Tires.

A motorist is in constant danger when inflating a tire that has been repaired. Stand away from the rim. If the tire has not been properly mounted, or if by chance the rim has become badly stretched or defective, a serious accident may occur if the tire blows off the rim.

The well-cared-for car that has been so unfortunate as to have been involved in an accident always gets the benefit of the doubt over the mud-splashed, rusty, rattling one.

Time to Rebore

When the crankcase begins to emit smoke on hills through the breather tube or the oil filler pipe, it is a sign that the engine gasses are leaking past the rings into the crankcase Motorists are sometimes told that this is due to running on too thin oil and are misled accordingly.

Greater Speed

Greater speed and faster pick-up are immediately noticeable if a new set of Champion spark plugs are installed. You will know genuine Champions by the double-ribbed sillimanite core. Champion X is 60 cents. Blue Box 75 cents.

Facts That May Save You Hundreds Of Dollars On Your Next Car

Here is another countershaft. It is mounted in a brass bushing. Eventually it will wear; the bushing will be replaced; the repair bill—the position is difficult of access—will be called exorbitant.

There you have invisible value contrasted with invisible costs.

Possessed of these facts, your course is clear.

If any car—no matter what its principle of design may be—no matter what its price—can show parts and processes equal to the Hupmobile and match it in performance, reliability, durability and economy—then, and then only, are you warranted in investing money in the other car.

In an attempt to convince motorists that because spark plugs have not worn out within a year or after 8,000 to 10,000 miles of driving is no reason why they should not be changed at the end of that time, a national spark plug week is to be held from June 1 to 7.

Intensive experiments by manufacturers go to prove that after delivering the spark from 600 to 1,500 times per minute in a temperature averaging 1,300 degrees Fahrenheit, and undergoing the stress of the strokes for a long period, the efficiency of a plug is gradually deteriorated. The spark plug will continue to fire and ignite the gas, but combustion is not nearly so complete.

The chemical action of the residue which clings to the core of the plug after the combustion also tends to weaken the spark by causing surface leakage.

Because of the tremendous heat and incessant sparking, the electrodes are pitted and oxidized and the electrical resistance is materially weakened.

All this takes place slowly, and the motorist is hardly aware that his engine is gradually losing vitality. It slumps on the upgrades, and lacks its old snap and punch as the unconsumed gasoline seeps past pistons and dilutes the oil in the crank shaft. Sluggishness, slower acceleration and lack of pickup are indications of the gradual loss of power.

To many motorists, the purchase of a new set of spark plugs comes as a revelation. The difference is unmistakable, and the cost of the new plugs is actually made up by the savings in gasoline and oil.

A factory expert of the Champion Spark Plug company, whose wares are distributed in this territory by the Nebraska Buick company, has been in Lincoln to explain these reasons why the plugs should be changed yearly. Dealers are stocking up on spark plugs ,said the expert, at this time of year, so that this is the period in which autoists should make their purchase.

Loss of Power.

The principal causes of power leakage are:

Dragging brakes.
Improper timing.
Weak compression.
Overheating of the engine.
Defects in the ignition circuit.
Lack of sufficient lubrication.
Carbon in the engine or valves.
Improper adjustment of the valves.
Lack of traction on wet roads or sandy surfaces.
Too much friction in the transmission or differential.
Air leaks in the connection between the carburetor, manifold or cylinder blocks.

Any of these can be remedied with comparativeiy little trouble and at small expense, and it is always well to have the job attended to as soon as possible to save gasoline which otherwise would be wasted.

Fan Belt Care.

A fan belt will give best service if it is kept soft and pliable by dressing it once a month with neatsfoot oil. This application will allow the belt to drive the fan without slipping.

Partly inflate a tube before placing it in a casing. Insert it carefully, the side bearing the stem always being kept in sight.

Says Battery Needs Going Over Same As Other Parts of Car

June days, spring fever and the wander-lust go hand in hand and between ten and twelve million auto owners are tinkering with their cars, getting them in shape for summer trips to cure their restlessness and longing for new scenes.

Cars that have gone through the winter are in the shop for overhauling and painting. Cars that were laid up for the winter are being put in shape for the summer use.

"That is as it should be," says J. L. Robb, local Willard storage battery dealer. "But while giving the rest of the car a thorough going rest of the car a thorough going over, many motorists forget about the battery, hidden away underneath the floor boards or seat.

"The storage battery is the most neglected thing in the average motorist's car," Mr. Robb says. "Out of sight, out of mind, must have first been said said about a storageb attery. Motorists who are wise will have their battery examined before starting out on that fishing trip or vacation tour," he says.

Mr. Robb says his battery station is prepared to care for all battery needs from a new one to fit any car and any pocketbook down to a filling with water for those who need nothing else.

Danger of Inflating Old Tires.

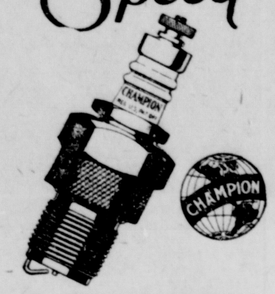

A motorist is in constant danger when inflating a tire that has been repaired. Stand away from the rim. If the tire has not been properly mounted, or if by chance the rim has become badly stretched or defective, a serious accident may occur if the tire blows off the rim.

The well-cared-for car that has been so unfortunate as to have been involved in an accident always gets the benefit of the doubt over the mud-splashed, rusty, rattling one.

Time to Rebore.

When the crankcase begins to emit smoke on hills through the breather tube or the oil filler pipe, it is a sign that the engine gasses are leaking past the rings into the crankcase. Motorists are sometimes told that this is due to running on too thin oil and are misled accordingly.

CHRYSLER MAKES SPEEDY ROAD RUN

Distance covered by amotor car on the road within a given time depends more on outstanding flexibility and ease of handling than on sheer speed. This was strikingly illustrated recently when a Chrysler Six averaged 51.42 miles an hour in a test road run of 94.1 miles between Portsmouth and Columbus, Ohio, without being allowed to travel more than 65 miles an hour at any time.

The run is regarded by officials of the Chrysler Motor corporation as being one of the most important tests of an automobile's roadability ever attempted.

Few people realize, these officials point out, that the distance a motor car can cover in a given time is not nearly as much a question of its speed as of its flexibility—or rapid change of speed and easy handling, fast pick up and ability to keep out of threatened traffic tangles.

During the trip the Chrysler had to go through four right angle underground railroad crossings, around fifteen right angle corners, through eight incorporated towns, five unincorporated villages, and over six railroad crossings. The quickness and precision with which it could be slowed down at these various points and again raised to a fast pace is shown in the fact that it averaged more than 50 miles an hour without traveling more than 65, and though higher speed could have been attained, the run was one of the half dozen fastest ever made by an automobile in a distance road test. It was by far the fastest ever made between Portsmouth and Columbus.

The test was the result of a wager between R. G. Johnson, vice president of the dealer company, who drove the car, and three wealthy Portsmouth men who believed it was not possible for any automobile to make the run in less than two hours.

Hupmobile

Countershaft with Roller Bearings: These bearings are the high-duty roller type, made of chrome nickel steel—the costly, long-wearing metal used in all roller, taper and annular bearings in the Hupmobile. Common practice uses plain bushings at this point. These do not cost as much, but neither are they so durable, by many times, as Hupmobile chrome nickel steel.

Worth Money to You

Facts That May Save You Hundreds Of Dollars On Your Next Car

Here is another countershaft. It is mounted in a brass bushing. Eventually it will wear; the bushing will be replaced; the repair bill—the position is difficult of access—will be called exorbitant.

There you have invisible value contrasted with invisible costs.

Possessed of these facts, your course is clear.

If any car—no matter what its principle of design may be—no matter what its price—can show parts and processes equal to the Hupmobile and match it in performance, reliability, durability and economy—then, and then only, are you warranted in investing money in the other car.

PHI KAPPA PHI HOLDS BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Nebraska Wesleyan chapter of Phi Kappa Phi was held Saturday evening, May 31, in the dining rooms of the First Methodist Episcopal church in University Place. Prof. W. L. Ruyle presided as president of the chapter.

The newly elected members of the chapter were present as follows: Leslie Deal, Davenport; Margaret Bogle, Arthur Johnson, University Place; Marie Howell, McCook; Beatrice Walters, Corning, Mo.; Cecil Farnham, Central City; Lillie Norlin, University Place; Wilma Cook, Elmwood; Mary L. French, Page; Polley Ann Bignell, Cedar Bluffs, and Gladys Russell, Tekamah. Lotan H. DeWolf of York who was also elected to membership of the faculty are Professors Glenn Callen, Rose B. Clark and Bennett M. Hollowell.

The address of the evening was made by Prof. P. H. Grumann of the state university who spoke on "The New Humanism."

"The deepest tragedy of Jesus was not the supreme sacrifice that has engaged the imagination of men for centuries. Martyrdom has its own sweet reward but to see one's teachings misinterpreted and incorrectly applied is indeed Promethean torture," said Mr. Grummann. Had Jesus lived to see the strange distortions that were made of his simple, beautiful, common sense gospel his wrath might well have exceeded that which he showed when he drove the money changers from the temple.

"Nowhere is the irony misinterpretation more glaring than in connection with the great basic message of Jesus: 'I am come that they may have the life more abundant.' Scarcely had he laid down his life for this principle, when the primitive church began narrowing life and cheating it out of some of its most precious privileges," he declared.

"Springing up in the days of imperialistic madness, the church was unfriendly to the gross debauchery practiced by the drones of a corrupt state. Poverty and renunciation were elevated into virtues. Men surrendered many things that minister to the life more abundant. Deep distrust of Christianity began for the physical life. In the best days of Greece and Rome the physical life had been the basis of sound mental and spiritual activity, when men began to deteriorate physically they became atrophied in spiritual matters. Man lost his sense of beauty. Outward nature did not minister to his imagination for the eyes that might reveal such things were in danger of lapsing into sinful ways.

"It has taken many centuries to outgrow the stupid limitations thrown around life by the misguided followers of him who came to bring us life 'more abundant.' That early Christianity failed to articulate with the gains that Greece had made for mankind is one of the greatest misfortunes of human history, the full significance of which we are just beginning to realize.

"No one who takes life prosaically can share in the life more abundant. Life abundant lies in the realms of make-believe, of poetry, of the imagination. It was his sound common sense that made Jesus realize that the life more abundant is essentially the religious life. Nor can the life more abundant be realized without relating one's self to the world and the universe. The importance of the religious consciousness has never been exemplified better than in the early nineteenth century. The remarkable literature sprang up in England, Germany and France as a result of the pantheism which found God in nature. Pantheism was at its best an imperfect philosophy. Its religious influence was singularly potent.

"The crucial error of materialism is that it is unproductive in the realm of the better and more permanent things of life. We are facing a reaction against the pantheism of the last century. I believe that we shall place man himself rather than nature in the forefront of our interest. We have been seeking and finding God in nature and we are now trying to find him in human beings. This new humanism that is exciting our thinkers has a decidely progressive ring. It means that man should become better that a future of still better men may become possible. The new humanism means to utilize all of the advances that were made by pantheism with its splendid reverence for nature but it relates nature back to man."

MANY IDLE IN JAPAN.

GENEVA, May 31.—Japan has filed with the international labor bureau, detailed information on the state of unemployment that has been caused there by the earthquake of last year. The statement places at 13,000 the number of factories that were destroyed and which threw out of employment over 100,000 workmen.

FARM CHILDREN HERE FOR WEEK

Three Hundred Boys and Girls Club Crampions Will Arrive Monday.

Program By Agricultural College Will Include Instruction And Fun.

Three hundred boys and girls who have won the county championships in their home counties in the various phases of boys and girls club work will be in Lincoln Monday to attend the ninth annual Boys and Girls club work at the Agricultural college. They will spend the day registering and visiting every part of the College Campus under the guidance of the university 4-H club, a group of former club members now in the University of Nebraska.

Most of these boys and girls have a part or all of their expenses paid by some business organization which is interested in promoting more and better club work. L. I. Frisbie, state extension agent in club work, will have charge of the program for the week.

Mothers need not worry about what will happen to their children during the week away from home, because every one of the boys and girls will be under the supervision of members of the agricultural extension force both day and night. The youngsters will stay together in groups during the day and sleep in the buildings on the college campus at night. This practice has been followed in previous club weeks with satisfactory results and those in charge this year have all had previous experience

The boys and girls range in age from twelve to nineteen years old. Each of them who comes with his expenses paid has been awarded the trip for the excellence of club work in 1923 Mornings will be spent in classes at the college and afternoons in visits to places of interest in Lincoln. Friday will be spent in Omaha.

tice of their intention to fight this now famous case up through the court of review, the house of bishops and ultimately, if necessary, to the civil courts.

Dibble Score Stand.

"Are you," asked Charles L. Dibble, the church advocate, addressing the bishops today, "going to accept this strange and unreal profession of faith? You cannot, and then tell little children they must say prayers to Jesus in order that they may be saved. Bishop Brown says there is no Jesus and if you find him innocent you condone that view.

"The issue here is not one of fundamentalism and modernism. It is a very narrow issue. It is whether Bishop Brown is guilty of teaching doctrine contrary to the church. His book (Communism and Christianism) is a negation of everything the church stands for."

The court answered the prosecutor's plea by stalking grimly in this afternoon, and, amid a deathlike silence in the hall, pronouncing the following:

"The court having fully heard the allegations and the proof * * * and having deliberately considered the same * * * does hereby pronounced and record its decision and judgment as follows.

Find Accused "Guilty."

"The accused is guilty of holding and teaching publicly and advisedly, doctrine contrary to that held by the Protestant Episcopal of the United States of America in the manner and form as set forth in the presentment as to each of the specifications and charges."

The charges consisted of twenty-three excerpts from "Communism and Christianism," giving Bishop Brown's newly found philosophy.

The decision was unanimous on the part of the court, headed by Bishop Murray of Maryland.

Backed with the philosophy of Darwin, Spencer, Hume, Haeckel and Ingersoll, he attacked the historical correctness of the Scriptures from every point of view in an endeavor to show how modern science and improved thought have demonstrated the fallibility of the Bible.

"Why teach children," he said passionately, "that God made the world out of nothing and rested like a common laborer after six days, when in their schools they are being taught the truth—that this planet was thrown off the revolving sun, a molten mass, one hundred thousand years ago."

Traces Back Miracles.

With great logic and fervor, he took up various miracles of the Scriptures and traced them back to the ancient fables of mythology and demonstrated how they at last found a place in the book that was written after the Christian era

"as on the ground of the Twentieth century child. Don't tell them they ground that I appeal to you," he said, must believe literally these beautiful stories of the Scriptures. They are learning differently. The great light of science is shining brighter day by day. Science has dispelled many old beliefs Standards are changing and the world progresses. What is the church doing to progress with it and minister to present day needs?

"Thousands even now are turning away from the church. Out beyond this hall is a great mass of unbelievers and skeptics. Let them in. Open the door and they will come for religion is inherent in man's nature. But they will not come if you persistently shut your ears to facts and like ostriches bury your heads in the sand."

Verdict Was Expected.

Bishop Brown accepted the verdict with equanimity. He had expected it from the first and had his expectation confirmed when he paid a private visit to the bishops as they consulted in a private room. He asked them if they were going to find him guilty and they told him yes He simply said he was sorry.

Later he said:

"It is not I, but the church, that has been condemned here today. I thinks it will be the last heresy trial in this country. Never before has the church endeavored to combat science and it will not again It does not dare to.

"I have not wished to fight the church or force it to accept my views I have gone into and through with this because I love the church and the masses it should serve. I want to see it freed from th chandicap of an uncertain lateralism, s othat it may shed its blessings in every age, according to best thought o fthat age as developed by advancing science.

"We have failed utterly to draw from the church any standard of orthodoxy. But this failure is our greatest victory, for it shows the church does not dare to define its orthodoxy for fear of the thousands who would automatidically be driven away.

"Every new thought is shocking and so long as the church assumes to set limits of human thinking, it must exhaust its time in hunting heretics instead of ministering to the needs and aspirations of mankind."

OIL COMBINE SUIT PUSHED WITH ALL SPEED--SPILLMAN

Attorney General Raps Governor In Reply to Executive's Letter.

Intimates Policy Playing And Asks Probing of Other Combinations.

Implications that Governor Bryan has been trying to play politics with the gasoline situation are made by Attorney General O. S. Spillman in a letter which he mailed to the chief executive Saturday, copies of which were given out to the press at the same time.

Spillman's missive was in reply to one the governor sent him ten days ago, when he was up in northwestern Nebraska making commencement speeches. The Bryan communication suggested that the attorney general get busy and bring prosecution against gasoline concerns for violating the anti-discrimination law by selling at lower prices in Omaha than they are doing elsewhere in the state.

Following is the response made by the head of the legal department:

Inquiry Already Begun.

"To His Excellency,
Charles W. Bryan,
Governor of Nebraska,
State House,
Lincoln.

Sir: Acknowledging receipt of your communication requesting legal action by the attorney general's department against certain unnamed oil companies under sections 3432 and 3452, compiled statutes of Nebraska, 1922, I beg to advise you that these matters are already under investigation by my department, as announced by the press previous to your letter.

"The statute provides for investigation. We are complying with the statute, and at the proper time will take the proper action I call your attention to the fact that the office of the attorney general of Nebraska on its own initiative was the first in the United States, during the past several years, to begin action against a combination of oil companies. I do not recall any other such action during the past decade. As a result of the activities of the legal department at of the state of Nebraska, a movement was started throughout the country to break up any illegal combinations of oil dealers.

"In this state this office was the first to file a complaint against certain combinations of oil companies, which sought to prevent City Commissioner Hopkins of Omaha from selling gasoline to the people at a lower price than that charged by all other companies. The title of the case is State of Nebraska, ex rel. O. S Spillman, attorney general, vs Standard Oil company of Nebraska and fourteen others, a review of which petition, for your information, may not be amiss. This case will be prosecuted to judgment, and proper actions will be brought at the proper time, when based upon competent evidence under different sections of the anti-trust laws of the state of Nebraska, as different need arises This includes sections 3432 and 3453, where competent evidence warrants such action.

Agricultural Department Could Help.

"I note your offer of cooperation in this case, and your expressed desire to enforce the laws. I welcome cooperation. I crave coperation like that of the constitutional convention, where earnest and unselfish men forgot party lines and labored for the common weal. May I suggest to you, that as the head of the great agricultural department of the state, the best cooperation, which your excellency could give this department, would be the assistance of the inspectors and employes of that department in gathering evidence not only against the oil companies, but against any unlawful creamery combination or discrimination, and any other combinations, which may directly react upon the farming combination of this state.

"In conclusion, let me advise that as constitutional law officer of the state of Nebraska I shall continue to prosecute anti-trust cases and combinations in restraint of trade, not for the purpose of political advertisement, but for the purpose of securing actual relief in prices for the people of the state. In this connection, it is a pleasure to acknowledge the cordial cooperation received by this department from the Hon' John H. Hopkins, city commissioner of Omaha. Let me say also that the cooperation between City Commissioner Hopkins and the state legal department has in fact resulted in checking the combine and reducing gasoline prices in Omaha. The movement will spread throughout the state with great rapidity, where other independent dealers follow in the footsteps of Commissioner John Hopkins by establishing real, honest competition. In other words, competition, the thing aimed at by the statute, is being secured.

"Trusting that this news will reassure Your Excellency, I am, very truly yours,

"O. S SPILLMAN,
"Attorney General."

Typographical Union Election Is In Doubt

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—Leaders of rival factions of the International typographical union gave out conflicting statements of the results of the election of officers on the basis of unofficial complete returns here tonight. Each faction forecast election of its candidate.

Leaders of the faction supporting James Lynch, administration candidate for the presidency, said a partial canvass of the returns indicated the victory of their candidate by a majority of 2,000 votes.

Supporters of Charles Howard said his majority would heach 3,000. Howis at present holding office, but is not considered an administration candidate.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 31.—Better days are ahead for the farmers and farm land brokers, William E. Herren, field secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said in an interview today.

"In the middle west the farm land situation is still bad enough, but the worst is over. Debts are largely paid, losses have been taken, and farm prosperity should be on the mend. Most farmers have gone back to work. Work is the one big solution

"The inflation of after-war conditions has largely disappeared, and farm lands are back, in most cases, to where they were in 1916," he said. "The farmer is in a better position today than he has been since 1920. Farm lands are beginning to sell and a general spirit of optimism is becoming prevalent in the great farming industry of our country.

"There has been a considerable increase in the sale of farm lands in the past year. While indications are that there will be a definite improvement in the market, this improvement probably will be slow.

Farm Population Decreases.

"The decrease in farm population continues in some sections. Only those sections which have diversified farming and are developing new lands are reporting an increasing population on the farms.

"The greatest difficulty now confronting the farmer are the high rates of taxation in proportion to his income, inability to realize adequate proportion of the price paid by the consumer for the farmer's products on account of the present methods of marketing, and labor shortage, due to the high prices being paid in the cities for labor.

"The sections which have suffered most from the depression are the one-crop areas. Greater diversification of crops will minimize losses in the future.

"Assistance should be given the farmers in the one-crop sections, particularly in the northwest, but in the future greater stress should be laid upon diversification of crops, and greater success will result."

OUSTED WITNESS CHARGES A PLOT

Intends To Demand Impeachment Of Senate Daugherty Committee Members.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — A promise to disclose a "dastardly plot against President Coolidge, engineered by Frank Vanderlip and Senators Wheeler and Brookhart" of the senate Drugherty investigating committee, if permitted to testify, was made here tonight by Alexander L. Fink of Buffalo, N. Y.

Fink, who was connected by Miss Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jess Smith, with a plot to "frame" her to keep her from testifying before the committee, attempted to get a hearing before the committee today but was ejected by a policeman on order of the committee.

Fink said he had learned that after this action the committee was willing to hear him Monday.

"I intend to show also how the 'frame-up' against former Attorney General Daugherty was conceived and carried out by Senator Wheeler through the aid of whisky and money," Fink said.

"As a citizen of the United States, I intend to demand that the United States senate impeach Senator Wheeler and Brookhart and that they be prosecuted.

"As a duly authorized investigator for the Wheeler-Brookhart committee, I will furnish the newspapers with photographic copies of the letter appointing me to this position, which are signed by Senators Wheeler and Brookhart," he said.

D. L. D. Convention Delegates Return

The Lincoln and Nebraska delegates attended the annual meeting of the D. L. D. highway association at Holyoke, Colo., the early part of the week, returned to Lincoln Friday morning. President C. H. Roper of the association, reported that towns all over the state were represented at the meeting.

The delegates were entertained by the citizens of Holyoke in the most effective way, he said. They were met by a delegation and served breakfast before driving to Holyoke.

Hastings, Neb., was selected for the next annual meeting of the association.

The annual banquet of the Nebraska Wesleyan chapter of Phi Kappa Phi was held Saturday evening, May 31, in the dining rooms of the First Methodist Episcopal church in University Place. Prof. W. L. Ruyle presided as president of the chapter.

The newly elected members of the chapter were present as follows: Leslie Deal, Davenport; Margaret Bogle, Arthur Johnson, University Place; Marie Howell, McCook; Beatrice Walters, Corning, Mo.; Cecil Farnham, Central City; Lillie Norlin, University Place; Wilma Cook, Elmwood; Mary L. French, Page; Polley Ann Bignell, Cedar Bluffs, and Gladys Russell, Tekamah. Lotan H. DeWolf of York who was also elected to membership of the faculty are Professors Glenn Callen, Rose B. Clark and Bennett M. Hollowell.

The address of the evening was made by Prof. P. H. Grumann of the state university who spoke on "The New Rumanism."

"The deepest tragedy of Jesus was not the supreme sacrifice that has engaged the imagination of men for centuries. Martyrdom has its own sweet reward but to see one's teachings misinterpreted and incorrectly applied is indeed Promethean torture," said Mr. Grummann. Had Jesus lived to see the strange distortions that were made of his simple, beautiful, common sense gospel his wrath might well have exceeded that which he showed when he drove the money changers from the temple.

"Nowhere is the irony misinterpretation more glaring than in connection with the great basic message of Jesus: 'I am come that they may have the life more abundant.' Scarcely had he laid down his life for this principle, when the primitive church began narrowing life and cheating it out of some of its most precious privileges," he declared.

"Springing up in the days of imperialistic madness, the church was unfriendly to the gross debauchery practiced by the drones of a corrupt state. Poverty and renunciation were elevated into virtues. Men surrendered many things that minister to the life more abundant. Deep distrust of Christianity began for the physical life. In the best days of Greece and Rome the physical life had been the basis of sound mental and spiritual activity, when men began to deteriorate physically they became atrophied in spiritual matters. Man lost his sense of beauty. Outward nature did not minister to his imagination for the eyes that might reveal such things were in danger of lapsing into sinful ways.

"It has taken many centuries to outgrow the stupid limitations thrown around life by the misguided followers of him who came to bring us life 'more abundant.' That early Christianity failed to articulate with the gains that Greece had made for mankind is one of the greatest misfortunes of human history, the full significance of which we are just beginning to realize.

"No one who takes life prosaically can share in the life more abundant. Life abundant lies in the realms of make-believe, of poetry, of the imagination. It was his sound common sense that made Jesus realize that the life more abundant is essentially the religious life. Nor can the life more abundant be realized without relating one's self to the world and the universe. The importance of the religious consciousness has never been exemplified better than in the early nineteenth century. The remarkable literature sprang up in England, Germany and France as a result of the pantheism which found God in nature. Pantheism was at its best an imperfect philosophy. Its religious influence was singularly potent.

"The crucial error of materialism is that it is unproductive in the realm of the better and more permanent things of life. We are facing a reaction against the pantheism of the last century. I believe that we shall place man himself rather than nature in the forefront of our interest. We have been seeking and finding God in nature and we are now trying to find him in human beings. This new humanism that is exciting our thinkers has a decidely progressive ring. It means that man should become better that a future of still better men may become possible. The new humanism means to utilize all of the advances that were made by pantheism with its splendid reverence for nature but it relates nature back to man."

MANY IDLE IN JAPAN.

GENEVA, May 31.—Japan has filed with the international labor bureau, detailed information on the state of unemployment that has been caused there by the earthquake of last year. The statement places at 13,000 the number of factories that were destroyed and which threw out of employment over 100,000 workmen.

FARM CHILDREN HERE FOR WEEK

Program By Agricultural College Will Include Instruction And Fun.

Three hundred boys and girls who have won the county championships in their home counties in the various phases of boys and girls club work will be in Lincoln Monday to attend the ninth annual Boys and Girls club work at the Agricultural college. They will spend the day registering and visiting every part of the College Campus under the guidance of the university 4-H club, a group of former club members now in the University of Nebraska.

Most of these boys and girls have a part or all of their expenses paid by some business organization which is interested in promoting more and better club work. L. I. Frisbie, state extension agent in club work, will have charge of the program for the week.

Mothers need not worry about what will happen to their children during the week away from home, because every one of the boys and girls will be under the supervision of members of the agricultural extension force both day and night. The youngsters will stay together in groups during the day and sleep in the buildings on the college campus at night. This practice has been followed in previous club weeks with satisfactory results and those in charge this year have all had previous experience.

The boys and girls range in age from twelve to nineteen years old. Each of them who comes with his expenses paid has been awarded the trip for the excellence of club work in 1923. Mornings will be spent in classes at the college and afternoons in visits to places of interest in Lincoln. Friday will be spent in Omaha.

tice of their intention to fight this now famous case up through the court of review, the house of bishops and ultimately, if necessary, to the civil courts.

Dibble Score Stand.

"Are you," asked Charles L. Dibble, the church advocate, addressing the bishops today, "going to accept this strange and unreal profession of faith? You cannot, and then tell little children they must say prayers to Jesus in order that they may be saved. Bishop Brown says there is no Jesus and if you find him innocent you condone that view.

"The issue here is not one of fundamentalism and modernism. It is a very narrow issue. It is whether Bishop Brown is guilty of teaching doctrine contrary to the church. His book (Communism and Christianism) is a negation of everything the church stands for."

The court answered the prosecutor's plea by stalking grimly in this afternoon, and, amid a deathlike silence in the hall, pronouncing the following:

"The court having fully heard the allegations and the proof, * * * and having deliberately considered the same * * * does hereby pronounced and record its decision and judgment as follows:

Find Accused "Guilty."

"The accused is guilty of holding and teaching publicly and advisedly, doctrine contrary to that held by the Protestant Episcopal of the United States of America in the manner and form as set forth in the presentment as to each of the specifications and charges."

The charges consisted of twenty-three excerpts from "Communism and Christianism," giving Bishop Brown's newly found philosophy.

The decision was unanimous on the part of the court, headed by Bishop Murray of Maryland.

Backed with the philosophy of Darwin, Spencer, Hume, Haeckel and Ingersoll, he attacked the historical correctness of the Scriptures from every point of view in an endeavor to show how modern science and improved thought have demonstrated the fallibility of the Bible.

"Why teach children," he said passionately, "that God made the world out of nothing and rested like a common laborer after six days, when in their schools they are being taught the truth—that this planet was thrown off the revolving sun, a molten mass, one hundred thousand years ago."

Traces Back Miracles.

With great logic and fervor, he took up various miracles of the Scriptures and traced them back to the ancient fables of mythology and demonstrated how they at last found a place in the book that was written after the Christian era.

"as on the ground of the Twentieth century child. Don't tell them they ground that I appeal to you," he said, must believe literally these beautiful stories of the Scriptures. They are learning differently. The great light of science is shining brighter day by day. Science has dispelled many old beliefs. Standards are changing and the world progresses. What is the church doing to progress with it and minister to present day needs?

"Thousands even now are turning away from the church. Out beyond this hall is a great mass of unbelievers and skeptics. Let them in. Open the door and they will come for religion is inherent in man's nature. But they will not come if you persistently shut your ears to facts and like ostriches bury your heads in the sand."

Verdict Was Expected.

Bishop Brown accepted the verdict with equanimity. He had expected it from the first and had his expectation confirmed when he paid a private visit to the bishops as they consulted in a private room. He asked them if they were going to find him guilty and they told him yes. He simply said he was sorry.

Later he said:

"It is not I, but the church, that has been condemned here today. I thinks it will be the last hersy trial in this country. Never before has the church endeavored to combat science and it will not again. It does not dare to.

"I have not wished to fight the church or force it to accept my views. I have gone into and through with this because I love the church and the masses it should serve. I want to see it freed from th chandicap of an uncertain lateralism, s othat it may shed its blessings in every age, according to best thought o fthat age as developed by advancing science.

"We have failed utterly to draw from the church any standard of orthodoxy. But this failure is our greatest victory, for it shows the church does not dare to define its orthodoxy for fear of the thousands who would automatidcally be driven away.

"Every new thought is shocking and so long as the church assumes to set limits of human thinking, it must exhaust its time in hunting heretics instead of ministering to the needs and aspirations of mandkind."

Intimates Policy Playing And Asks Probing of Other Combinations.

Implications that Governor Bryan has been trying to play politics with the gasoline situation are made by Attorney General O. S. Spillman in a letter which he mailed to the chief executive Saturday, copies of which were given out to the press at the same time.

Spillman's missive was in reply to one the governor sent him ten days ago, when he was up in northwestern Nebraska making commencement speeches. The Bryan communication suggested that the attorney general get busy and bring prosecution against gasoline concerns for violating the anti-discrimination law ly selling at lower prices in Omaha than they are doing elsewhere in the state.

Following is the response made by the head of the legal department:

Inquiry Already Begun.

"To His Excellency,
Charles W. Bryan,
Governor of Nebraska,
State House,
Lincoln.

Sir: Acknowledging receipt of your communication requesting legal action by the attorney general's department against certain unnamed oil companies under sections 3432 and 3453, compiled statutes of Nebraska, 1922, I beg to advise you that these matters are already under investigation by my department, as announced by the press previous to your letter.

"The statute provides for investigation. We are complying with the statute, and at the proper time will take the proper action. I call your attention to the fact that the office of the attorney general of Nebraska on its own initiative was the first in the United States, during the past several years, to begin action against a combination of oil companies. I do not recall any other such action during the past decade. As a result of the activities of the legal department of the state of Nebraska, a movement was started throughout the country to break up any illegal combinations of oil dealers.

"In this state this office was the first to file a complaint against certain combinations of oil companies, which sought to prevent City Commissioner Hopkins of Omaha from selling gasoline to the people at a lower price than that charged by all other companies. The title of the case is State of Nebraska, ex rel. O. S. Spillman, attorney general, vs. Standard Oil company of Nebraska and fourteen others, a review of which petition, for your information, may not be amiss. This case will be prosecuted to judgment, and proper actions will be brought at the proper time, when based upon competent evidence under different sections of the anti-trust laws of the state of Nebraska, as different need arises. This includes sections 3432 and 3453, where competent evidence warrants such action.

Agricultural Department Could Help.

"I note your offer of cooperation in this case, and your expressed desire to enforce the laws. I welcome cooperation. I crave coperation like that of the constitutional convention, where earnest and unselfish men forgot party lines and labored for the common weal. May I suggest to you, that as the head of the great agricultural department of the state, the best cooperation, which your excellency could give this department, would be the assistance of the inspectors and employes of that department in gathering evidence not only against the oil companies, but against any unlawful creamery combination or discrimination, and any other combinations, which may directly react upon the farming combination of this state.

"In conclusion, let me advise that as constitutional law officer of the state of Nebraska I shall continue to prosecute anti-trust cases and combinations in restraint of trade, not for the purpose of political advertisement, but for the purpose of securing actual relief in prices for the people of the state. In this connection, it is a pleasure to acknowledge the cordial cooperation received by this department from the Hon. John H. Hopkins, city commissioner of Omaha. Let me say also that the cooperation between City Commissioner Hopkins and the state legal department has in fact resulted in checking the combine and reducing gasoline prices in Omaha. The movement will spread throughout the state with great rapidity, where other independent dealers follow in the footsteps of Commissioner John Hopkins by establishing real, honest competition. In other words, competition, the thing aimed at by the statute, is being secured.

"Trusting that this news will reassure Your Excellency, I am, very truly yours,

"O. S. SPILLMAN,
"Attorney General."

Typographical Union Election Is In Doubt

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—Leaders of rival factions of the International typographical union gave out conflicting statements of the results of the election of officers on the basis of unofficial complete returns here tonight. Each faction forecast election of its candidate.

Leaders of the faction supporting James Lynch, administration candidate for the presidency, said a partial canvass of the returns indicated the victory of their candidate by a majority of 2,000 votes.

Supporters of Charles Howard said his majority would heach 3,000. Howis at present holding office, but is not considered an administration candidate.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 31.—Better days are ahead for the farmers and farm land brokers, William E. Herren, field secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said in an interview today.

"In the middle west the farm land situation is still bad enough, but the worst is over. Debts are largely paid, losses have been taken, and farm prosperity should be on the mend. Most farmers have gone back to work. Work is the one big solution.

"The inflation of after-war conditions has largely disappeared, and farm lands are back, in most cases, to where they were in 1916," he said. "The farmer is in a better position today than he has been since 1920. Farm lands are beginning to sell, and a general spirit of optimism is becoming prevalent in the great farming industry of our country.

"There has been a considerable increase in the sale of farm lands in the past year. While indications are that there will be a definite improvement in the market, this improvement probably will be slow.

Farm Population Decreases.

"The decrease in farm population continues in some sections. Only those sections which have diversified farming and are developing new lands are reporting an increasing population on the farms.

"The greatest difficulty now confronting the farmer are the high rates of taxation in proportion to his income, inability to realize adequate proportion of the price paid by the consumer for the farmer's products on account of the present methods of marketing, and labor shortage, due to the high prices being paid in the cities for labor.

"The sections which have suffered most from the depression are the one-crop areas. Greater diversification of crops will minimize losses in the future.

"Assistance should be given the farmers in the one-crop sections, particularly in the northwest, but in the future greater stress should be laid upon diversification of crops, and greater success will result."

OUSTED WITNESS CHARGES A PLOT

Intends To Demand Impeachment Of Senate Daugherty Committee Members.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — A promise to disclose a "dastardly plot against President Coolidge, engineered by Frank Vanderlip and Senators Wheeler and Brookhart" of the senate Daugherty investigating committee, if permitted to testify, was made here tonight by Alexander L. Fink of Buffalo, N. Y.

Fink, who was connected by Miss Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jess Smith, with a plot to "frame" her to keep her from testifying before the committee, attempted to get a hearing before the committee today but was ejected by a policeman on order of the committee.

Fink said he had learned that after this action the committee was willing to hear him Monday.

"I intend to show also how the 'frame-up' against former Attorney General Daugherty was conceived and carried out by Senator Wheeler through the aid of whisky and money," Fink said.

"As a citizen of the United States, I intend to demand that the United States senate impeach Senator Wheeler and Brookhart and that they be prosecuted.

"As a duly authorized investigator for the Wheeler-Brookhart committee, I will furnish the newspapers with photographic copies of the letter appointing me to this position, which are signed by Senators Wheeler and Brookhart," he said.

D. L. D. Convention Delegates Return

The Lincoln and Nebraska delegates attended the annual meeting of the D. L. D. highway association at Holyoke, Colo., the early part of the week, returned to Lincoln Friday morning. President C. H. Roper of the association, reported that towns all over the state were represented at the meeting.

The delegates were entertained by the citizens of Holyoke in the most effective way, he said. They were met by a delegation and served breakfast before driving to Holyoke.

Hastings, Neb., was selected for the next annual meeting of the association.

GIBBONS MUCH TOO FOXY FOR FRENCH BOXER

St. Paul Tommy Carries Fight To Carp and Gives the Foreigner a Neat Beating In Every Round.

ARENA, MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 31.—Georges Carpentier, whilom idol of the French boulevards, made a pitiful showing this afternoon in finishing second to Tom Gibbons in every one of the ten rounds in their much ballyhooed international bout. Gibbons won all by himself in the presence of 30,000 souls, who voiced their disapproval of the Frenchman's back pedalling tactics.

Midway through the eighth round, Carpentier slipped after missing with a right and, upon arising, simulated great agony. It was his intention to convey the thought that he had turned his ankle. The crowd was out of sympathy for the entire performance and yelled its disapproval.

Several times in the round and a half remaining, Carpentier gave evidence of wishing to stop, once re-turning his ankle and pointing at it with his glove. He seemed to think better of it and hobbled away from Gibbons until the final bell.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

RINGSIDE, MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 31.—Once upon a time there was a French doll of a man, with china blue eyes, a sweet smile, flaxen hair and the general repute of being a first-class fighter. But he made the mistake today of playing a return engagement before a critical American assemblage and what the multitude saw was something disheartening.

He no longer was the debonair French doll and a crowd of 30,000, drawn to the spot by the promise of a great international frolic, expressed its knowledge of the change that had been effected by yowling in the late rounds:

Crowd Howls at Carp.

"Oh, you bum," "Fight, you dog," and similar pleasantries.

But Georges, having had a violent declined to respond, claiming that reverse from the first to the last, he had injured a careless ankle in slipping to the floor in the ninth round He did not have the lead in a single round of the ten and only Tom Gibbons compassion, or perhaps super-caution, permitted the proceedings to continue to their noxious end.

It was a simple case of a one-punch man finding no target for his vagrant right. Many times and oft, Georges shot a punch into the air, but it came to earth he knew not where—with profound apologies to the late Mr. Longfellow. Gibbons slipped all but one of them with his head, picked them off with his gloves or was going away when they landed harmlessly.

Lands Just One Right.

The lone exception came in the fourth round. Here Carpentier scored with a left to the jaw and followed with a flashing right to the same spot. But Gibbons merely stepped back, blinked twice and came on to the attack again. He forced the pace always. That fourth

Details of Gibbons' Triumph.

Staggers From Jaw Punch.

Frenchman Looks Worried.

Carp Tires; Hits Wildly.

(Special to The Star.)

OMAHA, Neb., May 31.—Overcoming a two-run lead, the Burch-Rods won the first game of the series from the Links at League park Saturday afternoon by a score of 9 to 2.

"Dinty" Moore, diminutive centerfielder for Lincoln hit the first ball pitched over the right field fence for a home run This and Gunther's single and Hamilton's double gave the Links two runs and that was all they made.

After allowing these three hits in the first inning, Lee got down to work and allowed but three more for the remainder of the game. In addition, he fanned nine.

Then the Rods got busy with their bludgeons Cullop hit a homer over center field fence, and Robinson circled the bases for another homer when his hit inside the fence went through "Dinty" Moore's and Robinson came home before he could retrieve it.

The same teams will play Sunday a double-header at League park. The score:

Isbell Still Dickering To Place New Owner In Field; Local Men Oppose Tearney Plan For Drive.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Solution of Lincoln's baseball problem, precipitated by Howard Wakefield's run-out of early last week, was no nearer last night than when the Chicago man folded his tents and all but silently faded away.

Efforts of league authorities to untangle the snarl apparently have divided the organization into two camps—one headed by League President Tearney, who is persisting in proclaiming that it is up to Lincoln to give the league financial assistance in solving the ownership problem, while the other is captained by Frank Isbell, club owner at Wichita, who takes the position that Lincoln did its part in putting over the park drive, and the league, therefore, faces the responsibility of placing a new club owner in the local field.

The Isbell policy was adopted by the club owners present at the special league meeting in Lincoln last Tuesday—the day on which Wakefield gave notice that he intended to step out The Wichita magnate took the position that Lincoln had kept faith with the league by providing a park and by turning out creditable attendance to the local games.

Reins In Isbell's Hands.

After the Tearney contention that Lincoln should come across was voted down by the magnates, Isbell was given authority to conduct negotiations designed to place a responsible owner in charge of the Lincoln club.

Name of Fred Clarke, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was mentioned as a probable purchaser of the Lincoln franchise and the Wichita man, when he departed for home, apparently was confident that only a few days would be required in driving a successful bargain. Lincoln fans, all the while, have been hopeful that Clarke or some other desirable baseball man would come to terms with Isbell, taking over the helm within a few days.

Ham Patterson A Prospect.

The only information reaching Lincoln with reference to Isbell's activities came Saturday night. A message from the Wichita magnate to The Star intimated that he was still dickering with Clarke and one other responsible baseball man, but that the negotiations had not been terminated.

In event that Clarke, who was willing to take the Lincoln territory last winter but dropped out when Tearney closed with Wakefield, fails to step into the local situation, there is reputed, to be at least a fair chance that Hamilton Patterson, former owner of the Dallas Texas league club, may be willing to cast his fortunes with Nebraska's capital city. Patterson, a Western league ball player fifteen years and more ago, cleaned up a handsome profit at Dallas and then went into retirement as a resident of California. Baseball men who talked with him last winter relate that he was edging back toward the magnating end of the national game and was disposed to look with fav-

St. Paul Tommy Carries Fight To Carp and Gives the Foreigner a Neat Beating In Every Round.

ARENA, MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 31.—Georges Carpentier, whilom idol of the French boulevards, made a pitiful showing this afternoon in finishing second to Tom Gibbons in every one of the ten rounds in their much ballyhooed international bout. Gibbons won all by himself in the presence of 30,000 souls, who voiced their disapproval of the Frenchman's back pedalling tactics.

Midway through the eighth round, Carpentier slipped after missing with a right and, upon arising, simulated great agony. It was his intention to convey the thought that he had turned his ankle. The crowd was out of sympathy for the entire performance and yelled its disapproval.

Several times in the round and a half remaining, Carpentier gave evidence of wishing to stop, once re-turning his ankle and pointing at it with his glove. He seemed to think better of it and hobbled away from Gibbons until the final bell.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

RINGSIDE, MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 31.—Once upon a time there was a French doll of a man, with china blue eyes, a sweet smile, flaxen hair and the general repute of being a first-class fighter. But he made the mistake today of playing a return engagement before a critical American assemblage and what the multitude saw was something disheartening.

He no longer was the debonair French doll and a crowd of 30,000, drawn to the spot by the promise of a great international frolic, expressed its knowledge of the change that had been effected by yowling in the late rounds:

Crowd Howls at Carp.

"Oh, you bum," "Fight, you dog," and similar pleasantries.

But Georges, having had a violent declined to respond, claiming that reverse from the first to the last, he had injured a careless ankle in slipping to the floor in the ninth round. He did not have the lead in a single round of the ten and only Tom Gibbons compassion, or perhaps super-caution, permitted the proceedings to continue to their noxious end.

It was a simple case of a one-punch man finding no target for his vagrant right. Many times and oft, Georges shot a punch into the air, but it came to earth he knew not where—with profound apologies to the late Mr. Longfellow. Gibbons slipped all but one of them with his head, picked them off with his gloves or was going away when they landed harmlessly.

Lands Just One Right.

The lone exception came in the fourth round. Here Carpentier scored with a left to the jaw and followed with a flashing right to the same spot. But Gibbons merely stepped back, blinked twice and came on to the attack again. He forced the pace always. That fourth

Details of Gibbons' Triumph.

Staggers From Jaw Punch.

Frenchman Looks Worried.

Carp Tires; Hits Wildly.

(Special to The Star.)

OMAHA, Neb., May 31.—Overcoming a two-run lead, the Burch-Rods won the first game of the series from the Links at League park Saturday afternoon by a score of 9 to 2.

"Dinty" Moore, diminutive centerfielder for Lincoln, hit the first ball pitched over the right field fence for a home run. This and Gunther's single and Hamilton's double gave the Links two runs and that was all they made.

After allowing these three hits in the first inning, Lee got down to work and allowed but three more for the remainder of the game. In addition, he fanned nine.

Then the Rods got busy with their bludgeons. Cullop hit a homer over center field fence, and Robinson circled the bases for another homer when his hit inside the fence went through "Dinty" Moore's and Robinson came home before he could retrieve it.

The same teams will play Sunday a double-header at League park. The score:

FATE OF LINKS HUNG UP WHILE LEAGUE WAITS

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Solution of Lincoln's baseball problem, precipitated by Howard Wakefield's run-out of early last week, was no nearer last night than when the Chicago man folded his tents and all but silently faded away.

Efforts of league authorities to untangle the snarl apparently have divided the organization into two camps—one headed by League President Tearney, who is persisting in proclaiming that it is up to Lincoln to give the league financial assistance in solving the ownership problem, while the other is captained by Frank Isbell, club owner at Wichita, who takes the position that Lincoln did its part in putting over the park drive, and the league, therefore, faces the responsibility of placing a new club owner in the local field.

The Isbell policy was adopted by the club owners present at the special league meeting in Lincoln last Tuesday—the day on which Wakefield gave notice that he intended to step out. The Wichita magnate took the position that Lincoln had kept faith with the league by providing a park and by turning out creditable attendance to the local games.

Reins In Isbell's Hands.

After the Tearney contention that Lincoln should come across was voted down by the magnates, Isbell was given authority to conduct negotiations designed to place a responsible owner in charge of the Lincoln club.

Name of Fred Clarke, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was mentioned as a probable purchaser of the Lincoln franchise and the Wichita man, when he departed for home, apparently was confident that only a few days would be required in driving a successful bargain. Lincoln fans, all the while, have been hopeful that Clarke or some other desirable baseball man would come to terms with Isbell, taking over the helm within a few days.

Ham Patterson A Prospect.

The only information reaching Lincoln with reference to Isbell's activities came Saturday night. A message from the Wichita magnate to The Star intimated that he was still dickering with Clarke and one other responsible baseball man, but that the negotiations had not been terminated.

In event that Clarke, who was willing to take the Lincoln territory last winter but dropped out when Tearney closed with Wakefield, fails to step into the local situation, there is reputed, to be at least a fair chance that Hamilton Patterson, former owner of the Dallas Texas league club, may be willing to cast his fortunes with Nebraska's capital city. Patterson, a Western league ball player fifteen years and more ago, cleaned up a handsome profit at Dallas and then went into retirement as a resident of California. Baseball men who talked with him last winter relate that he was edging back toward the magnating end of the national game and was disposed to look with fav-

GOLFERS OF STATE HEAD FOR LINCOLN

Twentieth Annual Tourney Dated For June 9-14 In Capital City.

Entry List of 300 Players Predicted by Association Secretary.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE

Golf enthusiasts of Lincoln and vicinity will be privileged to watch the select of Nebraska golfdom in action June 9 14 when the twentieth annual Nebraska state tournament is in progress over the Lincoln Country club course

Announcement of the tournament prospects was made the past week by Merle C Rathburn of Lincoln secretary of the state association According to Secretary Rathburn the record breaking entry list of three hundred players will gather for the state championship

It is the first time in the history of golf in Nebraska that the state tournament has been held outside of Omaha and capital city golf officials are bending every effort to make the venture a success

Banquet to Visitors

Ross P Curtice of Lincoln president of the state association announced that Lincoln golfers will do everything in their power to make the week an enjoyable one for visiting players A banquet will be given the visiting players Tuesday June 10 at the Lincoln Country club A number of university fraternity houses have turned their homes over to the association for housing the visiting players and all and all it promises to be a week of pleasure for the golf lover

The tournament program has been arranged with the idea of providing plenty of golf for everyone Out state golfers who failed to be listed among the 96 players qualifying for the three flights will be grouped in a series of special flights arranged for players outside of Lincoln and Omaha

State Champions Coming

The advance entry list insures that all the luminaries of Nebraska golf circles will be present at the tournament

The Omaha delegation will include Sam Reynolds a five time champion Blaine Young a two time champ John Reddick who won the 1915 title and a host of others

The out state delegation will include groups from Beatrice Auburn Fremont Grand Island Norfolk Loup City Ord Clay Center David City Falls City Nebraska City

It is the belief of some of the golf experts in state circles that a dark horse will feature in the championship play

The name of Francis Donovan of Fontenelle club Omaha is suggested as a possible candidate for the titular honors Donovan was ruled out of the 1923 tourney but may be reinstated for the 1924 play He was declared ineligible last year because he had exceeded two seasons after reaching sixteen years of age It was ruled this brought him with in the ranks of professionalism

ON THE GREEN

The state association is enjoying one of the greatest years of its existence Thirty two clubs a record number are now enrolled in the association Loup City and North Platte are the latest organizations to join

The list of attractive prizes for the tourney includes everything from the $150 hammered silver toilet set for the state champion to a fancy cock tail shaker purchased by some committeeman in a moment of optimism

Rains of the past week have placed the Country club course in excellent condition

Par for the Lincoln course is seventy two Only two golfers have travelled the course in par Norman Sommers professional of the club and English University of Missouri golfer are the two players to turn in par cards

The qualifying round will be 36 holes of medal play The first half will be played Monday and the second half is scheduled for Tuesday June 10

round punch was just a flash in the skilet Merely a shot in the dark and then a hasty run for cover c Not a heroic figure surely even a French doll might have been expected to do no less

The injured ankle in the ninth round also failed to strike the popular fancy It seemed to be the common impression that Georges had no stomach for the further proceeding and was looking for what is ineleganlly known as an 'out

All But Knocked Out

In justice however to Carpentier admission must be made that he did go on to the end hobbling about with evident pain It might be mentioned further that Georges stood up under a terrific battering and that he could bar

GOLFERS OF STATE HEAD FOR LINCOLN

Twentieth Annual Tourney Dated For June 9-14 In Capital City.

Entry List of 300 Players Predicted by Association Secretary.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Golf enthusiasts of Lincoln and vicinity will be privileged to watch the select of Nebraska golfdom in action June 9-14 when the twentieth annual Nebraska state tournament is in progress over the Lincoln Country club course.

Announcement of the tournament prospects was made the past week by Merle C. Rathburn of Lincoln, secretary of the state association. According to Secretary Rathburn, the record-breaking entry list of three hundred players will gather for the state championship.

It is the first time in the history of golf in Nebraska that the state tournament has been held outside of Omaha, and capital city golf officials are bending every effort to make the venture a success.

Banquet to Visitors.

Ross P. Curtice of Lincoln, president of the state association, announced that Lincoln golfers will do everything in their power to make the week an enjoyable one for visiting players. A banquet will be given the visiting players Tuesday, June 10, at the Lincoln Country club. A number of university fraternity houses have turned their homes over to the association for housing the visiting players and, all and all, it promises to be a week of pleasure for the golf-lover.

The tournament program has been arranged with the idea of providing plenty of golf for everyone. Outstate golfers who failed to be listed among the 96 players qualifying for the three flights will be grouped in a series of special flights arranged for players outside of Lincoln and Omaha.

State Champions Coming.

The advance entry list insures that all the luminaries of Nebraska golf circles will be present at the tournament.

The Omaha delegation will include Sam Reynolds, a five-time champion; Blaine Young, a two-time champ; John Reddick, who won the 1915 title, and a host of others.

It is the belief of some of the golf experts in state circles that a "dark horse" will feature in

CARP'S COMEBACK HOPELESS FIZZLE

Foreigner Gets Good Pasting In Glove Battle With Tom Gibbons.

BY JAMES T KOLBERT

SKY BLUE ARENA MICHIGAN CITY Ind May 31—Tommy Gibbons of St Paul crushed the attempted American comeback of Georges Carpentier by outpointing the Frenchman decisively in their ten round no decision bout here this afternoon

In the presence of a crowd estimated at somewhat in excess of thirty thousand persons Gibbons gave the Frenchman a fine boxing lesson and sound thrashing At no time with the possible exception of the fourth round did Carpentier come anywhere near taking the edge

Tom Drives at Body

Gibbons followed the infighting program of Dempsey and he wore Carpentier down until the French man was in obvious distress It looked like a knockout in the ninth and tenth rounds but Carpentier hung on and covered up and Tommy was not strong enough to muster the knockout punch

The action was rather slow all the way from the first to the first of the eighth due almost wholly to the running tactics of the Frenchman

In the eighth Gibbons who had been battering a steady drum fire of rights and lefts to Carpentier's body suddenly shot a hard right to the jaw Carpentier gave ground and then leaped in with a left to the paw Gibbons was going away and the blow did not hurt

Carpenier Covers Up

Gibbons dug a half dozen jolts to the stomach and Carpentier covered up A right to the nose brought blood from the Frenchman Carpentier was badly winded and went to his corner blowing hard and looking worried

Frenchman Groggy

Carpentier sat in his corner quite dazed while his manager Francois Descamps Gus Wilson trainer and other handlers splashed water over his head face and body and screeched advice

They came out for the tenth with a handshake Carpentier seemed to have lost his limp He backed away and muttered something to Gibbons. Gibbons just grinned talked back and slapped a right to the chin Carpentier fell into a clinch and Referee Dickerson broke them

Tom's Blows Draw Blood

While backing away Carpentier slipped and almost fell The round ended with Gibbons trying especially to penetrate the Frenchman s upraised elbows with the finishing punch They were scuffling about when the gong rang and ended the match

Carpentier seemed to lack strength his timing was bad and what few punches he landed were weak The leaping right kept leaping into space Gibbons was either inside or outside of them and when Gibbons did land it was while Gibbons was moving away

Deadheads Force Way In

Several thousand deadheads swarmed into the $5 bleached seats Disregarding the town police force and the scores of uniformed members of the local American Legion post they climbed the spindling structure and filled about one fourth of the seats

At one time a flock of the bleacherites made a sortie to the high priced sections and were driven back after a brief but spirited fight with the police and Legionnaires

Aside from this and a few minor incidents the crowd was exceptionally orderly and good humored

FAST TIME MADE AT IOWA TRYOUTS

IOWA CITY Iowa May 31—Three new world and Olympic records were today in the midwest A A U sectional try outs for the American Olympic team

Eric Wilson university of Iowa track captain last year smashed two records and Coulter Iowa broke the third

Wilson ran the 200 metre run in 1 10 seconds 1 10 of a second below the record held by Charles Paddock Southern California since 1921 Wilson also lowered the world s record in the 400 metre run half an hour later to 48 1 10 seconds Reidpath held the previous record at 48 2 10 seconds The third world s record to go by the boards was the 400 metre hurdle mark Coulter Iowa university sprang the surprise of the meet when he negotiated the distance in 52 2 10 seconds beating Taylor Grinnell and Brookins Iowa to the tape after a brilliant run

Taylor and Brookins were considered as being the most likely winners and all three runners were timed under the previous world s record of 54 seconds made by Ivan Riggs of the United States Olympic team in 1920 University of Iowa athletes predominated in the list of qualifiers for the Olympic final trials again today as yesterday but they received competition and did not win in all events as conclusively as they did yesterday

Southern Sprinter Ties Paddock Mark

NEW ORLEANS La May 31—J B Cheaney of Howard Payne college Texas equalled Charley Paddock s record for the 100 meter in the Olympic tryouts here this afternoon

Running the distance over a slow track in 10 4-5 seconds Cheaney shattered he southern record for the distance held by Claude Simmons

FATE OF LINKS HUNG UP WHILE LEAGUE WAITS

Opposes Drive For Funds

So far as the directors of the local park association are concerned President Tearney s insistence that Lincoln shall meet the league at least half way in financing the Lincoln team has not inspired a hearty response Leo Soukup president of the park directorate and his associates declared Saturday night that they were opposed to any plan involving another drive for baseball funds

Lincoln did its part in putting over the park drive last winter President Soukup said and to attempt another campaign might hurt baseball in Lincoln more than the funds raised could help Anyway we had assurances from the league that it would place the franchise in the hands of a responsible baseball man provided we made good on the park drive

Not Lincoln's Problem

That the league made a mistake in its selection is not Lincoln s fault so it is up to the league to handle its own problem At their meeting here several days ago the club owners admitted that Lincoln had made good from the standpoint of attendance All of them in fact complimented Lincoln on its average of 1 000 admissions per game a figure attained in spite of unfavorable weather conditions We are anxious that Lincoln shall continue to have Western league baseball but the present situation is a league matter—it is not Lincoln s problem

League Pays the Players

In sending two messages to Lincoln yesterday urging action by local men in the direction of financing the local club President Tearney stated that the league has disbursed $3 000 in money to pay the half month salaries due the players today

The May 15 payroll was met by Wakefield following which the Links played a string of nearly ten home games including two Sundays These receipts went to Wakefield the home club s share approximating $2 500 In giving up direction of the club Wakefield made no settlement with the league

Denver Club Holds Sack

The Denver club s share of the last two home games amounted to something in excess of $600 which Wakefield also retained His explanation to the league magnates was that he had paid all the money excepting about $1 000 due the government for taxes to square previous obligations contracted in getting ready for the season

Investigation conducted yesterday by one of the local park association directors disclosed that Wakefield still was indebted nearly $3 000 on account of the grandstand extension expense at Landis Field

Dempsey Ready To Meet Tommy

LOS ANGELES Cal May 31—I'll meet Tommy Gibbons again anytime but do you think he s earned a right to a return match for the championship"

Jack Dempsey heavyweight champion voiced this move or less dis gusted reply when asked tonight if he was willing to enter the ring again with Georges Carpentier s conqueror

To think that a fellow who is out of training and has not been working for months could come over here and meet Gibbons who is presumed to be always in first class condition and then stand up with him for ten rounds just shows to me how far that Tommy has gone Dempsey said

But if there is a promotor with enough nerve to stage the match bring it on Jack Kearns is on my east now looking for a fight for me and I anyone thinks the Gibbons is the fellow lets have a go at him I m ready

Manager Kearns Willing

OMAHA Neb May 31—Tommy Gibbons can have another chance at Jack Dempsey if a promoter can be found to stage the match Jack Kearns the champion s manager who passed through here en route to New York tonight promised

I m going to New York to arrange for two fights Kearns said First we want to meet Harry Wills because we believe there is a greater public demand for Harry Wills bout

Then we want to give Gibbons another chance particularly because he made very little money out of the Shelby fight—

Kearns expressed no surprise that Gibbons failed to knock out Carpentier today

Carpentier is a fast clever boxer and he probably could stay away from any boxer in the world for ten rounds with the single exception of the champion Kearns said

YALE TURNS BACK STANFORD SQUAD

Track and Field Title In the East Won By Athletes Of Old Eli.

BY HENRY L FARRELL

CAMBRIDGE Mass May 31—Making good as the hope of the east against the prowess of the Pacific coast a surprising Yale varsity team won the intercollegiate track and field championships here today

The chance for the title rested upon C A Earl when he went into the hammer throw the final event of the card He finished third and earned three points which won the title by a point

Yale won the meet with a total of 28 points and Pennsylvania was second with 27 points The strong Stanford team which came east booked as the heavy favorite won third place with 24 1-2 points and Princeton followed with 23 points

Point Totals by Teams

The other point scores were Penn State 9 Southern California 11 Johns Hopkins 13 1 2 Harvard 13 California 13 Boston College 1 Cornell 10 1 2 Dartmouth 8 Georgetown 7 Massachusetts Tech 5 Syracuse 5 Colgate 1 2

The spectacular running of George Hill who won both the sprinting events brought Pennsylvania up from the rear and put them within a point of the title

Glenn Hntranft Stanford star won the discus and shot put but Kers failure in the mile and Arthurs failure in the discus kept the Californians out of the championship

New Record in Shot Put

Hartranft made a new record in the shot put with a toss of 49 feet 5 7 8 inches and Ralph Hill of Princeton the former champion was a close second with 49 feet 5 3 8 inches

While the sun was warm a high wind bothered the athletes and prevented them from making any new track records

Yales victory ended the three year regime of the University of California as the champion of the eastern intercollegiate association

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 31.

Grains slumped to a lower close today, all futures tumbling in sympathy with last day weakness in May wheat and corn. At the finish wheat was off 1¼ to 1⅝c, corn was down 1¼ to 2⅝c and oats off ⅛ to ⅞c.

The fore part of the early session on the short day market was devoid of features. The market moved listlessly and there was a shade of strength in some buying. The liquidation grew in volume, however, and the May delivery prices suddenly shot off.

Wheat closed at Liverpool with a gain of ¼d, to a loss of ⅝d. Foreign news was considered bearish.

There was a dull session in the provision pits with prices slightly higher.

WHEAT—Wheat was fractionally off to ½c higher, with May light and supplying the advance. December futures showed some weakness as the result of neglect.

CORN—Corn was unchanged to ½c up. Buying of May was scattered and a prominent commission house sold on the bulge.

FAST TIME MADE AT IOWA TRYOUTS

IOWA CITY, Iowa, May 31.—Three new world and Olympic records were today in the midwest A. A. U. sectional try-outs for the American Olympic team.

Eric Wilson, university of Iowa track captain last year, smashed two records and Coulter, Iowa broke the third.

Wilson ran the 200-metre run in 21 1-10 seconds, 1-10 of a second below the record held by Charles Paddock, Southern California, since 1921. Wilson also lowered the world's record in the 400-metre run, half an hour later, to 48-1-10 seconds. Reidpath held the previous record at 48-2-10 seconds. The third world's record to go by the boards was the 400-metre hurdle mark. Coulter, Iowa university sprang the surprise of the meet when he negotiated the distance in 53.2-10 seconds beating Taylor Grinnell, and Brookins, Iowa, to the tape after a brilliant run.

Taylor and Brookins were considered as being the most likely winners and all three runners were timed under the previous world's record of 54 seconds, made by Lewis of the United States Olympic team in 1920.

University of Iowa athletes predominated in the list of qualifiers for the Olympic final trials again today as yesterday but they received competition and did not win in all events as conclusively as they did yesterday.

Southern Sprinter Ties Paddock Mark

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 31.—J. B. Cheaeny of Howard Payne college, Texas, equalled Charley Paddock's record for the 100-meter in the Olympic tryouts here this afternoon.

Running the distance over a slow track in 10 4-5 seconds, Cheaney shattered the southern record for the distance held by Claude Simmons.

Foreigner Gets Good Pasting In Glove Battle With Tom Gibbons.

BY JAMES T. KOLBERT.

SKY BLUE ARENA, MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., My 31.—Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul crushed the attempted American comeback of Georges Carpentier by outpointing the Frenchman decisively in their ten round no-decision bout here this afternoon.

In the presence of a crowd estimated at somewhat in excess of thirty thousand persons, Gibbons gave the Frenchman a fine boxing lesson and sound thrashing. At no time, with the possible exception of the fourth round, did Carpentier come anywhere near taking the edge.

Tom Drives at Body.

Gibbons followed the infighting program of Dempsey, and he wore Carpentier down until the Frenchman was in obvious distress. It looked like a knockout in the ninth and tenth rounds, but Carpentier hung on and covered up and Tommy was not strong enough to muster the knockout punch.

The action was rather slow all the way from the first to the first of the eighth, due almost wholly to the running tactics of the Frenchman.

In the eighth, Gibbons, who had been battering a steady drum fire of rights and lefts to Carpentier's body, suddenly shot a hard right to the jaw, Carpentier gave ground and then leaped in with a left to the paw. Gibbons was going away and the blow did not hurt.

Carpenier Covers Up.

Gibbons dug a half dozen jolts to the stomach and Carpentier covered up. A right to the nose brought blood from the Frenchman. Carpentier was badly winded and went to his corner blowing hard and looking worried.

Frenchman Groggy.

Carpentier sat in his corner, quite dazed, while his manager, Francois Descamps, Gus Wilson, trainer, and other handlers splashed water over his head, face and body and screeched advice.

They came out for the tenth with a handshake. Carpentier seemed to have lost his limp. He backed away and muttered something to Gibbons. Gibbons just grinned, talked back and slapped a right to the chin. Carpentier fell into a clinch and Referee Dickerson broke them.

Tom's Blows Draw Blood.

While backing away, Carpentier slipped and almost fell. The round ended with Gibbons trying desperately to penetrate the Frenchman's upraised elbows with the finishing punch. They were scuffling about when the gong rang and ended the match.

Carpentier seemed to lack strength his timing was bad and what few punches he landed were weak. The "leaping right" kept leaping into space. Gibbons was either inside or outside of them and when a blow did land it was while Gibbons was moving away.

Deadheads Force Way In.

Several thousand deadheads swarmed into the $5 bleached seats. Disregarding the town police force and the scores of uniformed members of the local American Legion post, they climbed the spindling structure and filled about one-fourth of the seats.

At one time a flock of the bleacherites made a sortie to the high priced sections and were driven back after a brief but spirited fight with the police and Legionnaires.

Aside from this and a few minor incidents, the crowd was exceptionally orderly and good humored.

JOHN KUCK HIGH MAN AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 31.—Washington high school of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, today won the annual Chicago U. interscholastic track and field meet with a total of 25 points.

In the academy division, St. John's Delafield, Wisconsin, captured first place, with 50 3-14 points.

Three interscholastic records fell. Hamm, Lonokoe, Ark. set the running broad jump mark at twenty-four feet two and five eighths inches.

Hines, Houston Texas, broke the second record when he hurled the javelin 187 feet 2 inches.

Olmstead, Victoria, Illinois, set a new record in the high jump clearing the bar at 6 feet one inch.

Besides, setting a new record for the Stagg meets in the quarter mile at 50 4-5 seconds, Cuhel of Cedar Rapids, won both the high and low hurdles, thus garnering fifteen of the champion teams' points.

Kuck, of Wilson, Kansas, placed his team in a tie for second place in the high school division and won individual honors by gathering 18 points single-handed in the weights. He put the shot 55 feet 11½ inches.

Other leading teams in the high school division were Fort Collins, Colo., 18; Deerfield Shields, Illinois, 17; Oak Park, Illinois, 13; Houston, Texas, 12; Manual Arts High, Los Angeles, 12; Northeast high, Kansas City, Mo., 8; Hamilton, Ontario, 7; Elkhart, Ind., 7; Wichita Falls, Texas, 7.

FATE OF LINKS HUNG UP WHILE LEAGUE WAITS

Opposes Drive For Funds.

So far as the directors of the local park association are concerned, President Tearney's insistence that Lincoln shall meet the league at least half way in financing the Lincoln team has not inspired a hearty response. Leo Soukup, president of the park directorate, and his associates declared Saturday night that they were opposed to any plan involving another drive for baseball funds.

"Lincoln did its part in putting over the park drive last winter," President Soukup said, "and to attempt another campaign might hurt baseball in Lincoln more than the funds raised could help. Anyway, we had assurances from the league that it would place the franchise in the hands of a responsible baseball man, provided we made good on the park drive.

Not Lincoln's Problem.

"That the league made a mistake in its selection is not Lincoln's fault, so it is up to the league to handle its own problem. At their meeting here several days ago, the club owners admitted that Lincoln had made good from the standpoint of attendance. All of them, in fact, complimented Lincoln on its average of 1,000 admissions per game, a figure attained in spite of unfavorable weather conditions. We are anxious that Lincoln shall continue to have Western league baseball, but the present situation is a league matter—it is not Lincoln's problem."

League Pays the Players.

In sending two messages to Lincoln yesterday, urging action by local men in the direction of financing the local club, President Tearney stated that the league has dispatched $3,000 in money to pay the half-month salaries due the players today.

The May 15 payroll was met by Wakefield, following which the Links played a string of nearly ten home games, including two Sundays. These receipts went to Wakefield, the home club's share approximating $3,500. In giving up direction of the club, Wakefield made no settlement with the league.

Denver Club Holds Sack.

The Denver club's share of the last two home games amounted to something in excess of $600, which Wakefield also retained. His explanation to the league magnates was that he had paid all the money, excepting about $1,000 due the government for taxes, to square previous obligations contracted in getting ready for the season.

Investigation conducted yesterday by one of the local park association directors disclosed that Wakefield still was indebted nearly $3,000 on account of the grandstand extension expense at Landis Field.

Welch Wins In Mile Grind At Chicago Meet

CHICAGO, May 31—Howard Welch of Gothenburg won the second heat of the mile run in the Chicago invitation interscholastic meet here today. Welch's time was 4 minutes 35 3-5 seconds.

Dempsey Ready To Meet Tommy

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 31.—I'll meet Tommoy Gibbons again anytime, but do you think he's earned a right to a return match for the championship?

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, voiced this more or less disgusted reply when asked tonight if he was willing to enter the ring again with Georges Carpentier's conqueror.

"To think that a fellow who is out of training and has not been working for months could come over here and meet Gibbons, who is presumed to be always in first class condition and then stand up with him for ten rounds just shows to me how far that Tommy has gone," Dempsey said.

"But if there is a promotor with enough nerve to stage the match bring it on. Jack Kearns is on way east now looking for a fight for me, and if anyone thinks that Gibbons is the fellow, lets have a go at him. I'm ready."

Manager Kearns Willing.

OMAHA, Neb., May 31.—Tommy Gibbons can have another chance at Jack Dempsey if a promoter can be found to stage the match. Jack Kearns, the champion's manager who passed through here en route to New York tonight, promised.

"I'm going to New York to arrange for two fights," Kearns said. "First, we want to meet Harry Wills because we believe there is a greater public demand for Harry Wills bout.

"Then we want to give Gibbons another chance particularly because he made very little money out of the Shelby fight."

"Carpentier is a fast, clever boxer, and he probably could stay away from any boxer in the world for ten rounds, with the single exception of the champion," Kearns said.

Track and Field Title In the East Won By Athletes Of Old Eli.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 31.—Making good as the hope of the east against the prowess of the Pacific coast, a surprising Yale varsity team won the intercollegiate track and field championships here today.

The chance for the title rested upon C. A. Earl when he went into the hammer throw, the final event of the card. He finished third and earned three points, which won the title by a point.

Yale won the meet with a total of 28 points and Pennsylvania was second with 27 points. The strong Stanford team, which came east, booked as the heavy favorite, won third place with 24 1-2 points, and Princeton followed with 23 points.

Point Totals by Teams.

The other point scores were: Penn State, 21; Southern California, 14; Johns Hopkins, 13 1-2; Harvard, 13; California, 13; Boston College, 12; Cornell, 10 1-2; Dartmouth, 8; Georgetown, 7; Massachusetts Tech, 5; Syracuse, 5; Colgate, 1-2.

The spectacular running of George Hill, who won both the sprinting events, brought Pennsylvania up from the rear and put them within a point of the title.

Glenn Hartranft, Stanford star, won the discus and shot put, but Kerr's failure in the mile and Arthur's failure in the discus kept the Californians out of the championship.

New Record in Shot Put.

Hartranft made a new record in the shot put with a toss of 49 feet 5 7-8 inches, and Ralph Hill of Princton, the former champion, was a close second with 49 feet 5 3-8 inches.

While the sun was warm, a high wind bothered the athletes and prevented them from making any new track records.

Yale's victory ended the three-year regime of the University of California as the champion of the eastern intercollegiate association.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

The sign governing this date is Gemini, the sign of the Twins. The sign which governs the shoulders, arms and hands of the Grand Man. It is changeable, masculine, double-bodied, common commanding sign, the positive pole of the Air Triplicity.

The higher attributes are reason and separation.

A person born between the 20th and 25th of June would not partake wholly of this sign but would also partake of some of the characteristics of the sign governing July. This is known as the cusp.

The governing planet of this date is Mercury, and the gems are a Beryl or Aquamarine.

This is the time to start migrating to your beach home. The Star Want Ads will advise as to ways and means of transportation.

TWO MODERN HOMES
LAKEVIEW ADDITION AT AUCTION
ON THE PREMISES
TUESDAY, JUNE 3RD, AT 2:30

These are two splendid homes in good condition and are sold only because we are going to the coast. One home is on West "Q" St., directly across the street from the Lakeview School. The other is on West "O" St., just at the turn of pavings. They are both good. One all modern, the other but partly. Good lots, and the "Q" St. place has good garage and shade. You must see these places to appreciate them. They are clear and we are able to sell them at the buyer's price and with $500 cash and balance to suit dependable purchaser. They are close to the West's greatest playground, Capitol Beach. Inspect these properties at any time by calling the auctioneers.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

The sign governing this date is Gemini, the sign of the Twins. The sign which governs the shoulders, arms and hands of the Grand Man. It is changeable, masculine, double-bodied, common commanding sign, the positive pole of the Air Triplicity.

The higher attributes are reason and sensation.

A person born between the 20th and 24th of June would not partake wholly of this sign but would also partake of some of the characteristics of the sign governing July. This is known as the cusp.

The governing planet of this date is Mercury, and the gems are a Beryl or Aquamarine.

This is the time to start migrating to your beach home. The Star Want Ads will advise as to ways and means of transportation.

AN INCOME PRODUCING HOME

Double houses are enjoying a rapid rise in popularity all over the country in the last year or so. One reason advanced is that it is a "home that buys itself," for the rent from one apartment will produce income to repay the investment, at the same time that the owner is enjoying his own home in the other apartment. It is said that the expenses on the whole dwelling for insurance, repairs and taxes amount to less than the rental of an equally satisfactory home for the owner's family. It is, too, a very salable type of house.

It is obvious, of course, that a saving is effected in building one large house rather than two smaller ones, not only in the amount of building materials needed and the amount of ground space occupied, but also in the running expenses for heat and so on.

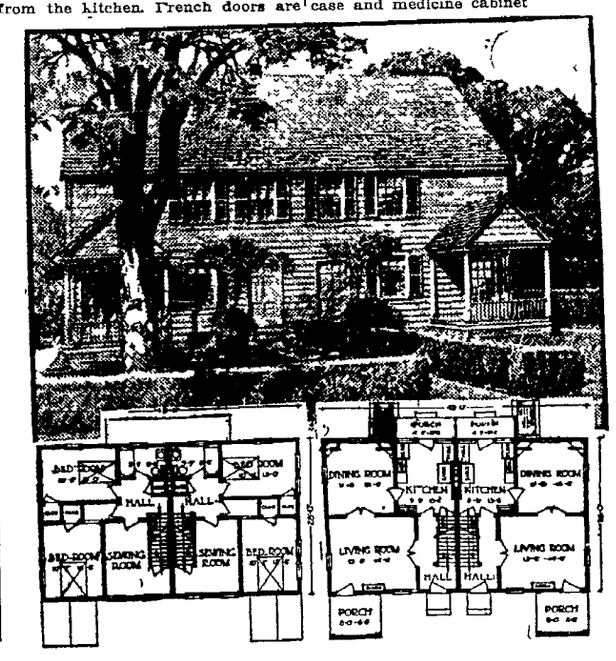

There are two different types of such homes The two-family house, in which similar apartments are located side by side, and the duplex, where the apartments are up and down Each has its own good points

Such a house may be just as attractive from the exterior as a single residence, but in general, more care has to be taken in the choice of a plan to insure this Most people prefer a style having the general appearance of a single large house, yet which has separate entrances and porches

The one pictured here is of the two-family type, and is a splendid example of Colonial architecture Wide siding, green blinds, twelve-light windows, Colonial entrances, and the narrow cornices, carry out the refinement and simplicity characteristic of the best Colonial models The apartments on each side of the house are identical, yet reversed. Each entrance admits to a main stair hall, which is also directly accessible from the kitchen. French doors are used between the hal and living room and dining room

Upstairs in each apartment there are two bedrooms and a slightly smaller sewing room, with bathroom, built-in linen case and medicine cabinet There is a good stair to the desirable attic, which may be used by both tenants The basement is divided into two separate parts, and each family has its own basement steps off the kitchen and under the main stair Separate heating plants, and laundry rooms are provided

Built-in features make the interior plans exceptionally attractive and convenient There is a pair of corner china closets in the dining room, kitchen dresser and worktable, linen case and medicine cabinet

KEARNEY OREGON TRAIL MONUMENT

BY LYNNELLE GREER

The rumble of the last covered wagon on the Oregon trail has died away, the blaze of the camp fire long ago fell to ashes and dust and those kindly souls who burned their incense and offered their sacrifices at the shrine of adventure, they, too, have gone on greater, happier journey never to return.

A century ago, it was, within just a few years that the white man discovered the Oregon trail How long it had been used before that time by his red, savage brother, no one knows. How long it will be used by the white man's descendants, no one knows. The suffering and hardships of those who blazed the trail, the vast territory between St. Lous, the starting point and the end of civilization, and Oregon, the objective, which was converted into bloody battle fields by Indian and white, all these are all chronicled as part of the country's history.

The role that the territory later known as Nebraska and the people who later became Nebraskans played was an important one in the making of this history, and that the state was the scene of many a battle and massacre is evidenced by the silent memorials erected in tribute to the martyrs here and there throughout the state.

Massacre In 1864.

There is one of these in Little Blue Valley which is a tribute to a man who saved the lives of nine men and women, stage coach passengers, when they were threatened with massacre by a band of Indians, in August of 1864.

Many of the old pioneers, not many, but a few of them, it would better be said, remember that eventful ninth of August, and the following account of the famous ride of Robert Emery, uncle of G. E. Emery of Lincoln was told by one of those who knew the circumstances.

"The morning of August 9, 1864, was beautiful," so the account reads. "The sky was clear and cool and a refreshing breeze came up from the northwest. The coach left the station at Big Sandy with its freight of human life drawn by four large and mettled steeds i.. which the driver had unbounded confidence and over them perfect control The journey was without accident or unusual incident until after 11 o'clock, up to which time no indians had been seen. But just as the lead horses had passed over the hill and were on the spur that led into the bottom land or valley, this was narrow and bordered on both sides by deep ravines worn by the water—and before the coach had commenced the descent, the driver discovered a band of Indians, about thirty rode in advance."

Fools the Indians.

And then the story tells of how Mr. Emery fooled the Indians. How he kept his poise and his head thinking of nothing but the lives he had in his protection

Just as he reached the "Norrows," as it was called by the stagemen, instead of going on over the top of the incline and right into the hands of the Indians as those blood thirsty savages had thought he would do, he turned his horses and coach around and went in the opposite direction.

It sound comonplace enough, but it wasn't, for the road over which the stage was traveling was a narrow one with a deep cut off on either side, a swerve to the right or the left might have meant instant death to driver and passengers, but even then death was preferable to capture by the Indians Mr Emery had a very small space in which to turn his coach and he turned the vehicle just at the right time. He wheeled the horses in an instant, laying whip to their backs, and commenced an impetuous retreat.

Pursued by Indians.

"The passengers were terrified," another part of the account states, "and were on their feet at once.

"Emery said. 'If you value your lives, for God's sake keep your seat or we are lost.'

"The Indians, about fifty in number, gave chase with their terrifying yells, and for about three miles, which were accomplished in about three minutes, pursued and pursuers made the most desperate attempts at speed. The savage yells of those bloodthirsty villians and the wails of despair of the men and women in the coach are past the power of pen to describe. But to the glory of the driver let it be said that he was the only steady nerved and unexcited person in this memorable chase. The coach bristled with arrows 'like quills from the fretful porcupine.' They grazed young Emery on every side and cut the rosette off the head of the wheel horse, but the young man heeded nothing but his driving. "There were two points at which all would have been lost but for the driver's wonderful presence of mind. There were two abrupt turns in the road where the coach would have turned over had he not brought them to a halt and turned with care. This he did to the dismay of some of the passengers who saw escape only in speed, but their subsequent praise of his conduct was as great as his courage was cool and calculating."

And then the leader of an ox train of twenty-five wagons bound westward along the trail, saw the stage about a mile ahead and corralled the twenty-five wagons at once. It was into this haven of safety that Mr. Emery drove his coach, knowing that his passengers would be safe and sheltered.

Thanks to Deliverer.

"Words can not express the gratitude felt for their hero and deliverer. In the delirium of delight they embraced and kissed him and thanked God he had held the lines and that they were in a position where they could not interfere. The noble horses were not forgotten. The passengers petted them and put their arms around them.

And the story has been handed down and wil lcontinue to be handed down to posterity by the successive generations of the saved. The hero of that day's chase won his best laurels in that hour. Devoid of bonstful pretense, he wore meekly his well-deserved honors and silently carried a hero's heart

In a letter to the historical society from J. C. Emery, nephew of the hero, he tells that there were seven men and two ladies in the coach Mr. Emery was driving.

Present Gold Ring.

Shortly before Robert Emery died he was presented with a gold ring by some of the survivors of that day. Upon the ring were engraven the names E. Umphrey, G. C. Randolph and Hattie P. Randolph. The ring was presented to Robert Emery in person and was placed upon his hand by Mrs. Randolph shortly before he died.

Another interesting letter to the state historical society regarding the famous stage coach episode was written by Jim Comstock who was seated on top of the coach driven by Emery that memorable day.

"I was on the coach that Robert Emery drove on August 9, 1864," said Mr. Comstock, "when we had the race with the Indians.

"I was on top of the coach and John Annes was seated beside Emery. On the top was James Douglas, owner of Kiowa station, and Lon Hoffman. Inside of the coach were five passengers, two women, one of them about twenty-two or twenty-three years old, the other about thirty-five, and three men. I do not know their names except that one man's name was John Q. Rollans, a noted lumber man from Illinois.

Another Letter.

"There was no time taken off when we turned around until we got to the train, and Rob did not slack the team as it has been said he did, just held them steady and did not seem to be excited until we reached the wagon train.

"There were some draws about a mile or more east from where he turned around, but I had been driving the stage and the same team every day for about seven months before over the same route from Kiowa station to Liberty farm station and understood the route, of course. So, I took to an old track that was some north of the main track and it went straight over those draws and got through all right.

"I was afraid to take the main travelled cut off the bluff road because it had not been travelled for two or three years, but I understood it. We were afraid to go the cut-off because the low bluff and branch were so close to each other we could not turn around. We had seen a horse and a man appear on top of the bluff, but the most of us thought it was a white man because we believed the Indians to have gone.

Medals For "Hello Girls" Who Stayed At Posts While Louisville Flood Waters Raged

BY LULU MAE COE.

It had been raining in Nebraska. Hard, torrential rains that swelled the tiny streams and made the rivers boom as they tore between the banks. It had rained for days.

Women living near the rivers peered anxiously through the wet window panes. They told the children to "stay away from the river." Men gathered on the banks to speculate on how near the flood stage it was. Children held tight to older hands and squashed the oozy mud through their fingers.

Suddenly, the hard rain became a torrential downpour. People were soaked in a minute. Tiny boys and girls could scarce stand against it. People ran for home and apparent safety. From the windows, they at first couldn't see the street, then they couldn't see the porch steps, and then they couldn't see beyond the window frame.

Dinners cooled while men and women gathered at windows and wondered—wondered—with awful fear in their hearts—fear for those on Mill creek. They winced at the lightning and the children cried at the terrible thunder.

Louisville is a tiny Nebraska hamlet, a little village of frame houses and one or two story buildings. It wasn't built to withstand the strength of the waters, if they should go out of the banks—for it's only a Main street town.

But there was heroism on Main street that night. Heroism in one building that the waters could have carried away and the occupants to death. Heroism in the face of the electricity that played about the wires and threatened other deaths.

There were only two girls in that building, but they didn't cover their ears and run away. They had "bobs" and marcels and short sleeved dresses and flat heeled shoes—but they stood steadfast before seen dangers—and before the haunting fear of invisible dangers.

In the Louisville telephone office Marjorie Twiss, chief operator and manager for the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company at Louisville, and Lydia Pautsch, her assistant, received the first news of the approaching flood at 6:30 o'clock September 28, 1923.

They had seen Mill creek rise five feet in an hour and they wondered about their homes and families, about friends, and about themselves, probably, for the flood waters would go down Main street. And they weren't happy thoughts in the dim glow of a bare office, with the heavens wreaking vengeance on a defenseless world in the dim twilight of a September evening. They looked at each other with harried eyes.

While they shuddered, they didn't think of leaving, for into that office came the first call of terrified humanity—from a family whose home with twelve persons in it was being washed away. That call came too late—but the girls knew that they could not leave. Other calls for help came, men and women, forgetful fo the peril of the two operators, depending upon them for the aid they so sorely needed.

Miss Pautsch had difficulty in reaching the Louisville citizens, for the lightning had put many of the telephones out of order. Miss Twiss went to the door, calling to men who had braved the flood to help, telling them of the families needing aid.

As she stood there calling her messages, flood waters five feet deep gushed down the street, almost hiding her from view. Getting the door closed, she returned to the office, where both of them tried to get aid for the flood victims as fast as the hampered facilities would allow. By this time, dozens of families were calling for help.

At one wall, they looked down and saw that the water was forcing itself into the office—a little trickle of water zigzagged under the door. When the next call came, the soles of their feet were wet. And then, at the next cry of distress, they were ankle deep in water. Then—to the rounds of their chair—a little higher—little higher—they couldn't stop to look, but it fascinated the operators, that relentlessly rising water.

It came to the chair seat—they stood on the seat. As they pulled the cords in and out, the water crept up—up—up. Death was helping them plug in and out that night, but they scarcely knew he was there by them, for they thought only of the village homes he hovered above. His dark wings brushed the roof of every call on those lines.

Outside the swishing roar of the water, as it pounded against the feebly holding door—inside the incessantly flashing little lights with their sorrowful meaning. And then—the chairs weren't safe—they were almost under water. The girls crawled up on the counter—there was no higher spot—would they have to give up?—were they useless?—was death winning?—another few inches—an inch—the girls stared in that blackness where the little flame of a kerosene lamp-the only light on Main street that September night—only made the blackness more sinister and made horrid little greasy shadows on the murky waters.

They stared, plugging in and out, giving service in peril to peril, in and out, calling for help, never stopping their merciful work, never forgetting to be sympathetic, hopeful, though that water danced beneath their feet. There weren't so many lines, for as they made and broke connections, they couldn't help pulling water on the counter, but they used all they had.

They sent out long distance calls of the flood for a correspondent which a telegraph operator refused to take. These messages were broadcasted by radio that night, and in addition to the local calls, the operators received scores of long distance calls from people who had relatives in the village. These they answered, while others fled.

And as they sat, cramped, weary, wet, cold, hungry on the narrow little wooden board that marked their safety, they saw their furniture floating by in the semi-darkness, a denuded cot, chairs with their rockers in the air, a desk strewing papers on the water.

About 8:20 o'clock, the waters began to recede, although the calls did not. All night long the girls stood ankle deep in mud, weary and overwrought, but unthinking of themselves—only carrying on. All through the night and the next forenoon, supperless and breakfastless, they stayed at the exchange, working to relieve the distress and anxiety of others.

Marjorie Twiss and Lydia Pautsch did this for the friends and the neighbors they had known all their lives. They did it, as they think, because it was their duty. They wouldn't have been blamed if they had left when the water was thirty inches deep on the floor—but they did not.

And they are to have a reward.

The regional award committee of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, meeting in Omaha recently, voted to awrd Miss Twiss and Miss Pautsch bronze medals for their heroism. The announcement is made today and the medals will be awarded in the autumn.

The Vail medal awards are made annually to telephone employes in the United States for acts or services which conspicuously illustrate the ideals of service of the late Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The awards are provided for in the Vail Memorial fund established by Mrs. Vail and other heirs as a memorial to Mr. VXail.

Under the terms of the fund, bronze, silver, or gold medals are awarded, not merely for acts of heroism or spectacular deeds, nor as a reward for faithfulness in the performance of daily tasks, but rather to honor Mr. Vail's memory by recognition of a few of the most noteworthy services among telephone employes.

The bronze medals are awarded by regional committees, appointed from the territory of each associated company of the Bell system. This committee awards the bronze medals to telephone employes in its territory. The gold and silver medals are awarded by an national committee of award, which reviews the cases in which bronze medals have been awarded, together with any other cases which may be submitted. Without regard to locality, those whose services seem to have been of conspicuous excellence or importance are awarded silver or gold medals.

Each silver medal is accompanied by a cash payment of $250, and each gold medal by $500, or in case of exceptional service, by a cash award of $1,000. As a rule, the total number of silver and gold medals awarded in any year will not exceed ten.

These two bronze medals are to be awarded to the two Louisville operators, but more are to be given in Nebraska, an unusual amount number for one state.

Frank M. Atwood, a lineman, and Ray Eason, his assistant, for the Northwestern Bell Telephone company at Alliance last December 30, left Alliance to repair long distance lines between there and Marsland, a distance of thirty-six miles. It was a day that people wanted to stay at home, a good day to read the last novel, to pop corn— to do a little mending, for it was fourteen below and a blizzard was raging.

People wanted to call home, though, to see if loved ones were safe and some one had to go forth to repair the fallen wires. Frank Atwood and Ray Eason went. They started out in their car, but after traveling a few miles it stalled and they were forced to abandon it and go on foot.

In the face of a wind "five thousand winters old" that swept across the plains of the northwest, they traveled through sparsely settled country, connecting broken lines. There were no hotels on their lonesome route and they slept in their clothes two nights. January 1—It was New Year's day but they didn't think of that—the temperature fell to twenty-eight below. They plodded across the snow fields, weary and uncomfortable and cold, and reached Marsland shortly before noon. Mr. Atwood's cheeks and two of his fingers were frost bitten.

These men kept the lines open in a December blizzard. What messages traveled over the wires they repaired will never be known, but they made it possible for the messages of sorrow or joy, tragedy or happiness, comfort or distress to go on. They too, will be rewarded, for courage and steadfastness and devotion to duty.

EMERY'S FAMOUS STAGECOACH DRIVE

Emery's story left behind a trail of dead bodies, burned homes and broken hearts.

It was during this raid that two white women were captured, the rest of their families having been massacred, and taken to Indian camps. Two or three years later they were ransomed by the government with ponies, but history tells us that the Indians were later killed as punishment.

And now, all that is left of the Oregon trail in Nebraska are the monuments which have been dedicated to the memory of those who fought so valiantly for progress and they stand along the roadsides and in the center of corn fields and in town squares all through the state as sentinels, watching along the way, a silent witness to things that have passed.

An especially interesting letter telling of the beginning of a journey on the Oregon trail was written by J. T. Lowry in 1850, to his uncle William R. Lowry, father of Mrs. Julia Lorwry Keifer of Bostwick.

Tells Experience.

St. Louis, Mo., April 28-50.

Dear Uncle,

You see I am off to the gold mines, at least I think I am this far on my road and before night I hope to be still further. I arrived in this city on last Monday as you might see by looking over the arrivals at Scotts hotel as published in the St. Louis Intelligencer of the twenty-second instant. I, in company with two others from Eugene and one from Delphi, Ia., have just been down to the river and engaged passage for the St. Joseph and Council Bluffs and expect to leave this evening. We intend to go from there to Oregon and spend the rainy season there and go down to the mine in the spring. We have come to this conclusion on account of the thousands we see here and elsewhere who are going direct across the plains to California. We think the crowd of men, horses, mules, oxen and so forth which will cross the plains direct for California will make travelling inconvenient and dangerous on account of disease and scarcity of grass. Whereas the crowd bound for Oregon will be comparatively small and yet large enough for safety from the Indians. I am taking medicine enough along to get our crowd across the plains. My three companions are good ones, as good as I could wish, so I expect a pleasant trip.

Buy Wagon for Plains.

I ran off from home. Father nor any of the family know anything of my going. I should have told them but I was not certain I could get off until the day before I started.

I don't know yet when we will cross the plains, but I expect we will buy our wagon, mules and outfit in St. Jo, as there are a great many who have seen the elephant and would come back if they could sell out. We have not seen the elephant yet, although we have seen some tough times already. We are bound not only to see him but to ride on him. The prospect now is that we shall be gratified with a sight of the wonderful and perhaps see and feel a little more than we bargain for. But "what man has done, man can do" is our motto and therefore we will go it.

We have for our convenience an India rubber tent cloth and cloths of the same material to spread down to lay our beds on. We also have India rubber carpet-bags, airtight, cups, cloaks, leggins and other things.

I will write to some of you from St. Jo, or Council Bluffs and tell you more fully of our prospects and when I get down to my place I can let you know where I am and will expect a letter from you.

Your nephew,
James T. Lowry.

P. S. My health is not very good. I am stil ltroubled with a disagreeable cough and some pain in my lungs but I do not see that I am any worse from my three days and nights ride in a mud wagon from Eugene to this place. I am going mainly for my health—yet I intend to bring back some gold with me if I ever come back.

BY LULU MAE COE.

It had been raining in Nebraska. Hard, torrential rains that swelled the tiny streams and made the rivers boom as they tore between the banks. It had rained for days.

Women living near the rivers peered anxiously through the wet window panes. They told the children to "stay away from the river." Men gathered on the banks to speculate on how near the flood stage it was. Children held tight to older hands and squashed the oozy mud through their fingers.

Suddenly, the hard rain became a torrential downpour. People were soaked in a minute. Tiny boys and girls could scarce stand against it. People ran for home and apparent safety. From the windows, they at first couldn't see the street, then they couldn't see the porch steps, and then they couldn't see beyond the window frame.

Dinners cooled while men and women gathered at windows and wondered—wondered—with awful fear in their hearts—fear for those on Mill creek. They winced at the lightning and the children cried at the terrible thunder.

Louisville is a tiny Nebraska hamlet, a little village of frame houses and one or two story buildings. It wasn't built to withstand the strength of the waters, if they should go out of the banks—for it's only a Main street town.

But there was heroism on Main street that night. Heroism in one building that the waters could have carried away and the occupants to death. Heroism in the face of the electricity that played about the wires and threatened other deaths.

There were only two girls in that building, but they didn't cover their ears and run away. They had "bobs" and marcels and short sleeved dresses and flat heeled shoes—but they stood steadfast before seen dangers—and before the haunting fear of invisible dangers.

In the Louisville telephone office Marjorie Twiss, chief operator and manager for the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company at Louisville, and Lydia Pautsch, her assistant, received the first news of the approaching flood at 6:30 o'clock September 28, 1923.

They had seen Mill creek rise five feet in an hour and they wondered about their homes and families, about friends, and about themselves, probably, for the flood waters would go down Main street. And they weren't happy thoughts in the dim glow of a bare office, with the heavens wreaking vengeance on a defenseless world in the dim twilight of a September evening. They looked at each other with harried eyes.

While they shuddered, they didn't think of leaving, for into that office came the first call of terrified humanity—from a family whose home with twelve persons in it was being washed away. That call came too late—but the girls knew that they could not leave. Other calls for help came, men and women, forgetful fo the peril of the two operators, depending upon them for the aid they so sorely needed.

Miss Pautsch had difficulty in reaching the Louisville citizens, for the lightning had put many of the telephones out of order. Miss Twiss went to the door, calling to men who had braved the flood to help, telling them of the families needing aid.

As she stood there calling her messages, flood waters five feet deep gushed down the street, almost hiding her from view. Getting the door closed, she returned to the office, where both of them tried to get aid for the flood victims as fast as the hampered facilities would allow. By this time, dozens of families were calling for help.

At one wall, they looked down and saw that the water was forcing itself into the office—a little trickle of water zigzagged under the door. When the next call came, the soles of their feet were wet. And then, at the next cry of distress, they were ankle deep in water. Then—to the rounds of their chair—a little higher—little higher—they couldn't stop to look, but it fascinated the operators, that relentlessly rising water.

It came to the chair seat—they stood on the seat. As they pulled the cords in and out, the water crept up—up—up. Death was helping them plug in and out that night, but they scarcely knew he was there by them, for they thought only of the village homes he hovered above. His dark wings brushed the roof of every call on those lines.

Outside the swishing roar of the water, as it pounded against the feebly holding door—inside the incessantly flashing little lights with their sorrowful meaning. And then—the chairs weren't safe—they were almost under water. The girls crawled up on the counter—there was no higher spot—would they have to give up?—were they useless?—was death winning?—another few inches—an inch—the girls stared in that blackness where the little flame of a kerosene lamp-the only light on Main street that September night—only made the blackness more sinister and made horrid little greasy shadows on the murky waters.

They stared, plugging in and out, giving service in peril to peril, in and out, calling for help, never stopping their merciful work, never forgetting to be sympathetic, hopeful, though that water danced beneath their feet. There weren't so many lines, for as they made and broke connections, they couldn't help pulling water on the counter, but they used all they had.

They sent out long distance calls of the flood for a correspondent which a telegraph operator refused to take. These messages were broadcasted by radio that night, and in addition to the local calls, the operators received scores of long distance calls from people who had relatives in the village. These they answered, while others fled.

And as they sat, cramped, weary, wet, cold, hungry on the narrow little wooden board that marked their safety, they saw their furniture floating by in the semi-darkness, a denuded cot, chairs with their rockers in the air, a desk strewing papers on the water.

About 8:30 o'clock, the waters began to recede, although the calls did not. All night long the girls stood ankle deep in mud, weary and overwrought, but unthinking of themselves—only carrying on. All through the night and the next forenoon, supperless and breakfastless, they stayed at the exchange, working to relieve the distress and anxiety of others.

Marjorie Twiss and Lydia Pautsch did this for the friends and the neighbors they had known all their lives. They did it, as they think, because it was their duty. They wouldn't have been blamed if they had left when the water was thirty inches deep on the floor—but they did not.

And they are to have a reward.

The regional award committee of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, meeting in Omaha recently, voted to awrd Miss Twiss and Miss Pautsch bronze medals for their heroism. The announcement is made today and the medals will be awarded in the autumn.

The Vail medal awards are made annually to telephone employes in the United States for acts or services which conspicuously illustrate the ideals of service of the late Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. The awards are provided for in the Vail Memorial fund established by Mrs. Vail and other heirs as a memorial to Mr. VXail.

Under the terms of the fund, bronze, silver, or gold medals are awarded, not merely for acts of heroism or spectacular deeds, nor as a reward for faithfulness in the performance of daily tasks, but rather to honor Mr. Vail's memory by recognition of a few of the most noteworthy services among telephone employes.

The bronze medals are awarded by regional committees, appointed from the territory of each associated company of the Bell system. This committee awards the bronze medals to telephone employes in its territory. The gold and silver medals are awarded by an national committee of award, which reviews the cases in which bronze medals have been awarded. together with any other cases which may be submitted. Without regard to locality, those whose services seem to have been of conspicuous excellence or importance are awarded silver or gold medals.

Each silver medal is accompanied by a cash payment of $250, and each gold medal by $500, or in case of exceptional service, by a cash award of $1,000. As a rule, the total number of silver and gold medals awarded in any year will not exceed ten.

These two bronze medals are to be awarded to the two Louisville operators, but more are to be given in Nebraska, an unusual amount number for one state.

Frank M. Atwood, a lineman, and Ray Eason, his assistant, for the Northwestern Bell Telephone company at Alliance last December 30, left Alliance to repair long distance lines between there and Marsland, a distance of thirty-six miles It was a day that people wanted to stay at home, a good day to read the last novel, to pop corn— to do a little mending, for it was fourteen below and a blizzard was raging.

People wanted to call home, though, to see if loved ones were safe and some one had to go forth to repair the fallen wires. Frank Atwood and Ray Eason went They started out in heir car, but after traveling a few miles it stalled and they were forced to abandon it and go on foot.

In the face of a wind "five thousand winters old" that swept across the plains of the northwest, they traveled through sparsely settled country, connecting broken lines. There were no hotels on their lonesome route and they slept in their clothes two nights. January 1—It was New Year's day but they didn't think of that—the temperature fell to twenty-eight below. They plodded across the snow fields, weary and uncomfortable and cold, and reached Marsland shortly before noon. Mr. Atwood's cheeks and two of his fingers were frost bitten.

These men kept the lines open in a December blizzard. What messages traveled over the wires they repaired will never be known, but they made it possible for the messages of sorrow or joy, tragedy or happiness, comfort or distress to go on. They too, will be rewarded, for courage and steadfastness and devotion to duty.

Emery's story left behind a trail of dead bodies, burned homes and broken hearts.

It was during this raid that two white women were captured, the rest of their families having been massacred, and taken to Indian camps. Two or three years later they were ransomed by the government with ponies, but history tells us that the Indians were later killed as punishment.

And now, all that is left of the Oregon trail in Nebraska are the monuments which have been dedicated to the memory of those who fought so valiantly for progress and they stand along the roadsides and in the center of corn fields and in town squares all through the state as sentinels, watching along the way, a silent witness to things that have passed.

An especially interesting letter telling of the beginning of a journey on the Oregon trail was written by J. T. Lowry in 1850, to his uncle William R. Lowry, father of Mrs. Julia Lorwry Keifer of Bostwick.

Tells Experience.

St. Louis, Mo., April 28-50.

Dear Uncle,

You see I am off to the gold mines, at least I think I am this far on my road and before night I hope to be still further. I arrived in this city on last Monday as you might see by looking over the arrivals at Scotts hotel as published in the St. Louis Inteligencer of the twenty-second instant. I, in company with two others from Eugene and one from Delphi, Ia., have just been down to the river and engaged passage for the St. Joseph and Council Bluffs and expect to leave this evening. We intend to go from there to Oregon and spend the rainy season there and go down to the mine in the spring. We have come to this conclusion on account of the thousands we see here and elsewhere who are going direct across the plains to California. We think the crowd of men, horses, mules, oxen and so forth which will cross the plains direct for California will make travelling inconvenient and dangerous on account of disease and scarcity of grass. Whereas the crowd bound for Oregon will be comparatively small and yet large enough for safety from the Indians. I am taking medicine enough along to get our crowd across the plains. My three companions are good ones, as good as I could wish, so I expect a pleasant trip.

Buy Wagon for Plains.

I ran off from home. Father nor any of the family know anything of my going. I should have told them but I was not certain I could get off until the day before I started.

I don't know yet when we will cross the plains, but I expect we will buy our wagon, mules and outfit in St. Jo, as there are a great many who have seen the elephant and would come back if they could sell out. We have not seen the elephant yet, although we have seen some tough times already. We are bound not only to see him but to ride on him. The prospect now is that we shall be gratified with a sight of the wonderful and perhaps see and feel a little more than we bargain for. But "what man has done, man can do" is our motto and therefore we will go it.

We have for our convenience an India rubber tent cloth and cloths of the same material to spread down to lay our beds on. We also have India rubber carpet-bags, airtight, cups, cloaks, leggins and other things.

I will write to some of you from St. Jo, or Council Bluffs and tell you more fully of our prospects and when I get down to my place I can let you know where I am and will expect a letter from you.

Your nephew,
James T. Lowry.

P. S. My health is not very good. I am stil troubled with a disagreeable cough and some pain in my lungs but I do not see that I am any worse from my three days and nights ride in a mud wagon from Eugene to this place. I am going mainly for my health—yet I intend to bring back some gold with me if I ever come back.

THE PRICE OF ADVENTURE.

A most revolting murder of a 14-year-old Chicago boy has been finally solved, according to the state's attorney, by the confession of two youthful members of wealthy Chicago families.

Richard Loeb is the son of Albert H. Loeb, millionaire vice-president of Sears-Roebuck & company. Nathan E. Leopold, jr., the second boy implicated by the officials, is the scion of a very rich box manufacturer.

"They said they planned a kidnaping in great detail last November, both through a spirit of adventure and because they wanted the $10,000 ransom they demanded," State Attorney Robert E. Crowe declared.

Back of the shocking, nauseating details of this horrifying crime is the old familiar lesson, which many of us receive with sneers and scoffing until we find ourselves caught in its inescapable coils. Adventure! What a price humanity is paying for a few hours of excitement—a few minutes of revolt against established conventions and law and order.

Here are two lads to whom Providence had been most kind. They came from well-orderd homes, where most of their material wants and desires could easily be satisfied. They lived in an atmosphere of ease and comfort and luxury. All of the blessings that wealth can bestow came to them through no effort of their own. The finest educational facilities were thrown open to them. One of them had completed his college course, and had taken a postgraduate course for his master's degree. There was nothing in their environment and training, in their education, and no physical taint to direct their footsteps along the path to crime. Although details are lacking, it would appear they had exhausted the ordinary avenues of amusement and entertainment. On the night of the murder they had told the state's attorney they were driving around in Leopold's car, drinking gin and whisky, when as a matter of fact the car was home in the garage. Their present plight is due to the demand for adventure.

Numerous have been the warnings to fathers and mothers of the problems presented by the great, congested cities of this country. They are not due solely to the fact that temptations invariably are increased when hundreds of thousands of people are brought together. The power to resist these dangers is very greatly lessened because the boy of the city is deprived of the same opportunities for development of imagination which the lad in the rural community has in abundance.

Man in his ingenuity and industry has created many wonders.

But how they pale into insignificance in comparison with the simple wonders of nature!

In the country nature takes care of that inherent love of adventure which has characterized all mankind. There the boy sees the flowers with their delicate tints and coloring, and his love of beauty is satisfied. There he comes into closest companionship with the animal kingdom, and his traits of kindliness and gentleness are developed, for the domestic animals of the farmyard are kindly in their instincts. There the gorgeous spectacle of nature and the engrossing story of life unfold before his eyes, providing him with ample food for thought and reflection. In her various moods, nature never presents life twice in precisely the same garb.

How different it is in the city!

For the time being, the boy's attention may be arrested and held by the amazing and stupendous uses to which man has put nature's forces. But after awhile his interest will wane. Ordinarily he will pass through these critical years of life, unharmed and with fresh zest for the new adventures which unfold with the years. In the instance of a few, the demand for new experiences proves overpowering.

Half of the burglaries and robberies committed by youth originate from the mad spirit of adventure. Hundreds of automobile accidents have their inception in the desire of boys and girls to feel the cool rush of air along the swaying sides of speeding automobiles. A staggering number of shootings and killings can be traced to the devilish desire of excitement. The divorce courts are clogged with the pitiful story of adventure. The jails and prisons are choked with the wreckage thrown up by the swirling current of life which is always seeking the new and uncharted trail.

"Youth will be served," cynically remarks the sage of the athletic world.

Yes, and in the broader fields of life, youth means the spirit of adventure.

EXPORTS OF FRUITS.

In a country ideally adapted by soil and climate to raise fruit, it is strange that the part which horticulture plays in establishing American supremacy should receive such slight attention. America is the greatest exporter of fruit of any country in the world. In the current fiscal year, her shipments to other countries will probably exceed $100,000,000. These exports go to over 100 foreign countries and colonies. The farm value of the fruit raised in this country is nearly $700,000,000 annually.

Fruit raising for the foreign market is a comparatively new industry in America. A quarter of a century ago the exports of fruit were practically negligible. For years and years American orchards had been producing bountiful crops of all the delectable varieties of fruits. Apples, oranges, peaches, grape fruit pears, tangerines, plums, apricots—nearly every known kind of fruit can be readily and easily grown in some sections of this country. Transportation problems for many years prevented any considerable marketing of fruit, where it was necessary to ship a considerable distance. The advent of the refrigerator car, the cold storage warehouse and the refrigerated ship has enormously increased the marketing opportunities, and hence furnished the means of increasing production.

In 1900, America was exporting slightly over $12,000,000 worth of fruit annually. In the next ten years the exports of fruit doubled, and in the following decade they increased over 400 per cent more than they were in 1910. Improvements in canning made it possible to increase the exports of canned fruits from $5,000,000 in 1913 to $22,000,000 in 1922. Apples in their native state alone provided $21,000,000 worth of the exports in 1922.

Since 1920, America has produced a sufficient crop of all kinds of fruit, with the sole exception of bananas and pineapples to take care of her own enormous demand, and still supply the world. Less than $75,000,000 of fruit is imported in this country. Nearly $20,000,000 worth of bananas and $30,000,000 worth of pineapples come to the United States from Central America and the Hawaiian Islands.

The American fruit crop in 1919 was estimated by the federal census bureau to be worth $702,000,000. It is fairly evident from the figures that the United States is not only the largest fruit-raising country in the world but also surpasses all other nations in the quantity of fruit consumed.

FOOLING SOME PEOPLE.

The negligence of the American people is amply evidenced by the fact that a large number of newspapers are publishing propaganda matter sent out by the advocates of the federal educational system and are at the same time crying out for a reduction of taxation. These publishers are in effect saying "Let's increase taxes" and "Let's reduce taxes." And they are without thought giving these two pieces of diametrically opposed advice at one and the same time.

The campaign for the saddling onto the people of this enormously expensive and useless bureau is evidently well financed, for a vast amount of money is being expended upon it. Ready made editorial matter is being sent to papers all over the country and is, of course, being used by many editors who are either too busy or too lazy to do their own thinking and writing. These "canned" editorials tell mythical tales of the deplorable condition of educational matters in this country and of what wonderful results are to be achieved by the creation of a federal department of education, with its head as a member of the president's cabinet.

The advocates of this latest scheme for the creation of tax eaters and the centralization of government are sanguine of ultimate success and some of them even think that the day is very close at hand when there will be a secretary of education. And they may not be mistaken, for they are banking strongly on two things, the weakness of congress and the influence of women. In this connection they evidently figure that women are actuated more by sentiment than reason.

Anything that is believed to be for the best interest of public education will, of course, appeal strongly to women, as it will to all thoughtful citizens. The advocates of the new bureau know this and they also know from long observance that most citizens are but superficial students of public affairs. Americans were easily lured into the protective tariff trap and are just now, after years of experience, awaking to the fact that by reason of their thoughtless negligence they have for generations been paying tribute to an organized and ruthless set of exploiters.

The plan for a federal department of education contemplates the bringing into existence of another army of officials with a cabinet member at the head and thousands of inspectors and other satellites, scattered all over the nation. The cost will amount to millions of dollars and the result will be minus. The people of this country are naturally proud of their school system, the very best ever brought into existence. And being progressive, they naturally want to improve it. But they can improve it without any federal assistance. The propagandists, however, know that almost anything can be done in the name of education and they are counting upon getting the people prejudiced in favor of this measure before its evils are exposed. Then they think that congress will be afraid to turn it down.

They are making good progress in some places.

DETHRONING KINGS.

Toppling crowns from the heads of monarchial rulers of European countries was a popular pastime only a few years ago.

Now it has reached America. Memorial Day saw some of the kings of the sporting world most unceremoniously dethroned.

Take the case of one, George Herman "Babe" Ruth, for example. Time was when the mighty slugger put fear in the hearts of every pitcher every time he walked up to the plate. In the games against the Athletics, Ruth had rapped out a double and a home-run in the morning and had gotten two sizzling singles in the afternoon. He came to the plate in the first half of the ninth with the bases choked, two out, and one run needed to tie the score. He took three mighty swings at the ball and then sat down. Even the unceremonious overthrow of Kaiser Wilhelm, who very foolishly at one time set up claims of an Alliance with God, was no more impressive than the unseating of the mighty Yankee star.

Then there was an automobile race at Indianapolis. All of the blue bloods of the racing fraternity were entered. There was Tommy Milton, who by reason of previous spectacular performance had been favored to win. There were a dozen other names to conjure over. When the 500 miles had been covered in the fastest time on record, it was found that a combination of Joe Boyer and L. L. Corum had piloted the winning car. Corum, an unknown in the racing game, had copped the rich prize.

Friday, May 30, Memorial day, was certainly a bad day for the kings of the sport world.

GIFTS TO UNIVERSITIES.

Figures recently compiled by the University of Oregon show that gifts, totalling $70,137,654 have been made by private individuals and organizations to forty-three state universities in this country.

The University of Michigan heads all of the state institutions of the country in the size of the gifts from private sources. It has received $25,000,000 in all, with one single bequest of $18,000,000. The University of California is second with gifts aggregating $13,000,000. The new agricultural college and School of Mines of Alaska is at the bottom of the list with a bequest of $2,000. Nebraska is far down the line with scattered gifts totalling a few thousand. The Temple building and the stadium, partially paid for by subscription, represent the largest contribution to Nebraska.

When one considers the vast sums which have been poured into the private educational institutions of the country, some conception may be had of the money America is spending for education. Private universities and colleges, which are dependent upon funds received from tuition and from gifts for their support, have in the past very largely been the benefactors of private philanthropy. Some of these universities and colleges have endowments from private sources which exceed the funds available for those institutions supported by the state.

The endowment campaigns and the gifts from private sources would seemingly indicate the trend was now in the opposite direction. State universities, although deriving their main support from the taxpayers through state appropriations, are gradually becoming the beneficiaries of endowment campaigns and private gifts from individuals.

FEAR OF THE POLICE.

"There are a good many mothers and fathers who instill fear in the minds of their children by reference to the policeman," he said. "The child is told he must be careful or the officer will come for him. The little tots have the idea that the policeman is some dread and awesome personage instead of their friend and their aid. In many instances of lost children, they have been badly frightened by the policeman because of the fear instilled by the parents."

"The early training thus received in many instances may have a direct bearing on the individual's attitude toward law. Instead of regarding law as an instrumentality for their own protection, and for the welfare of society in general, the individual acquires a certain contempt for it. The natural reverence and respect for law are sacrificed."

There may be something in this.

No harm could come from instilling ideas of reverence and veneration of law in the minds of the young and since the officer charged with enforcing law is the visible representative the child should be encouraged to look upon him with confidence and trust instead of with fear.

THE PROMPTER'S —BOX—

AND THIS IS June, June already here and still we don't know whether to hock the overcoat or not. Down in Oklahoma they're worrying about summer being bashful. Our heart bleeds for them, but if they really wanted to see something shy and shrinking, they should have seen the month of May up here in Nebraska while that extremely retiring young lady was alleged to be about. "About" is right. So far we've positively refused to believe May was ever here this year. But this is June, and while May left us all waiting at the church, we hold no grudge. And it is quite possible that in June we shall see what the poet says is so rare.

The Lark.

A soft, clear note
From golden throat,
From golden bird,
What was't I heard?
A meadow lark
A-top a wire
Singing with all the full voiced choir
Of blooming May.

The song he sang was one of love,
Of peace, of joy, of everything
Which is desired, but has not come.

(Jere Mickel in "The Freshman Scrapbook", issued by the English department of the University of Nebraska.)

START AN INVESTIGATION AT ONCE.

One hundred and fifty republican clubs have been organized in universities and colleges over the nation. Evidently still working on the "best minds" theory, what?

ELIOT WADSWORTH, assistant secretary of the treasury tells us that: "The position of Massachusetts in the U. S. senate is the best argument to be found in favor of voting a straight ticket." We didn't believe him until we thought of Henry Cabot Lodge. Then we think of all the humiliation, Henry, has caused the boys at home, and maybe he's right at that.

He Said, "These Are My Jewels."

M. E. S.—I've got it all figured out. The reason the Oklahoma papers print the oil news in the sport section is because down there every one knows that the wildcatters will challenge the world in "catch as catch can." And you know what Barnum said.—One of Many.

THIS GOLF match between Commissioner George Dayton and Chief of Police Peter Johnstone is still indefinite, but sport authorities assure us that each is training rigorously. We don't care so much about that, we want to know when it is going to happen!

PERPLEXING PROBLEM OF CONDUCT.

"What," asks the line op., "is the proper reply to the absent-minded barber who asks you if you want a 'water wave' when you really desire a shave!

Now us, strictly speaking, barbers is our weakness, and we'd probably submit to the water wave without a fight. And, if he demanded it, let him bob our hair. In a barber's chair we're afflicted with a most unnerving helplessness.

SOME PEOPLE have all the luck. Senator G. Washington Norris has more than his share. If being kissed by a pretty girl is blackmail we're going to take a correspondence course and learn how to urge 'em on.

IMMEDIATELY following the senator will appear in an exclusive and excruciatingly delicious production of his own entitled, "Take, Oh Take Those Lips Away."

As an encore he might be induced to render in his own inimitable style a Washington, D. C., version of that popular song: "Why Did I Kiss That Girl? Why? Oh Why? Oh Why? and "Just a Kiss at Twilight."

Lights on the stage fade. Muscle Shouls seen dimly in the background, with a pretty girl standing on the banks of the Tennessee river. In the immediate foreground are the members of the senate. Senator G. Washington Norris falls on his sword. Bells in the distance. Everything in the distance, the farther the better. Curtain drops—halfway anu sticks.

Plot: G. Washington Norris.

Publicity: G. Washington Norris.

WE WONDER if the senator really has had musical comedy offers. He should have.

THAT VOLCANO expert who hurried back to Hawaii when he heard the volcanoes there were busy, still has time to get back to New York in time for the democratic national convention. And if he wants to study volcanic action he'd better not miss the convention.

THE TIME of year has now come when some college students will look for vacation jobs. Some will get the jobs and others will spend the entire summer looking.

A REPORTER should be assigned to cover the actions of that pet crow the firemen have. He's always breaking into print. Do you know the story about the crows in Marshall county, Kansas? How six were caught and their tongues split so they could talk? Then all but two got away. These two were taught to speak Kansas fashion and later they, too, escaped to the timber, where they taught the other crows. And they learned all of E. A. Poe's poems. Fact.

LADY WRITING to Minerva says in Kansas a law forbidding the use of perfumes is not enforced. Do they also have a law against wearing wrist watches? And eating onions?

Pepping Your Personality

The Great New Movement To Increase Your Efficiency in Mating and Money Making.

Dear friend reader—for you will not mind my calling you this, or both of this, for I feel already that we are friends are we not, don't you?—let us sit down and have a comfortable get-together visit and talk things over.

Are you aware that there is a big movement going on in this country, and that a lot of big-hearted men and ever so many big women are in it? Perhaps not. Then let me try to tell you all about it and the way in which the world is being transformed by it.

Have you ever thought of the large place that love plays in this world? Perhaps not. And if you have hitherto been clean outside of our great movement toward the new life and the new success, you have probably never read the booklet (obtainable anywhere or to be had by cutting out a coupon) entitled How to Choose a Mate, by Dr. O. Salubrious, Med. Mis. Wash.

Love and the Lizard.

It may never have occurred to you how many men in picking a mate, or a life companion, or even a wife, make a bad pick. There are ever so many cases on record where serious dissatisfaction arises with the selection which has been made. With so many to choose from, this seems unnecessary. If you will study the work of Dr. Salubrious, you will see that he makes the bold claim that men and women are animals and they should mate with the same care as is shown by the lobster, the lizard, and the graminiferous mammalia.

The essential idea is that a new race of me nand women is emerging under our eyes. These people are a new set of beings. Alive with personality, using one hundred ner cent of their efficiency, they are rapidly inheriting the earth. As Doctor—himself has put it. "The future will belong to those who own it."

Do you want then, reader—to be in this movement or out of it? Or no, let me put it in the striking way phrased by Allforce, "Can you afford to be out of it?"

The Biggest-Priced Men.

Let us therefore proceed to study out this quesption quietly and systematically, taking nothing for granted. We have said that personality is the greatest thing in the world. But now let us ask ourselves: How do we know that personality is the greatest thing in the world? From what corollaries do we draw this hypothesis, and is such an innuendo justified? In other words, who says so?

Our answer to this is very simple. The greatest men in the world, those, that is to say, who draws the largest salaries, do so by their personality. Ask any truly great man how he made all his money, and he will always tell you the same thing. The bigger the man is the more loudly he will say it.

The other day I had a few minutes' conversation (I couldn't afford more) with one of the biggest-priced men in this country. "To what," I asked, "do you attribute your own greatness?" He answered without hesitation, "To myself."

Well-Hung Personalities.

Yet there was a man who has the reputation of being the second biggest consumer of crude rubber in this country. I asked another man, a large consumer of adjustable bicycle parts, how much he thought he owed of his present commanding position to education. He answered emphatically, "Nothing." Something in his tone made me believe him.

Now the common element in all these men is personality. Each one of them has a developed, balanced, nicely adjusted well-hung, personality. You feel that as soon as such a man is in your presence; when he enters a room, you are somehow aware that he has come in. When he leaves, you realize that he has gone out. As soon as he opens his mouth, you know that he is speaking. When he shuts his mouth, you feel that he has stopped.

For the acquirement of personality, the first thing needed is to get into harmony with yourself. You may think that this is difficult. But a little practice will soon show you how. Make the effort, so far as you can, to set up a bilateral harmony between your inner and your outer ego.

When you get this done start and see what you can do to extend yourself in all directions. This is a little hard at first, but the very difficulty will lend zest to the effort. As soon as you begin to feel that you are doing it, then try, gently at first, but with increasing emphasis, to revolve about your own axis. When you have got this working nicely, slowly and carefully at first, lift yourself to a new level of thinking When you have got up there, hold it

The next great thing to be acquired is optimism, cherfulness, the absence of all worry. It is a scientific fact that worry has a physical effect upon the body, clogging up the oesophagus and filling the primary ducts with mud. Cheerfulness, on the other hand, loosens up the whole anatomy by allowing a freer play to the bones.

The Morning Smile.

Begin each day with a smile. When you rise in the morning, throw open your window wide and smile out of it. Don't mind whom you hit with it. When you descend to the breakfast table try to smile at your food, or even break into a pleasant laugh at the sight of it. When you start off to your place of business, enter your street car in a bright and pleasant way, paying your fare to the conductor with a winsome willingness.

When you go into the office, remove your coat and rubbers with a pretty little touch of bonhommie. Ask the janitor, or the night watchman how he has slept. Greet your stenographer with a smile. Open your correspondence with another smile. And when you answer it, try to put into what you write just the little touch of friendly cheerfulness that will win your correspondent's heart. It is amazing how a little touch of personal affection will brighten up the dull routine of business correspondence like a grain of gold in the sand.

Don't sign yourself "Yours truly," but in some such way as "Yours for optimism," "Yours for a hundred per cent cheerfulness." But I will show you what Imean in a more extended way by relating to you the amazing — but well-authenticated — story of the rise and success of Edward Beanhead.

THE REMARKABLE CASE OF EDWARD BEANHEAD.

An Amazing Story of Success.

In presenting the instance of Edward Beanhead, I may say that I have no doubt whatever of its authenticity. I have seen this story of the rise of Edward Beanhead (under his own and other names) printed in so many journals that it must be true.

Skeptical readers may suggest that Edward must have owed his start in life to early advantages of birth and wealth; he may have been a prince. This is not so. Beanhead had no birth and no wealth. Accounts differ as to where he was born. Some of the documents, as reproduced in the best advertising pages, represent him as a bright little farm boy from Keokuk, Iowa. It is well known, of course, that railroad presidents and heads of colleges come from there.

The only thing of which we can be certain is that Edward Beanhead, as a youth just verging into manhood, was occupying a simple station as some sort of business clerk. Here came the turning point of his life. By a happy accident Edward came across a little booklet entitled Tutankhamen is a Dead One. What are you? Learn personal efficiency in six lessons. Write to the Nut University. Post office box 6, Canal Street, Buffalo.

Five Dynamic Weeks.

From this time on Beanhead's spare minutes were spent in study. We have in proof of this the familiar illustration in which Edward is seen on a high stool, in his office at lunch hour, eating a bun with one hand and studying a book on personality in the other, while at the side, inserted in a sort of little oicud, one can see Edward's two office companions playing craps with two young negroes. The picture is now rather rare, the little vignette of the crap game having proved rather too attractive for certain minds; in fact some people quite mistook the legend, "Do you want to make money fast?"

Beanhead took the entire course, occupying five weeks and covering Personality Magnetism, Efficiency, Dynamic Potency, the Science of Power, and Essentials of Leadership.

By the end of h is course Edward had reached certain major conclusions. He now saw that Personality is Power: that Optimism opens Opportunity; and that Magnetism Makes Money. He also realized that Harmony makes for Happiness, and that Worry would merely carry his waste products into the ducts and unfit him for success.

The Employer and His Ducts.

Instead of greeting his employer with a cold "Good Morning," as many employees are apt to do, Edward asked his superior how he had slept.

Now notice how the little things count. It so happened that h is employer hadn't slept decently for ten years; and yet no employees had ever asked him about it. Naturally he "reacted" at once. Edward reacted back and a few minutes they were in close confabulation.

Beanhead suggested to his employer that perhaps his ducts were clogged with albuminous litter. The senior man gravely answered that in that case he had better raise Edward's salary. Beanhead acquiesced with the sole proviso that in that case he should be allowed to organize his employe's business so as to put it on a strategic footing.

Now observe again how things count. It so happened that this man, although carrying on a business which extended over six states and out into the ocean, had never thought of organizing it; and he didn't even know what a strategic footing was. The result was a second increase of salary within twenty-four hours.

An Efficiency Footing.

In the weeks that followed Edward Beanhead, now seated in a commodious office with flat-top desk and a view of the ocean and a range of mountains, entirely reorganized the firm's business. His method was simple. The employees were submitted to a ruthless brain-test which eliminated most of them.

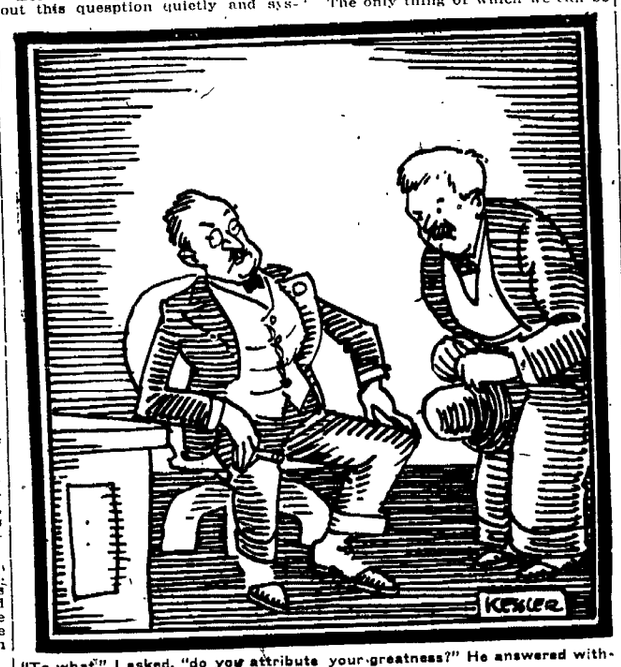

The business itself was then plotted out on a chart so designed as to show at a glance all the places where the firm did no business. Banks in which the firm had no m oney were marked with a cross. By these and other devices Edward rapidly placed the business on a new footing, stopping all the leaks, focusing it to a point, driving it deep into the ground giving it room to expand, and steering it through the rocks. The situation is perhaps more easily understood by stating that henceforth the motto of the business became "Service."

The natural upshot of it was that before long Edward Beanhead's employer summoned him up to his office and informed him that he was getting old (he was seven weeks older than when we began with him), and that he was now prepared to retire to a monastery or to a golf club, and that if Edward wanted the business he could have it.

Hence at the end we see Edward Beanhead sitting beside his desk, half revolved in a revolving chair and with a beautiful stenographer within easy touch. There are two little placards nailed up, one on each side of his head, bearing the legends "Efficiency" and Service."

And one wonders where are those fellows who were playing craps with the negroes.

"To what," I asked, "do you attribute your greatness?" He answered without hesitation: "To myself."

What Is a Republican?
(Blair Pilot.)

The editor of the Fremont Tribune, who is evidently a conservative, or standpatter, of the L. D. Richards type, says that he will not support George W. Norris for senator because he isn't his kind of a republican. Which raises the question, "What is a republican?"

A large majority of those calling themselves republicans in Nebraska voted for Senator Norris in preference to Chas. Sloan, who is the Tribune editor's kind of a republican, so the editor of that paper thinks he is a better republican than Norris and superior in his judgment of republicanism to the majority of those calling themselves republicans in the state.

All of which he has a perfect right to do as a man, but not as a republican, if he believes in majority rule, which he does, and says the party foolishly voted for Norris and have a right to have him as the party nominee, albeit he isn't a good enough republican for the editor of the Tribune to vote for.

What complicates matters still more is that many of these same republicans who voted for Norris also voted for President Coolidge, who is a standpatter of the Sloan type, in preference to Johnson, who call himself a progressive of the Norris type.

He was once, but the progressives evidently don't think he is any longer. Possibly they didn't love Coolidge more, but Johnson less, he having now been repudiated in his own state of California.

Hence the query, What and Who is a republican in Nebraska.

(York News-Times.)

The Safety Institute of New York is sending out warnings in the form of advice to parents everywhere that the season is upon them demanding extra watchfulness over the conduct of their children, especially those of the more tender years. Of an approximate 20,000,000 children given liberty by the end of the school term the Safety Institute estimates that 5,000 will be killed and 100,000 suffer injuries of varying soverity during the vacation period. These figures are based upon the ratio of other years, and in the absence of some special caution by parents, may be verified by the records at the end of August.

The institute offers the suggestion that a little time devoted to a special training of the children against the more common risks will be rewarded by better results than an attempt at mere watchfulness alone. According to the Safety Institute the larger number of lives lost from fire, drowning and automobiles and the most dangerous age is fixed at seven years. It is about that age, according to reports, that children are first freed from close parential restraints and watching, and stumble into dangers against which curiosity and ignorance has not been warned.

Too Many Spies.
(Grand Island Independent)

The investigations of former Secretary Fall and of Attorney General Daugherty, leading to the final proof of the acceptance of $100,000 by the former, and to the resignation of the latter, have emphatically called the attention of the country to one wartime source of both expense and of the loss of democracy. It is the continuation of the war time's spy system, to which the American Civil Liberties Union, Dr. Harry F. Ward, of New York City, chairman, is waging a fight. The Union discloses that whereas before the war 141 detectives or operatives were sufficient, five years after the war 97 are still on the payrolls, making the ultimate taxpayer of the country pay out over $2,500,000 for that sort of work. The Civil Liberties Union and other similar organizatons are protesting to the senate against such extravagant appropriations and the employment of so many spies in times of peace. It certainly would seem that the number could at least be cut in two, which would still leave six for every state in the union, in addition to the scores of department inspectors, or twice as many as before the war.

Here and There

(Rocky Mountain News.)

For a good many years politicians have been elected to office on a basis of their pledges of benefits from the county, state or federal government for the district from which they ran. With the advent of the anti-trust laws the pledges turned from post-offices—which are by no means neglected, even in this day and age—to legislation which is supposed to cure most of the ills to which the flesh is heir.

The Sherman act sought to cure certain flagrant trade abuses, and has succeeded, at least in driving them to less obvious methods of operation. That very success seemed to set the pace, however, for we have had a long succession of regulatory measures, bureau and remedial inquiries.

Of a sudden the realization has come that the theory that our legislators must turn out a large number of new laws each term in order to prove their worth is costing a lot of unnecessary money. A recent indication of the reaction is the plank of Meredith Nicholson's in his race for the republican nomination for the legislature in Indiana. He will make no more laws until we catch up with those which we have already.

Still stronger evidence of the awakening comes from Ohio, where a "Lower Taxes-Less Legislation League" has been organized. It has taken unto itself the old prairie schooner as an emblem, and as a slogan, "Let's get back to the ways of our fathers; simplicity, honesty, economy in government." Farm organizations and several influential labor leaders are supporting it.

"Altogether," the circular of the league asserts, "we of the Lower Taxes-Less legislation league are entirely persuaded—indeed, we are firmly convinced—that this nation cannot live or advance by legislation alone, and that the only cure for present taxation burdens is for all public officials to set up business methods, stop increasing padded pay rolls, refuse all appropriations not vitally necessary, and save the homes, farms and business of our country from confiscation by taxation, and thus secure the future, of the republic."

Not a bad sentiment, that.

TAKING HIMSELF OUT.
(Kearney Hub.)

No republican, so far as we have observed, is attempting to read any other republican out of the party. It is quite a different matter when any republican takes himself out of the party and tell his fellow partisans to "go to hell."

Sky Views of the Earth

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"What altitude would one have to attain to view the earth in globular form? To see it shining by reflected light? Is there any rule whereby we can tell the area of our vision from any given distance from the body at which we are looking?—B. E. W., The Kiwanis Club, Rock Island, Ill."

You see a part of the earth shining by reflected sunlight every time you look out of the window. If you ever go to the top of a lofty mountain, or up in a balloon, on a clear day, you will see large areas of the earth's surface shining by reflection and looking very much as the moon looks in a telescope, except that the lunar surface does not exhibit the colors of a living world like the earth. Look at the moon by daylight, as you often may, and you will grasp the subject better.

To see the earth in the form of a globe you would have to go farther away from it than any means now at our command permit. Still, at a height of ten miles, over the sea surface, the depression of the horizon below the level of the eye would be about 3½ degrees, and that might make the rotundity evident. Ordinarily from a balloon the surface of the earth within view seems dish-shaped, apparently rising toward the horizon, but this is an optical deception.

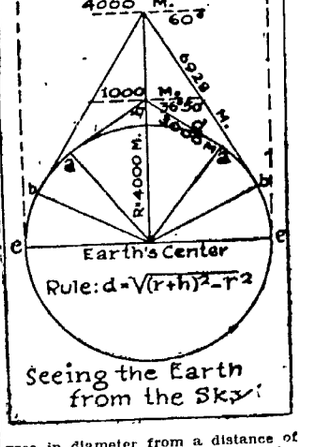

If you could get as high as a thousand miles above the ground, the circle of the horizon (neglecting refraction) would be 3,000 miles for your eye on all sides, and the depression of the horizon would be about 36 degrees 50 minutes, so that the rotundity of the globe would be startling evident. It would cover a sky-rimmed circle over a hundred degrees in diameter, or 200 times the diameter of the full moon.

Go up to a height of 4,000 miles i. e., as high above the surface of the earth as the center is below it, and the circle of the horizon would be 6,928 miles from your eye, and you would see, as the diagram shows, an area of the earth's surface equal in diameter to one-third of its circumference, but, owing to the increase of distance, its angular diameter would now shrink to 60 degrees, or less than 120 times the diameter of the full moon.

Thus, as you retreated from the earth you would see an increasingly greater proportion of its surface, but at the same time, and from the same cause, viz., increase of distance, the angular size of the earth would decrease.

If, for instance, you went as far as the moon the lines of sight from your eyes (indicated by dotted lines on the diameter would be nearly parallel and you would see, practically, a whole hemisphere of the earth, but it would be less than two degrees in angular diameter, not quite four times as broad as the full moon.

The rule connecting apparent size with distance is very simple, viz., the angular diameter of an object varies inversely with the distance. Thus if any object appears one degree in diameter from a distance of one mile it will appear one-half degree in diameter from a distance of two miles. Going the other way, if removed from a distance of one mile to a distance of half a mile its angular diameter would increase to two degrees.

The rule for the distance of the horizon as seen from varying heights above the earth's surface I have inserted in the diagram in mathematical symbols. Those translated read: Distance (of horizon from eye), equals the squareroot of the earth's radius squared. You must put all the quantities in the same units, either all in feet, or all in miles or fractions of a mile. With such formulae you can sit on the earth and survey the universe at your leisure.

THE PRICE OF ADVENTURE.

A most revolting murder of a 14-year-old Chicago boy has been finally solved, according to the state's attorney, by the confession of two youthful members of wealthy Chicago families.

Richard Loeb is the son of Albert H. Loeb, millionaire vice-president of Sears-Roebuck & company. Nathan E. Leopold, jr., the second boy implicated by the officials, is the scion of a very rich box manufacturer.

"They said they planned a kidnaping in great detail last November, both through a spirit of adventure and because they wanted the $10,000 ransom they demanded," State Attorney Robert E. Crowe declared.

Back of the shocking, nauseating details of this horrifying crime is the old familiar lesson, which many of us receive with sneers and scoffing until we find ourselves caught in its inescapable coils. Adventure! What a price humanity is paying for a few hours of excitement—a few minutes of revolt against established conventions and law and order.

Here are two lads to whom Providence had been most kind. They came from well-orderd homes, where most of their material wants and desires could easily be satisfied. They lived in an atmosphere of ease and comfort and luxury. All of the blessings that wealth can bestow came to them through no effort of their own. The finest educational facilities were thrown open to them. One of them had completed his college course, and had taken a postgraduate course for his master's degree. There was nothing in their environment and training, in their education, and no physical taint to direct their footsteps along the path to crime. Although details are lacking, it would appear they had exhausted the ordinary avenues of amusement and entertainment. On the night of the murder they had told the state's attorney they were driving around in Leopold's car, drinking gin and whisky, when as a matter of fact the car was home in the garage. Their present plight is due to the demand for adventure.

Numerous have been the warnings to fathers and mothers of the problems presented by the great, congested cities of this country. They are not due solely to the fact that temptations invariably are increased when hundreds of thousands of people are brought together. The power to resist these dangers is very greatly lessened because the boy of the city is deprived of the same opportunities for development of imagination which the lad in the rural community has in abundance.

Man in his ingenuity and industry has created many wonders.

But how they pale into insignificance in comparison with the simple wonders of nature!

In the country nature takes care of that inherent love of adventure which has characterized all mankind. There the boy sees the flowers with their delicate tints and coloring, and his love of beauty is satisfied. There he comes into closest companionship with the animal kingdom, and his traits of kindliness and gentleness are developed, for the domestic animals of the farmyard are kindly in their instincts. There the gorgeous spectacle of nature and the engrossing story of life unfold before his eyes, providing him with ample food for thought and reflection. In her various moods, nature never presents life twice in precisely the same garb.

How different it is in the city!

For the time being, the boy's attention may be arrested and held by the amazing and stupendous uses to which man has put nature's forces. But after awhile his interest will wane. Ordinarily he will pass through these critical years of life, unharmed and with fresh zest for the new adventures which unfold with the years. In the instance of a few, the demand for new experiences proves overpowering.

Half of the burglaries and robberies committed by youth originate from the mad spirit of adventure. Hundreds of automobile accidents have their inception in the desire of boys and girls to feel the cool rush of air along the swaying sides of speeding automobiles. A staggering number of shootings and killings can be traced to the devilish desire of excitement. The divorce courts are clogged with the pitiful story of adventure. The jails and prisons are choked with the wreckage thrown up by the swirling current of life which is always seeking the new and uncharted trail.

"Youth will be served," cynically remarks the sage of the athletic world.

Yes, and in the broader fields of life, youth means the spirit of adventure.

What a price to pay!

EXPORTS OF FRUITS.

In a country ideally adapted by soil and climate to raise fruit, it is strange that the part which horticulture plays in establishing American supremacy should receive such slight attention. America is the greatest exporter of fruit of any country in the world. In the current fiscal year, her shipments to other countries will probably exceed $100,000,000. These exports go to over 100 foreign countries and colonies. The farm value of the fruit raised in this country is nearly $700,000,000 annually.

Fruit raising for the foreign market is a comparatively new industry in America. A quarter of a century ago the exports of fruit were practically negligible. For years and years American orchards had been producing bountiful crops of all the delectable varieties of fruits. Apples, oranges, peaches, grape fruit pears, tangerines, plums, apricots—nearly every known kind of fruit can be readily and easily grown in some sections of this country. Transportation problems for many years prevented any considerable marketing of fruit, where it was necessary to ship a considerable distance. The advent of the refrigerator car, the cold storage warehouse and the refrigerated ship has enormously increased the marketing opportunities, and hence furnished the means of increasing production.

In 1900, America was exporting slightly over $11,000,000 worth of fruit annually. In the next ten years the exports of fruit doubled, and in the following decade they increased over 400 per cent more than they were in 1910. Improvements in canning made it possible to increase the exports of canned fruits from $5,000,000 in 1913 to $22,000,000 in 1922. Apples in their native state alone provided $21,000,000 worth of the exports in 1922.

Since 1920, America has produced a sufficient crop of all kinds of fruit, with the sole exception of bananas and pineapples to take care of her own enormous demand, and still supply the world. Less than $75,000,000 of fruit is imported in this country. Nearly $20,000,000 worth of bananas and $30,000,000 worth of pineapples come to the United States from Central America and the Hawaiian Islands.

The American fruit crop in 1919 was estimated by the federal census bureau to be worth $702,000,000. It is fairly evident from the figures that the United States is not only the largest fruit-raising country in the world but also surpasses all other nations in the quantity of fruit consumed.

FOOLING SOME PEOPLE.

The negligence of the American people is amply evidenced by the fact that a large number of newspapers are publishing propaganda matter sent out by the advocates of the federal educational system and are at the same time crying out for a reduction of taxation. These publishers are in effect saying "Let's increase taxes" and "Let's reduce taxes." And they are without thought giving these two pieces of diametrically opposed advice at one and the same time.

The campaign for the saddling onto the people of this enormously expensive and useless bureau is evidently well financed, for a vast amount of money is being expended upon it. Ready made editorial matter is being sent to papers all over the country and is, of course, being used by many editors who are either too busy or too lazy to do their own thinking and writing. These "canned" editorials tell mythical tales of the deplorable condition of educational matters in this country and of what wonderful results are to be achieved by the creation of a federal department of education, with its head as a member of the president's cabinet.

The advocates of this latest scheme for the creation of tax eaters and the centralization of government are sanguine of ultimate success and some of them even think that the day is very close at hand when there will be a secretary of education. And they may not be mistaken, for they are banking strongly on two things, the weakness of congress and the influence of women. In this connection they evidently figure that women are actuated more by sentiment than reason.

Anything that is believed to be for the best interest of public education will, of course, appeal strongly to women, as it will to all thoughtful citizens. The advocates of the new bureau know this and they also know from long observance that most citizens are but superficial students of public affairs. Americans were easily lured into the protective tariff trap and are just now, after years of experience, awaking to the fact that by reason of their thoughtless negligence they have for generations been paying tribute to an organized and ruthless set of exploiters.

The plan for a federal department of education contemplates the bringing into existence of another army of officials with a cabinet member at the head and thousands of inspectors and other satellites, scattered all over the nation. The cost will amount to millions of dollars and the result will be minus. The people of this country are naturally proud of their school system, the very best ever brought into existence. And being progressive, they naturally want to improve it. But they can improve it without any federal assistance. The propagandists, however, know that almost anything can be done in the name of education and they are counting upon getting the people prejudiced in favor of this measure before its evils are exposed. Then they think that congress will be afraid to turn it down.

They are making good progress in some places.

DETHRONING KINGS.

Toppling crowns from the heads of monarchial rulers of European countries was a popular pastime only a few years ago.

Now it has reached America. Memorial Day saw some of the kings of the sporting world most unceremoniously dethroned.

Take the case of one, George Herman "Babe" Ruth, for example. Time was when the mighty slugger put fear in the hearts of every pitcher every time he walked up to the plate. In the games against the Athletics, Ruth had rapped out a double and a home-run in the morning and had gotten two sizzling singles in the afternoon. He came to the plate in the first half of the ninth with the bases choked, two out, and one run needed to tie the score. He took three mighty swings at the ball and then sat down. Even the unceremonious overthrow of Kaiser Wilhelm, who very foolishly at one time set up claims of an Alliance with God, was no more impressive than the unseating of the mighty Yankee star.

Then there was an automobile race at Indianapolis. All of the blue bloods of the racing fraternity were entered. There was Tommy Milton, who by reason of previous spectacular performance had been favored to win. There were a dozen other names to conjure over. When the 500 miles had been covered in the fastest time on record, it was found that a combination of Joe Boyer and L. L. Corum had piloted the winning car. Corum, an unknown in the racing game, had copped the rich prize.

Friday, May 30, Memorial day, was certainly a bad day for the kings of the sport world.

GIFTS TO UNIVERSITIES.

Figures recently compiled by the University of Oregon show that gifts, totalling $70,187,654 have been made by private individuals and organizations to forty-three state universities in this country.

The University of Michigan heads all of the state institutions of the country in the size of the gifts from private sources. It has received $25,000,000 in all, with one single bequest of $18,000,000. The University of California is second with gifts aggregating $13,000,000. The new agricultural college and School of Mines of Alaska is at the bottom of the list with a bequest of $2,000. Nebraska is far down the line with scattered gifts totalling a few thousand. The Temple building and the stadium, partially paid for by subscription, represent the largest contribution to Nebraska.

When one considers the vast sums which have been poured into the private educational institutions of the country, some conception may be had of the money America is spending for education. Private universities and colleges, which are dependent upon funds received from tuition and from gifts for their support, have in the past very largely been the benefactors of private philanthropy. Some of these universities and colleges have endowments from private sources which exceed the funds available for those institutions supported by the state.

The endowment campaigns and the gifts from private sources would seemingly indicate the trend was now in the opposite direction. State universities, although deriving their main support from the taxpayers through state appropriations, are gradually becoming the beneficiaries of endowment campaigns and private gifts from individuals.

FEAR OF THE POLICE.

"There are a good many mothers and fathers who instill fear in the minds of their children by reference to the policeman," he said. "The child is told he must be careful or the officer will come for him. The little tots have the idea that the policeman is some dread and awesome personage instead of their friend and their aid. In many instances of lost children, they have been badly frightened by the policeman because of the fear instilled by the parents."

"The early training thus received in many instances may have a direct bearing on the individual's attitude toward law. Instead of regarding law as an instrumentality for their own protection, and for the welfare of society in general, the individual acquires a certain contempt for it. The natural reverance and respect for law are sacrificed."

There may be something in this.

No harm could come from instilling ideas of reverence and veneration of law in the minds of the young and since the officer charged with enforcing law is the visible representative the child should be encouraged to look upon him with confidence and trust instead of with fear.

THE PROMPTER'S —BOX—

AND THIS IS June, June already here and still we don't know whether to hock the overcoat or not. Down in Oklahoma they're worrying about summer being bashful. Our heart bleeds for them, but if they really wanted to see something shy and shrinking, they should have seen the month of May up here in Nebraska while that extremely retiring young lady was alleged to be about. "About" is right. So far we've positively refused to believe May was ever here this year. But this is June, and while May left us all waiting at the church, we hold no grudge. And it is quite possible that in June we shall see what the poet says is so rare.

The Lark.

A soft, clear note
From golden throat,
From golden bird,
What was't I heard?
A meadow lark
A-top a wire
Singing with all the full voiced choir
Of blooming May.

The song he sang was one of love,
Of peace, of joy, of everything
Which is desired, but has not come.

START AN INVESTIGATION AT ONCE.

One hundred and fifty republican clubs have been organized in universities and colleges over the nation. Evidently still working on the "best minds" theory, what?

ELIOT WADSWORTH, assistant secretary of the treasury tells us that: "The position of Massachusetts in the U. S. senate is the best argument to be found in favor of voting a straight ticket." We didn't believe him until we thought of Henry Cabot Lodge. Then we think of all the humiliation, Henry, has caused the boys at home, and maybe he's right at that.

He Said, "These Are My Jewels."

M. E. S.—I've got it all figured out. The reason the Oklahoma papers print the oil news in the sport section is because down there every one knows that the wildcatters will challenge the world in "catch as catch can." And you know what Barnum said.—One of Many.

THIS GOLF match between Commissioner George Dayton and Chief of Police Peter Johnstone is still indefinite, but sport authorities assure us that each is training rigorously. We don't care so much about that, we want to know when it is going to happen!

PERPLEXING PROBLEM OF CONDUCT

"What," asks the line op., "is the proper reply to the absent-minded barber who asks you if you want a 'water wave' when you really desire a shave!

Now us, strictly speaking, barbers is our weakness, and we'd probably submit to the water wave without a fight. And, if he demanded it, let him bob our hair. In a barber's chair we're afflicted with a most unnerving helplessness.

SOME PEOPLE have all the luck. Senator G. Washington Norris has more than his share. If being kissed by a pretty girl is blackmail we're going to take a correspondence course and learn how to urge 'em on.

IMMEDIATELY following the senator will appear in an exclusive and excruciatingly delicious production of his own entitled, "Take, Oh Take Those Lips Away."

As an encore he might be induced to render in his own inimitable style a Washington, D. C., version of that popular song: "Why Did I Kiss That Girl? Why? Oh Why? Oh Why? and "Just a Kiss at Twilight."

Lights on the stage fade. Muscle Shoals seen dimly in the background, with a pretty girl standing on the banks of the Tennessee river. In the immediate foreground are the members of the senate. Senator G. Washington Norris falls on his sword. Bells in the distance. Everything in the distance, the farther the better. Curtain drops—halfway and sticks.

Plot: G. Washington Norris.
Production: G. Washington Norris.
Publicity: G. Washington Norris.

WE WONDER if the senator really has had musical comedy offers. He should have.

THAT VOLCANO expert who hurried back to Hawaii when he heard the volcanoes there were busy, still has time to get back to New York in time for the democratic national convention. And if he wants to study volcanic action he'd better not miss the convention.

THE TIME of year has now come when some college students will look for vacation jobs. Some will get the jobs and others will spend the entire summer looking.

A REPORTER should be assigned to cover the actions of that pet crow the firemen have. He's always breaking into print. Do you know the story about the crows in Marshall county, Kansas? How six were caught and their tongues split so they could talk? Then all but two got away. These two were taught to speak Kansas fashion and later they, too, escaped to the timber, where they taught the other crows. And they learned all of E. A. Poe's poems. Fact.

LADY WRITING to Minerva says in Kansas a law forbidding the use of perfumes is not enforced. Do they also have a law against wearing wrist watches? And eating onions?

Why should I cry over you?
Your face was atrocious, 'tis true,
But you had a car—
Your advantages are

Pepping Your Personality

The Great New Movement To Increase Your Efficienty in Mating and Money Making.

Dear friend reader—for you will not mind my calling you this, or both of this, for I feel already that we are friends, are we not, don't you?—let us sit down and have a comfortable get-together visit and talk things over.

Are you aware that there is a big movement going on in this country, and that a lot of big-hearted men and ever so many big women are in it? Perhaps not. Then let me try to tell you all about it and the way in which the world is being transformed by it.

Have you ever thought of the large place that love plays in this world? Perhaps not. And if you have hitherto been clean outside of our great movement toward the new life and the new success, you have probably never read the booklet (obtainable anywhere or to be had by cutting out a coupon) entitled How to Choose a Mate, by Dr. O. Salubrious, Med. Mis. Wash.

Love and the Lizard.

It may never have occurred to you how many men in picking a mate, or a life companion, or even a wife, make a bad pick. There are ever so many cases on record where serious dissatisfaction arises with the selection which has been made. With so many to choose from, this seems unnecessary. If you will study the work of Dr. Salubrious, you will see that he makes the bold claim that men and women are animals and they should mate with the same care as is shown by the lobster, the lizard, and the graminiferous mammalia.

The essential idea is that a new race of me nand women is emerging under our eyes. These people are a new set of beings. Alive with personality, using one hundred per cent of their efficiency, they are rapidly inheriting the earth. As Doctor—himself has put it. "The future will belong to those who own it."

Do you want then, reader—to be in this movement or out of it? Or no, let me put it in the striking way phrased by Allforce, "Can you afford to be out of it?"

The Biggest-Priced Men.

Let us therefore proceed to study out this quesption quietly and systematically, taking nothing for granted. We have said that personality is the greatest thing in the world. But now let us ask ourselves: How do we know that personality is the greatest thing in the world? From what corollaries do we draw this hypothesis, and is such an innuendo justified? In other words, who says so?

Our answer to this is very simple. The greatest men in the world, those, that is to say, who draws the largest salaries, do so by their personality. Ask any truly great man how he made all his money, and he will always tell you the same thing. The bigger the man is the more loudly he will say it.

The other day I had a few minutes' conversation (I couldn't afford more) with one of the biggest-priced men in this country. "To what," I asked, "do you attribute your own greatness?" He answered without hesitation, "To myself."

"To what," I asked, "do you attribute your greatness?" He answered without hesitation: "To myself."

Well-Hung Personalities.

Yet there was a man who has the reputation of being the second biggest consumer of crude rubber in this country. I asked another man, a large consumer of adjustable bicycle parts, how much he thought he owed of his present commanding position to education. He answered emphatically, "Nothing." Something in his tone made me believe him.

Now the common element in all these men is personality. Each one of them has a developed, balanced, nicely adjusted well-hung personality. You feel that as soon as such a man is in your presence; when he enters a room, you are somehow aware that he has come in. When he leaves, you realize that he has gone out. As soon as he opens his mouth, you know that he is speaking. When he shuts his mouth, you feel that he has stopped.

For the acquirement of personality, the first thing needed is to get into harmony with yourself. You may think that this is difficult. But a little practice will soon show you how. Make the effort, so far as you can, to set up a bilateral harmony between your inner and your outer ego.

When you get this done start and see what you can do to extend yourself in all directions. This is a little hard at first, but the very difficulty will lend zest to the effort. As soon as you begin to feel that you are doing it, then try, gently at first, but with increasing emphasis, to revolve about your own axis. When you have got this working nicely, slowly and carefully at first, lift yourself to a new level of thinking When you have got up there, hold it

The next great thing to be acquired is optimism, cherfulness, the absence of all worry. It is a scientific fact that worry has a physical effect upon the body, clogging up the oesophagus and filling the primary ducts with mud. Cheerfulness, on the other hand, loosens up the whole anatomy by allowing a freer play to the bones.

The Morning Smile.

Begin each day with a smile. When you rise in the morning, throw open your window wide and smile out of it. Don't mind whom you hit with it. When you descend to the breakfast table try to smile at your food, or even break into a pleasant laugh at the sight of it. When you start off to your place of business, enter your street car in a bright and pleasant way, paying your fare to the conductor with a winsome willingness.

When you go into the office, remove your coat and rubbers with a pretty little touch of bonhommie. Ask the janitor, or the night watchman how he has slept. Greet your stenographer with a smile. Open your correspondence with another smile, and when you answer it, try to put into what you write just the little touch of friendly cheerfulness that will win your correspondent's heart. It is amazing how a little touch of personal affection will brighten up the dull routine of business correspondence like a grain of gold in the sand.

Don't sign yourself "Yours truly," but in some such way as "Yours for optimism," "Yours for a hundred per cent cheerfulness." But I will show you what I mean in a more extended way by relating to you the amazing — but well-authenticated — story of the rise and success of Edward Beanhead.

THE REMARKABLE CASE OF EDWARD BEANHEAD.

An Amazing Story of Success.

In presenting the instance of Edwar Beanhead, I may say that I have no doubt whatever of its authenticity. I have seen this story of the rise of Edward Beanhead (under his own and other names) printed in so many journals that it must be true.

Skeptical readers may suggest that Edward must have owed his start in life to early advantages of birth and wealth; he may have been a prince. This is not so. Beanhead had no birth and no wealth. Accounts differ as to where he was born. Some of the documents, as reproduced in the best advertising pages, represent him as a bright little farm boy from Keokuk, Iowa. It is well known, of course, that railroad presidents and heads of colleges come from there.

The only thing of which we can be certain is that Edward Beanhead, as a youth just verging into manhood, was occupying a simple station as some sort of business clerk. Here came the turning point of his life. By a happy accident Edward came across a little booklet entitled Tutankhamen is a Dead One, What are you? Learn personal efficiency in six lessons. Write to the Nut University. Post office box 6, Canal Street, Buffalo.

Five Dynamic Weeks.

From this time on Beanhead's spare minutes were spent in study. We have in proof of this the familiar illustration in which Edward is seen on a high stool, in his office at lunch hour, eating a bun with one hand and studying a book on personality in the other, while at the side, inserted in a sort of little oval, one can see Edward's two office companions playing craps with two young negroes. The picture is now rather rare, the little vignette of the crap game having proved rather too attractive for certain minds; in fact some people quite mistook the legend, "Do you want to make money fast?"

Beanhead took the entire course, occupying five weeks and covering Personality Magnetism, Efficiency, Dynamic Potency, the Science of Power, and Essentials of Leadership.

By the end of his course Edward had reached certain major conclusions. He now saw that Personality is Power: that Optimism opens Opportunity: and that Magnetism Makes Money. He also realized that Harmony makes for Happiness, and that Worry would merely carry his waste products into the ducts and unfit him for success.

The Employer and His Ducts.

Instead of greeting his employer with a cold "Good Morning," as many employees are apt to do, Edward asked his superior how he had slept.

Now notice how the little things count. It so happened that his employer hadn't slept decently for ten years; and yet no employees had ever asked him about it. Naturally he "reacted" at once. Edward reacted back and a few minutes they were in close confabulation.

Beanhead suggested to his employer that perhaps his ducts were clogged with albuminous litter. The senior man gravely answered that in that case he had better raise Edward's salary. Beanhead acquiesced with the sole proviso that in that case he should be allowed to organize his employe's business so as to put it on a strategic footing.

Now observe again how things count. It so happened that this man, although carrying on a business which extended over six states and and out into the ocean, had never thought of organizing it; and he didn't even know what a strategic footing was. The result was a second increase of salary within twenty-four hours.

An Efficiency Footing.

In the weeks that followed Edward Beanhead, now seated in a commodious office with flat-top desk and a view of the ocean and a range of mountains, entirely reorganized the firm's business. His method was simple. The employees were submitted to a ruthless brain-test which eliminated most of them.

The business itself was then plotted out on a chart so designed as to show at a glance all the places where the firm did no business. Banks in which the firm had no money were marked with a cross. By these and other devices Edward rapidly placed the business on a new footing, stopping all the leaks, focusing it to a point, driving it deep into the ground, giving it room to expand, and steering it through the rocks. The situation is perhaps more easily understood by stating that henceforth the motto of the business became "Service."

The natural upshot of it was that before long Edward Beanhead's employer summoned him up to his office and informed him that he was getting old (he was seven weeks older than when we began with him), and that he was now prepared to retire to a monastery or to a golf club, and that if Edward wanted the business he could have it.

Hence at the end we see Edward Beanhead sitting beside his desk, half revolved in a revolving chair and with a beautiful stenographer within easy touch. There are two little placards nailed up, one on each side of his head, bearing the legends "Efficiency' 'and Service.' "

And one wonders where are those fellows who were playing craps with the negroes.

Here and There

(Rocky Mountain News.)

For a good many years politicians have been elected to office on a basis of their pledges of benefits from the county, state or federal government for the district from which they ran. With the advent of the anti-trust laws the pledges turned from post-offices—which are by no means neglected, even in this day and age— to legislation which is supposed to cure most of the ills to which the flesh is heir.

The Sherman act sought to cure certain flagrant trade abuses, and has succeeded, at least in driving them to less obvious methods of operation. That very success seemed to set the pace, however, for we have had a long succession of regulatory measures, bureau and remedial inquiries.

Of a sudden the realization has come that the theory that our legislators must turn out a large number of new laws each term in order to prove their worth is costing a lot of unnecessary money. A recent indication of the reaction is the plank of Meredith Nicholson's in his race for the republican nomination for the legislature in Indiana. He will make no more laws until we catch up with those which we have already.

Still stronger evidence of the awakening comes from Ohio, where a "Lower Taxes-Less Legislation league" has been organized. It has taken unto itself the old prairie schooner as an emblem, and as a slogan, "Let's get back to the ways of our fathers; simplicity, honesty, economy in government." Farm organizations and several influential labor leaders are supporting it.

"Altogether," the circular of the Lower Taxes-Less legislation league are entirely persuaded—indeed, we are firmly convinced—that this nation cannot live or advance by legislation alone, and that the only cure for present taxation burdens is for all public officials to set up business methods, stop increasing padded pay rolls, refuse all appropriations not vitally necessary, and save the homes, farms and business of our country from confiscation by taxation, and thus secure the future of the republic."

Not a bad sentiment, that.

TAKING HIMSELF OUT.

(Kearney Hub.)

No republican, so far as we have observed, is attempting to read any other republican out of the party. It is quite a different matter when any republican takes himself out of the party and tell his fellow partisans to "go to hell."

Nebraska Press

What Is a Republican?

(Blair Pilot.)

The editor of the Fremont Tribune, who is evidently a conservative, or standpatter, of the L. D. Richards type, says that he will not support George W. Norris for senator because he isn't his kind of a republican. Which raises the question, "What is a republican?"

A large majority of those calling themselves republicans in Nebraska voted for Senator Norris in preference to Chas. Sloan, who is the Tribune editor's kind of a republican, so the editor of that paper thinks he is a better republican than Norris and superior in his judgment of republicanism to the majority of those calling themselves republicans in the state.

All of which he has a perfect right to do as a man, but not as a republican, if he believes in majority rule, which he does, and says the party foolishly voted for Norris and have a right to have him as the party nominee, albeit he isn't a good enough republican for the editor of the Tribune to vote for.

What complicates matters still more is that many of these same republicans who voted for Norris also voted for President Coolidge, who is a standpatter of the Sloan type, in preference to Johnson, who call himself a progressive of the Norris type.

He was once, but the progressives evidently don't think he is any longer. Possibly they didn't love Coolidge more, but Johnson less, he having now been repudiated in his own state of California.

Hence the query, What and Who is a republican in Nebraska.

(York News-Times.)

The Safety Institute of New York is sending out warnings in the form of advice to parents everywhere that the season is upon them demanding extra watchfulness over the conduct of their children, especially those of the more tender years. Of an approximate 20,000,000 children given liberty by the end of the school term the Safety Institute estimates that 5,000 will be killed and 100,000 suffer injuries of varying severity during the vacation period. These figures are based upon the ratio of other years, and in the absence of some special caution by parents, may be verified by the records at the end of August.

The institute offers the suggestion that a little time devoted to a special training of the children against the more common risks will be rewarded by better results than an attempt at mere watchfulness alone. According to the Safety Institute the larger number of lives lost from fire, drowning and automobiles and the most dangerous age is fixed at seven years. It is about that age, according to reports, that children are first freed from close parential restraints and watching, and stumble into dangers against which curiosity and ignorance has not been warned.

Too Many Spies.

(Grand Island Independent.)

The investigations of former Secretary Fall and of Attorney General Daugherty, leading to the final proof of the acceptance of $100,000 by the former, and to the resignation of the latter, have emphatically called the attention of the country to one war-time source of both expense and of the loss of democracy. It is the continuation of the war time's spy system, to which the American Civil Liberties Union, Dr. Harry F. Ward, of New York City, chairman, is waging a fight. The Union discloses that whereas before the war 141 detectives or operatives were sufficient, five years after the war 97 are still on the payrolls, making the ultimate taxpayer of the country pay out over $2,500,000 for that sort of work. The Civil Liberties Union and other similar organizatons are protesting to the senate against such extravagant appropriations and the employment of so many spies in times of peace. It certainly would seem that the number could at least be cut in two, which would still leave six for every state in the union, in addition to the scores of department inspectors, or twice as many as before the war.

Sky Views of the Earth

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"What altitude would one have to attain to view the earth in globular form? To see it shining by reflected light? Is there any rule whereby we can tell the area of our vision from any given distance from the body as which we are looking?—B. E. W., The Kiwanis Club, Rock Island, Ill."

You see a part of the earth shining by reflected sunlight every time you look out of the window. If you ever go to the top of a lofty mountain, or up in a balloon, on a clear day, you will see large areas of the earth's surface shining by reflection and looking very much as the moon looks in a telescope, except that the lunar surface does not exhibit the colors of a living world like the earth. Look at the moon by daylight, as you often may, and you will grasp the subject better.

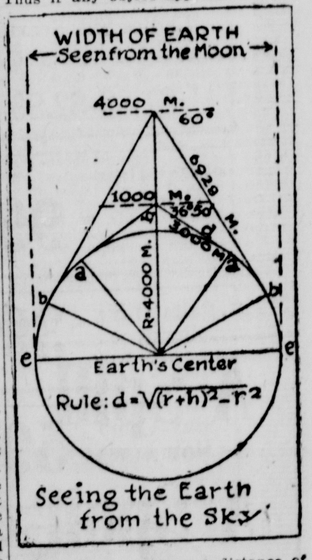

To see the earth in the form of a globe you would have to go farther away from it than any means now at our command permit. Still, at a height of ten miles, over the sea surface, the depression of the horizon below the level of the eye would be about 3½ degrees, and that might make the rotundity evident. Ordinarily from a balloon the surface of the earth within view seems dish-shaped, apparently rising toward the horizon, but this is an optical deception.

If you could get as high as a thousand miles above the ground, the circle of the horizon (neglecting refraction) would be 3,000 miles for your eye on all sides, and the depression of the horizon would be about 36 degrees 50 minutes, so that the rotundity of the globe would be startling evident. It would cover a sky-rimmed circle over a hundred degrees in diameter, or 200 times the diameter of the full moon.

Go up to a height of 4,000 miles i. e., as high above the surface of the earth as the center is below it, and the circle of the horizon would be 6,928 miles from your eye, and you would see, as the diagram shows, an area of the earth's surface equal in diameter to one-third of its circumference, but, owing to the increase of distance, its angular diameter would now shrink to 60 degrees, or less than 120 times the diameter of the full moon.

Thus, as you retreated from the earth you would see an increasingly greater proportion of its surface, but at the same time, and from the same cause, via., increase of distance, the angular size of the earth would decrease.

If, for instance, you went as far as the moon the lines of sight from your eyes (indicated by dotted lines on the diameter would be nearly parallel and you would see, practically, a whole hemisphere of the earth, but it would be less than two degrees in angular diameter, not quite four times as broad as the full moon.

The rule connecting apparent size with distance is very simple, via., the angular diameter of an object varies inversely with the distance. Thus if any object appears one degree in diameter from a distance of one mile it will appear one-half degree in diameter from a distance of two miles. Going the other way, if removed from a distance of one mile to a distance of half a mile its angular diameter would increase to two degrees.

The rule for the distance of the horizon as seen from varying heights above the earth's surface I have inserted in the diagram in mathematical symbols. Those translated read: Distance (of horizon from eye), equals the squareroot of the earth's radius squared. You must put all the quantities in the same units, either all in feet, or all in miles or fractions of a mile. With such formulae you can sit on the earth and survey the universe at your leisure.

BY LULU MAE COE.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things"—

But where he talked of ships and shoes and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings, we'd like to expound on outdoor dancing and picnic luncheons and track meets and queens for who would care about new shoes or red sealing wax or a musty old ship, when you could talk of all the things the Roundup is going to bring?

You can 'most always have a pair of new shoes if you need'em just terribly bad and nobody uses sealing wax any more and cabbages sound like boarding houses and kings are a regular drug on the market nowadays—you can pick one up any where —so why waste time on those outworn and overused commodities?

Why not talk about the university Roundup on June 4, 5, 6, and 7—for, like Santa Claus, it comes but once a year. When June days are bright and warm, when one class of students is going away forever—until Roundup brings them back another year—when the campus is a misty mass of pink and red and orange blossoms and orchid and green and peach frocks—then comes Roundup, the best time of the year.

The Last Call.

This is positively the last call for the third annual Roundup. Nobody is going to remind you of it again this year. There won't be any more stories any where—it's all up to you now. Your little weekly reminder is gone forever—because next Sunday and, sad tale, the Roundup will have become just a bit of happy history, stored away in the minds of a couple of thousand people that are coming.

In case you haven't seen these little weekly bulletins that were all for you, we're going to review the four days just once again. This review is no prima donna, it makes but one "last appearance." If you want to know "What's What in the Roundup," you best cut this out and stick it in your hat, so you'll know all about it when you get here—for of course you are coming. People are coming from all over the world and some of the hamlets and villages are about to be depopulated for those four days this week—yes, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The first thing is the queen. Kings may be de trop but not a pretty, dainty, fluffy queen, that is a Max queen. We couldn't get along without her, because that is about all any one has talked about for the past two months. Her identity isn't known until the last moment, when she appears like an airy, fairy Lillian, so that's the one thing about the Roundup we can't tell you. Therefore—that is one large reason for coming.

We said the first thing was the Queen, but that is hardly correct before she appears the junior, sophomore, and freshmen girls appear with the daisy chain, and are followed by the senior girls with the ivy chain. Then will come the august Mortar Board members, tightly masked from public gaze in their black masks, the class attendants, two girls from each class, the Maid of Honor and her attendants, the cute little crown bearer, and then—behold the Queen.

The whole procession marches to the Little Green theatre, where she is formally crowned queen of the festivities. Following this ceremony, the tiniest and roundest and cutliest youngsters in all Lincoln dance about the Maypole, winding the bright ribbons in and out, and the members of the Women's Athletic association give a group of lovely, graceful dances.

Time for luncheon then—then back to the campus at 2 o'clock for the interfraternity sing, in which all fraternities join in a tuneful chorus, the symbolical planting of the Ivy, and the reading of the senior class poem. At this time, Harris A. Poley of University Place reads the Ivy day oration on "University Citizenship." At 3 o'clock thirteen junior feminine hearts beat high when the black mask is slipped over their eyes and an hour later thirteen masculine hearts do a few flip flops when red gowned Innocents tap the owners and make them members of the order.

Some of the organization banquets will be held at 6 o'clock and 6:30 o'clock, owing to the limited spaces for such affairs in the city. Outdoor dancing will consume the time from 8:45 o'clock to 11:30 o'clock.

Thursday morning opens with the registration of all alumni at the alumni headquarters in the Temple building. The alumni association wants to know the name of every single person who came back for the Roundup and if you don't register, that fact won't be known and you won't get your name in the University Journal next month. So there—see what the penalty of your neglect will be!

At 10:30 o'clock, an alumni meeting for class presidents and delegated representatives will be held in the Temple in Room 101. There is always a lot of business to come before this organization and this time, for those who don't "belong" is to be spent in registering and in renewing acquaintances. Noon brings "eats," an informal luncheon at the chamber of commerce, when the only formality will be chairs, tables, and good food.

Play at Stadium.

The afternoon is open, after the luncheon, for the alumni to do exactly as they wish—but oh! the evening. After some more organization, at 8 o'clock those splendid University Players are to perform at the Stadium. They are to give "Suppressed Desires," which by actual count brings more laughs to the square inch than any other comedy ever written and, "Doctor in Spite of Himself," which is a French farce of endless humor. You are invited to an after-theater party Thursday, too—for there'll be more dancing under the June stars.

Friday, the day gets under way early. The honor class, the class of 1904, meets for breakfast at 9:30 at the Chamber of Commerce. Fifteen minutes lateer, although we fear the '04 ladies will be notable by their absence, there is to be a most important alumnae meeting at Ellen Smith hall. Under the direction of Miss Madeline Girard, all kinds of questions pertaining to women students and the future of women in the university will be discussed.

After this meeting, and during this meeting, friends will be meeting friends and forgotten acquaintances will be renewing memories on the campus. Each class has its designated point of reunion outdoors on the campus and it has been so arranged that classes that were in school together will be placed in the same vicinity—for no one ever had all his friends in his own class—and this will make it easy to see all the "old bunch."

Picnic and Stunts.

Following the reunions—they are elastic and last all day—a pageant, "The Forest Princess," will be given by the home economics girls. Betty Sawyer has the part of the Sleeping Beauty and is surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls and brave youths who seek to break the spell cast upon her. The pageant was given at the Farmers' Fair and elicited all kinds of enthusiastic comment.

At noon comes the picnic luncheon, outdoors on a nice, shady campus spot. If you don't like picnics there will be chairs and tables, but you will like the food, so you don't want to miss it. Emory Buckner, member of the class of 904 and member of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner, and Howland in New York City, will give the alumni oration. After that—not the deluge—but the general alumni meeting, conducted by Victor Smith of Omaha, president of the Alumni association.

Later in the day comes the class stunts by the five year classes and the Alumni medal meet, arranged for men and women in the university who haven't made their "N," Medals bearing the name of the alumni record holder in the event in which each places will be awarded the winner of first place. The second part of the meet the record holders among the alumni are to have exhibition events against the varsity men—and that's going to be real fun.

BY LULU MAE COE.

"The time has come," the Walrus said, "to talk of many things"—

But where he talked of ships and shoes and sealing wax, of cabbages and kings, we'd like to expound on outdoor dancing and picnic luncheons and track meets and queens. For who would care about new shoes or red sealing wax or a musty old ship, when you could talk of all the things the Roundup is going to bring?

You can 'most always have a pair of new shoes if you need'em just terribly bad and nobody uses sealing wax any more and cabbages sound like boarding houses and kings are a regular drug on the market nowadays—you can pick one up any where —so why waste time on those outworn and overused commodities?

Why not talk about the university Roundup on June 4, 5, 6, and 7—for, like Santa Claus, it comes but once a year. When June days are bright and warm, when one class of students is going away forever—until Roundup brings them back another year—when the campus is a misty mass of pink and red and orange blossoms and orchid and green and peach frocks—then comes Roundup, the best time of the year.

The Last Call.

This is positively the last call for the third annual Roundup. Nobody is going to remind you of it again this year. There won't be any more stories any where—it's all up to you now. Your little weekly reminder is gone forever—because next Sunday sad, sad tale, the Roundup will have become just a bit of happy history, stored away in the minds of a couple of thousand people that are coming.

In case you haven't seen these little weekly bulletins that were all for you, we're going to review the four days just once again. This review is no prima donna, it makes but one "last appearance." If you want to know "What's What in the Roundup," you best cut this out and stick it in your hat, so you'll know all about it when you get here—for of course you are coming. People are coming from all over the world and some of the hamlets and villages are about to be depopulated for those four days this week—yes, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

The first thing is the queen. Kings may be de trop, but not a pretty, dainty, fluffy queen, that is a Max queen. We couldn't get along without her, because that is about all any one has talked about for the past two months. Her identity isn't known until the last moment, when she appears like an airy, fairy Lillian, so that's the one thing about the Roundup we can't tell you. Therefore—that is one large reason for coming.

We said the first thing was the Queen, but that is hardly correct. Before she appears the junior, sophomore, and freshmen girls appear with the daisy chain, and are followed by the senior girls with the Ivy chain. Then will come the august Mortar Board members, tightly masked from public gaze in their black masks, the class attendants, two girls from each class, the Maid of Honor and her attendants, the cute little crown bearer, and then—behold the Queen.

The whole procession marches to the Little Green theatre, where she is formally crowned queen of the festivities. Following this ceremony, the tiniest and roundest and cudliest youngsters in all Lincoln dance about the Maypole, winding the bright ribbons in and out, and the members of the Women's Athletic association give a group of lovely, graceful dances.

Time for luncheon then—then back to the campus at 2 o'clock for the interfraternity sing, in which all fraternities join in a tuneful chorus, the symbolical planting of the Ivy, and the reading of the senior class poem. At this time, Harris A. Poley of University Place reads the Ivy day oration on "University Citizenship." At 3 o'clock thirteen junior feminine hearts beat high when the black mask is slipped over their eyes and an hour later thirteen masculine hearts do a few flip flops when red gowned Innocents tap the owners and make them members of the order.

Some of the organization banquets will be held at 6 o'clock and 6:30 o'clock, owing to to the limited spaces for such affairs in the city. Outdoor dancing will consume the time from 8:45 o'clock to 11:30 o'clock.

Thursday moraing opens with the registration of all alumni at the alumni headquarters in the Temple building. The alumni association wants to know the name of every single person who came back for the Roundup and if you don't register, that fact won't be known and you won't get your name in the University Journal next month. So there—see what the penalty of your neglect will be!

At 10:30 o'clock, an alumni meeting for class presidents and delegated representatives will be held in the Temple in Room 101. There is always a lot of business to come before this organization and this time, for those who don't "belong" is to be spent in registering and in renewing acquaintances. Noon brings "eats," an informal luncheon at the chamber of commerce, when the only formality will be chairs, tables, and good food.

COMMITTEE ISSUES CALL TO MINISTERS.

The Women's National committee for law enforcement, located at 25 Madison Avenue, New York City, has issued the following call to the ministers of the nation:

The Woman's National committee for Law Enforcement with the backing of eleven great organizations issues a call to the ministers of all churches to enlist the active co-operation of their congregations to fight every effort to insert a "wet" or even a 'damp" plank in either party's platform. Every effort will be used to have both parties come out strongly for law enforcement with special regard to prohibition. They are asked to oppose all "wet" candidates, and if possible, to pass resolutions in the congregation asking both parties to insert a strong statement for law enforcement, especially in connection with the eighteenth amendment, and its accompanying enforcement legislation. This call is to be presented Sunday, June 1.

The twelve national organizations of women co-operating with a combined membership of ten million are the following:

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mannington, W. Virginia.—"I took the Vegetable Compound when having the turn of life. I had been sick for seven years. I would get a little better, then I broke down again. It would be hard for me to describe how I was, for I was a perfect wreck. I suffered with a pain in my left side, then I would have numb spells, and I would think I couldn't live. I would have hot flashes, then would come weak spells. I was so weak I would think I couldn't ever get a meal ready. My work was a burden to me. I was not able to do my housework half of the time. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has given me strength and health. The hot flashes left me and I got better of the numb spells. That summer I could do my housework and worked in the garden a good bit. I tell all sick women what your wonderful medicine did for me, and will always recommend it. I am known to all my neighbors, and you can publish this statement because it is true."—Mrs. JOHN W. WALSH, R. No. 1, Box 86, Mannington, West Virginia.

COMMITTEE ISSUES CALL TO MINISTERS.

The Women's National committee for law enforcement, located at 25 Madison Avenue, New York City, has issued the following call to the ministers of the nation:

The Woman's National committee for Law Enforcement with the backing of eleven great organizations issues a call to the ministers of all churches to enlist the active co-operation of their congregations to fight every effort to insert a "wet" or even a 'damp" plank in either party's platform. Every effort will be used to have both parties come out strongly for law enforcement with special regard to prohibition. They are asked to oppose all "wet" candidates, and if possible, to pass resolutions in the congregation asking both parties to insert a strong statement for law enforcement, especially in connection with the eighteenth amendment, and its accompanying enforcement legislation. This call is to be presented Sunday, June 1.

The twelve national organizations of women co-operating with a combined membership of ten million are the following:

Federation of Women's boards of Foreign Missions of North America, Council of Women for Home Missions, Young Women's Christian association, International Order of Kink's Naughters, National Council of Women, Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association, Woman's Christian Temperance union, League of Women Voters, American Association of University Women, General Federation of Women's Clubs, American Legion Auxiliary and Lend-A-Hand society.

Florence Wing will teach kindergarten in her home city, Harvard, next year.

John Johansen has accepted a fellowship in the department of sociology at the University of Nebraska for next year.

Prof. John M. Aikman as president of the Wesleyan alumni association addressed the seniors Wednesday with an invitation to join the association and attend the annual banquet on June 2. Later in the day he made a similar request of the faculty.

Prof. Phoebe May Hopper of the English department at Nebraska Wesleyan will spend the summer in the east. Her plans include six weeks study at Columbia university.

Miss Pearl Sherlock of the senior class also expects to attend Columbia university this summer to prepare for her duties as assistant dean of women at Wesleyan next year. She will also continue her duties as Y W. C. A. secretary.

Coach Glen Preston occupied the chapel platform Wednesday with a plea that students go after prospective students for the coming year. He declared that it was not good sportsmanship for a coach to make such endeavor. The coach assigned medals to honor men in the recent track meet.

Walter Neth plans to leave for Boston this month. He will attend the Boston university school of theology next year and will hold a student pastorate at Worcester. Mrs. Neth will visit relatives in the western part of Nebraska and Denver before joining her husband in Massachusetts.

The last faculty meeting of the year was held at Nebraska Wesleyan Wednesday. Candidates for diplomas and certificates were passed upon. Recommendations were made by Deans F. A. Alabaster, B. E. McProud and Parvin Witte. Prof. J. C. Jensen proposed that one central authority be named by the faculty to have charge of the 1925 high school day at Nebraska Wesleyan. No action was taken in the absence of the chancellor.

Dean Witte of Nebraska Wesleyan reports that the Wesleyan glee club sang this year for audiences that totalled 26,000 people, many of college age. A list of towns where the club plans to give concerts in 1924-'25 was approved by the faculty this week.

Clara Thomas Hoffman of St. Paul, Minn., has sent a note of thanks to the department of publicity at Nebraska Wesleyan for the news letter which was sent for a joint meeting of Nebraska Wesleyan alumni of that city and Minneapolis this spring.

The summer school of theology for youthful candidates for admission to the Nebraska conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held June 10 to 20 at Nebraska Wesleyan university in University Place. This is a part of a nation wide movement to equip the young preacher for his work. The Rev. Allen McRossie of New York is the educational director of the movement. The chairman of the Nebraska school is N. A. Martin, formerly of Omaha, now of Elgin, Nebraska. The registrar is Neal Johnson of Wahoo.

Among the special lecturers provided for the school at Wesleyan is the Rev. James Elvin Wagner of the Omaha First Methodist Episcopal who will speak on the evening of June 16 from the subject, "The Delivery of the Sermon." Other lecturers will be President Edwin Dunlavy who will deliver six addresses on "Homiletic Values in Literature," Rev. J. R. Gettys will discuss the general conference of 1924 and Prof. I. G. Whitchurch of the Garrett biblical institute will discuss a variety of subjects that concern the preacher.

Sermon clinics will be a feature of the school. These will be conducted by Rev. F. F. Travis. The youthful candidates will be required to submit samples of their sermons ten days before the opening of the school in University Place.

Round table discussions will be another feature of the school. Leaders for this will be Rev. A. V. Hunter of Gothenburg, Rev. E. L. Geissinger of Columbus and Rev. H. E. Hess of North Platte. Subjects to be considered in the round tables will deal with the keeping of church records, preparation of sermons and the right attitude towards present controversies in the field of religion.

The alumni chapel exercises will be held at 10:00 a. m., Tuesday. Under the direction of Miss Mattie Theobald '13, principal of the academy, a very goo program is being prepared. The program is to include stereoptican views of prominent alumni in their student days a number of short talks by graduates, quartette nummbers by the alumni male qaurtette, and old songs led by H. M. Fuhr of the conservatory of music. Rev. James Brown '99, who is now a field representative for the college will preside at the meeting and among the alumni who will speak are Jacob Bitner, D. M. Montgomery, Clyde Aitchison, and Miss Mabel Vance. The graduating class of this year will present their class gift to the college at this time.

At the final chapel exercises which are to be held on Monday morning the men on the 1924 basketball squad will be awarded their sweaters as a part of the exercise.

Prof. and Mrs. R. C. Reager left for Chicago during the past week where Mrs. Reagor will have charge of supervision work in the playgrounds of the city. During the past year Prof. Reagor has been at the head of women's physical education. Both Mr and Mrs. Reagor have been very acitve in school activities and will be missed during the coming year.

On Tuesday afternoon of this week a number of students will present a group of one-act plays. The plays were prepared during the past week under the direction of Prof. Reager.

The alumni and former student dinner will be held in Taylor hall at 6:30 on Tuesday evening of this week. A very large number of former students and alumni will be present for this annual affair.

DOANE NOTES

Mr. Harold M. Smith, '18 of Hubbell, and his wife, have been visiting in Crete during the past week, in attendance at the funeral of Mr. Smith grandmother, Mrs. Mullen.

Tuesday morning at the alumni chapel, the alumni address will be given by Professor J. C. Lindberg, '99, a student who has made a name for himself and who is now teaching in Aberdeen, S. D. Mr. Lindberg has made his reputation on his poetical ability, as a writer of songs and poems. He has lately gotten out a little book of poems which has attracted favorable attention.

Mrs. Addison E. Sheldon, '86, of Lincoln left Wednesday night for California where she is a delegate to the biennial of national federation of women's clubs. She will make an extended visit and expects to get in touch with the Doane clubs of southern and northern California, in the interests of the campaign.

Mrs. G. W. Wattles of Hollywood, Calif., returned to her home last week She has been visiting her sister, Mrs. R. D. Brown of Crete, who is recovering from a serious illness. Mrs. Wattles took little Barbara Brown with her for the summer.

COLLEGE VIEW NOTES

The summer session of Union college will begin Monday, May 2. Professor W. J. McComb, history teacher at the college, will act as principal of the summer session, and a large corps of teachers, largely chosen from the regular college faculty, will carry on the class work. The summer school has been extended this year to twelve weeks instead of eight as formerly, thus making it possible for the student to get credit for twelve hours work. A large enrollment is expected.

Dr. B. E. Nicola, who with his family is driving to California, has been making good time on the road according to word received from him by friends here. At last report the party were in Arizon and all was well.

Professor Homer F. Saxton is in St. Louis, where he will spend two weeks in the interests of the college.

Miss Virginia Rees returned home Friday from Grand Valley, Colo., where she has been teaching school. Miss Rees was preceptress in the Inter Mountain Academy.

Elder H. E. Lysinger and family left during the week for Nashville, Tenn., where they will make their future home. Elder Lysinger having been elected president of the Tennessee conference. Mrs. Lysinger and children expect to visit relatives in Missouri on their way to Nashville.

Felix Lorenz has resigned his position as Home Missionary secretary of the Nebraska Conference, and is moving from Grand Island to College View. He expects to engage with his brother in carpentry work.

Wilton Halverson and family left last Wednesday to visit Mr. Halverson's folks in Minnesota. At the close of the summer he expects to enter the Loma Linda Medical college in California.

Mrs. Sadie Paris, Miss Ferne Paris, and Mr. Forest Leffingwell left in their auto for Rifle, Colo.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mannington, W. Virginia.—"I took the Vegetable Compound when having the turn of life. I had been sick for seven years. I would get a little better, then I broke down again. It would be hard for me to describe how I was for I was a perfect wreck. I suffered with a pain in my left side, then I would have numb spells, and I would think I couldn't live. I would have hot flashes, then would come weak spells. I was so weak I would think I couldn't ever get a meal ready. My work was a burden to me. I was not able to do my housework half of the time. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has given me strength and health. The hot flashes left me and I got better of the numb spells. That summer I could do my housework and worked in the garden a good bit. I tell all sick women what your wonderful medicine did for me, and will always recommend it. I am known to all my neighbors, and you can publish this statement because it is true."—Mrs. JOHN W. WALSH, R. No. 1, Box 36, Mannington, West Virginia.

Marriage of Marylouise Bryan At Executive Mansion To Be One Of Interesting Events In June

Today is the first day of June, the month of brides and roses. Of brides there will be many for June. This year is no exception and one charming wedding after another will occupy the time and thoughts of society during the entire month.

The only daughter of Nebraska's governor, Miss Marylouise Bryan, will be a June bride. Her engagement and marriage on June 19 to William Ernest Harnsberger, son of W. A. Harnsberger of Ashland, is announced today by Governor and Mrs. Bryan. The ceremony will take place at the executive mansion.

The very first of the June brides will be Miss Ethel Donelson whose marriage to Joe Hickman will be solemnized this afternoon at 3 o'clock at their future home, 2035 Sewell street.

Two weddings are scheduled for Wednesday of this week Miss Mary Lois Ford will be married to Charles O. Eckles in the afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Ford, 2116 South Sixteenth street, and that evening at 8:30 o'clock is the wedding of Miss Harriet Elizabeth Campbell to Fred Harvey Shultz at the Campbell home, 343 North Twenty-seventh street.

Saturday is a favorite day for weddings and threo are planned for next Saturday. Miss Marguerite Munger will become the bride of Charles H. Deterly, the ceremony to be held at 3 o'clock that afternoon at the Dr I. C. Munger home, 2936 South street. Another afternoon wedding will be that of Miss Ida Browitt to Darrell R. Weaver at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Browitt of University Place The Delta Zeta chapter house will be the scene of a large wedding in the evening when Miss Ruth Ellsworth is married to Lloyd Chapman.

The first of the weddings for the following week will be that of Miss Elizabeth Fox, daughter of Mrs. George H Fox, to Otto McGinley, which will take place Monday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's cathedral.

The following day will be that of Miss Janet Chase to George Sullivan, which will be a quiet home affair

Weddings for Wednesday, June 11, include that of Miss Susan Riches to Claude C. Minteer at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E Taylor; Miss Ella Larsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Larsen of Friend to Oakley Cox of Lincoln at the First Presbyterian church; Miss Dorothy Aylsworth, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Raymond G. Aylsworth and granddaughter of Dr. William Prince Aylsworth, to Frank H. Kennedy of Tecumseh at 2:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents in Bethany

Miss Josephine Weatherhogg will become the bride of Homer Varder of Beatrice on June 12 and the same day will occur the marriage of Miss Grace Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Long of Verona, O., to John C. Speer of Lincoln.

Weddings planned for later in the month are those of Miss Hazel Poe to Elbert G. Brown June 18 at the Vine Congregational church; Miss Mary Nelle McCandless to Paul D Baker at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. L McCandless of University Place for June 25 Miss Florence Immenhausen to Harold Leinberger, June 25; Miss Pauline Katherine Greisinger of Median, O., to Willard Wood McClelland of Lincoln; Miss Arline Abbott to Myron Noble; Miss Cora Violet Richardson to Herbert Isham; Miss Elsie M. Two attractive Lincoln girls, who chose to become brides at a double ceremony are Mrs. MacMeekin and Mrs. Jackson. Mrs. MacMeekin, who before her marriage was Miss Fern Jackson, is the bride of Donald W. MacMeekin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. MacMeekin of Hollywood, Cal., and Mrs Jackson, formerly Miss Edna Fitzsimmons, is the bride of William Cable Jackson, Mrs. MacMeekin's brother. They are the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jackson. The beautifully arranged ceremonies which were solemnized Wednesday evening at the Second Presbyterian church, were attended by several hundred guests.

The scheme for the weddings was unusually lovely and the gowns of the brides and their attendants in which soft pastel colors were beautifully blended were charming and qquaint. Mrs. MacMeekin's gown was of tinsel brocade, sleeveless bodice, with skirit draped at one side and fashioned with long, slender train A tulle veil trimmed with Chantilly lace fell from a lace cap. Mrs. Jackson wore white metal cloth with court train of silk net weighted with ruffles of net, orange blossoms and lover's knots of satin. A simple veil of tulle had a dainty lace cap.

The brides' attendants wore frocks of georgette in yellow, blue, coral, orchid and green made with full skirts and long semi-fitted bodices with wide lace berthas. They were Miss Cook, Miss Wattles, Miss Guthrie, Miss Gilligan, Miss Moyer and Miss Wilson, who where the bridesmaids; Miss Fitzsimmons and Miss Coryell, who served as maids of honor and Mrs. DeMoulin, who was matron of honor for Mrs MacMeekin. The children of the wedding parties, Elizabeth Ann DeMoulin and Pershing Kuenstler and Jean Holtz and Burke Hinds, were dressed in a style similar to that of the other members of the party—the little girls in quaint frocks of pink and the boys in black satin suits.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMeekin will spend several weeks motoring through Colorado and after their return will be at home in the St. Frances apartments.

1923. He is now associated with T. S. Allen in law.

GRAUENHORST-SCHLUNTZ

The marriage of Miss Erna Grauenhorst, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. L. Grauenhorst, and Paul Schluntz of University Place took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the German Zion church. The marriage lines were read by the bride's father.

At 2 o'clock, the church bells announced the ceremony, after which Mrs. O. E. Bloch, sister of the bride, played the Lohengrin wedding music. The officiating minister made a brief address to the guests and Clyde Davis and Martin Grauenhorst gave a violin and organ number of "Mighty Lak a Rose." After the marriage service, they played "The End of a Perfect Day."

Miss Lillian Schluntz was the bridesmaid and her frock was of pale blue georgette, trimmed with lace She carried sweet peas in pastel shades. Gerald Niederdeppe carried a basket of flower petals, which he strewed before the bridal couple. He wore blue velvet with a white blouse. Martin Grauenhorst was the best man.

Marylouise Bryan To Wed

An interesting and lovely June bride will be Miss Bryan, whose engagement to William Ernest Harnsberger of Ashland is announced today by Governor and Mrs. C. W. Bryan. The wedding will take place June 19 at the executive mansion.

Miss Bryan is a graduate of Lincoln high school and has attended the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Harnsberger is a son of W A Harnsberger of Ashland, and was graduated from Phillips Exeter academy, Exeter, N. H., in 1912, completing his course at the university in 1916 He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi. He was commissioned lieutenant at the first officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, and served overseas.

Women Golfers To Compete In Lincoln Tourney

The annual open day at the Lincoln Country club for the women golfers of the state will be held on Wednesday of this week. Invitations have been sent to the different clubs over the state and to the Antelope club of Lincoln inviting the women of the clubs to come to Lincoln for that day. The golf tournaments will start at 9 o'clock and as the players arrive foursomes will be made up and the groups started off. Attractive prizes have been selected for the winners of the different events

Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and in the afternoon there will be bridge, swimming, tennis and more golf.

The open golf day of last year was the most successful open day in the history of the club, and the one this year promises to equal if not surpass the one of last year. It all depends upon the weather man. Many parties motored from towns near and far for golf, bridge and swimming.

Activities At the Country Club

Two hundred guests dined at the Country club last evening. Among the very attractive dinner parties was the one for thirty-six guests for which Mrs. W. H. Dorgan was hostess; one of forty covers presided over by Mr. and Mrs. N H. Gardner, and the one numbering eighteen which Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hutchins gave in honor of Miss Grace Aitken and Miss Gertrude Aitken, who returned a week ago from a sojourn of several months in California. Mrs. R. E Moore entertained six guests at dinne and Ed Pettis of Omaha had a reservation for a party of four.

A Dutch treat party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hurtz of Omaha included Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A Wilson, Mr. and Mrs Harvey Rathbone, Mrs. William Bates, Mrs Helen Avery and Dr. James E M. Thompson

Col. and Mrs. John G. Maher have issued invitations to a dinner dance, which they will give Monday evening of this week at the Country club. The guests will number eighty.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Butler announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ann Ernst, to Milton H. Gottberg of Columbus. The wedding will take place the latter part of June at the home of Miss Ernst's sister, Mrs. A. T. Hagstrom, 1745 South Twelfth street. Miss Ernst is a former student of the university and Mr. Gottberg is connected with the Gottberg Motor company of Columbus, where the couple will make their home.

Mr and Mrs. H. C. Young announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn, to Thomas S. Higgins of Pittsburgh. The wedding will take place in the autumn in Cincinnati, where members of Miss Young's family reside and the young couple will make their home in Pittsburgh.

Today is the first day of June, the month of brides and roses. Of brides there will be many for June. This year is no exception and one charming wedding after another will occupy the time and thoughts of society during the entire month.

The only daughter of Nebraska's governor, Miss Marylouise Bryan, will be a June bride. Her engagement and marriage on June 19 to William Ernest Harnsberger, son of W. A. Harnsberger of Ashland, is announced today by Governor and Mrs. Bryan. The ceremony will take place at the executive mansion.

The very first of the June brides will be Miss Ethel Donelson whose marriage to Joe Hickman will be solemnized this afternoon at 3 o'clock at their future home, 2035 Sewell street.

Two weddings are scheduled for Wednesday of this week. Miss Mary Lois Ford will be married to Charles O. Eckles in the afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Ford, 2116 South Sixteenth street, and that evening at 8:30 o'clock is the wedding of Miss Harriet Elizabeth Campbell to Fred Harvey Shultz at the Campbell home, 343 North Twenty-seventh street.

Saturday is a favorite day for weddings and three are planned for next Saturday. Miss Marguerite Munger will become the bride of Charles H. Deterly, the ceremony to be held at 3 o'clock that afternoon at the Dr. I. C. Munger home, 2936 South street. Another afternoon wedding will be that of Miss Ida Browitt to Darrell R. Weaver at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Browitt of University Place. The Delta Zeta chapter house will be the scene of a large wedding in the evening when Miss Ruth Ellsworth is married to Lloyd Chapman.

The first of the weddings for the following week will be that of Miss Elizabeth Fox, daughter of Mrs. George H. Fox, to Otto McGinley, which will take place Monday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's cathedral.

The following day will be that of Miss Janet Chase to George Sullivan, which will be a quiet home affair.

Mrs. Donald W. MacMeekin

Two attractive Lincoln girls, who chose to become brides at a double ceremony are Mrs. MacMeekin and Mrs. Jackson. Mrs. MacMeekin, who before her marriage was Miss Fern Jackson, is the bride of Donald W. MacMeekin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. MacMeekin of Hollywood, Cal., and Mrs. Jackson, formerly Miss Edna Fitzsimmons, is the bride of William Cable Jackson, Mrs. MacMeekin's brother. They are the son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jackson. The beautifully arranged ceremonies which were solemnized Wednesday evening at the Second Presbyterian church, were attended by several hundred guests.

The scheme for the weddings was unusually lovely and the gowns of the brides and their attendants in which soft pastel colors were beautifully blended were charming and qquaint. Mrs. MacMeekin's gown was of tinsel brocade, sleeveless bodice, with skirit draped at one side and fashioned with long, slender train. A tulle veil trimmed with Chantilly lace fell from a lace cap. Mrs. Jackson wore white metal cloth with court train of silk net weighted with ruffles of net, orange blossoms and lover's knots of satin. A simple veil of tulle had a dainty lace cap.

The brides' attendants wore frocks of georgette in yellow, blue, coral, orchid and green made with full skirts and long semi-fitted bodices with wide lace berthas. They were Miss Cook, Miss Wattles, Miss Guthrie, Miss Gilligan, Miss Moyer and Miss Wilson, who where the bridesmaids; Miss Fitzsimmons and Miss Coryell, who served as maids of honor and Mrs. DeMoulin, who was matron of honor for Mrs. MacMeekin. The children of the wedding parties, Elizabeth Ann DeMoulin and Pershing Kuenstler and Jean Holtz and Burke Hinds, were dressed in a style similar to that of the other members of the party—the little girls in quaint frocks of pink and the boys in black satin suits.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMeekin will spend several weeks motoring through Colorado and after their return will be at home in the St. Frances apartments.

1923. He is now associated with T. S. Allen in law.

GRAUENHORST-SCHLUNTZ

The marriage of Miss Erna Grauenhorst, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. L. Grauenhorst, and Paul Schluntz of University Place took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the German Zoar church. The marriage lines were read by the bride's father.

At 2 o'clock, the church bells announced the ceremony, after which Mrs. O. E. Bloch, sister of the bride, played the Lohengrin wedding music. The officiating minister made a brief address to the guests and Clyde Davis and Martin Grauenhorst gave a violin and organ number of "Mighty Lak a Rose." After the marriage service, they played "The End of a Perfect Day."

Miss Lillian Schluntz was the bridesmaid and her frock was of pale blue georgette, trimmed with lace. She carried sweet peas in pastel shades. Gerald Niederdeppe carried a basket of flower petals, which he strewed before the bridal couple. He wore blue velvet with a white blouse. Martin Grauenhorst was the best man.

Marylouise Bryan To Wed

An interesting and lovely June bride will be Miss Bryan, whose engagement to William Ernest Harnsberger of Ashland is announced today by Governor and Mrs. C. W. Bryan. The wedding will take place June 19 at the executive mansion.

Miss Bryan is a graduate of Lincoln high school and has attended the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Harnsberger is a son of W. A. Harnsberger of Ashland, and was graduated from Phillips Exeter academy, Exeter, N. H., in 1912, completing his course at the university in 1916. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi. He was commissioned lieutenant at the first officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, and served overseas.

Women Golfers To Compete In Lincoln Tourney

The annual open day at the Lincoln Country club for the women golfers of the state will be held on Wednesday of this week. Invitations have been sent to the different clubs over the state and to the Antelope club of Lincoln inviting the women of the clubs to come to Lincoln for that day. The golf tournaments will start at 9 o'clock and as the players arrive foursomes will be made up and the groups started off. Attractive prizes have been selected for the winners of the different events.

Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and in the afternoon there will be bridge, swimming, tennis and more golf.

The open golf day of last year was the most successful open day in the history of the club, and the one this year promises to equal if not surpass the one of last year. It all depends upon the weather man. Many parties motored from towns near and far for golf, bridge and swimming.

Activities At the Country Club

Two hundred guests dined at the Country club last evening. Among the very attractive dinner parties was the one for thirty-six guests for which Mrs. W. H. Dorgan was hostess; one of forty covers presided over by Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Gardner, and the one numbering eighteen which Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hutchins gave in honor of Miss Grace Aitken and Miss Gertrude Aitken, who returned a week ago from a sojourn of several months in California. Mrs. R. E. Moore entertained six guests at dinne and Ed Pettis of Omaha had a reservation for a party of four.

A Dutch treat party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hurtz of Omaha included Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rathbone, Mrs. William Bates, Mrs. Helen Avery and Dr. James E. M. Thompson.

Col. and Mrs. John G. Maher have issued invitations to a dinner dance, which they will give Monday evening of this week at the Country club. The guests will number eighty.

Romance of Solid Silver

Social Customs Woven with Precious Metal for Centuries

Our social customs, of course, come from our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. It has been said that the social customs have been indicative of the progress of civilization, particularly those customs relating to the art of entertaining and table manners. Hospitality, from the beginning of time, has always had a softening and cultivating influence upon men, families, tribes and nations.

Silver has been in use for countless thousands of years. The beauty of this metal early attracted attention, and it is not wonderful that the properties which rendered them so available to the workman should have long been understood and appreciated. Its malleability, ductility and brilliant polish have been known from time immemorial and it has been worshiped, honored and valued by every nation that has left any mark on the pages of history. It is no wonder that it has been called, and that it really is, the "Queen of Metals."

There have been found silver trinkets and vessels in eras before recorded history. Silver objects and silver for decoration were found in King Tut's tomb. Discoveries in the ancient Ur of Chaldees have just shown that the art of silversmithing was known in a civilization that antedated the Egyptian. The early books of the Bible indicate that many thousands of years before Christ goldsmiths and silversmiths existed and fashioned sacred vessels, ornamnets and rude utensils for the wealthy and noble of their time. We know that the tabernacle and the other sacred structures were richly embellished with silver.

Down through the pages of Greek and Roman history we find repeated reference to articles of silver as indicative of the wealth, culture and prosperity of the peoples, and antiques of the time show in substance the love and craftsmanship which it merited.

In both ancent and modern times, the table has been the place for the most extensive use and display of silver. Plates, dishes, bowls, cups, spoons and other articles have usually found their best expression in gold or silver, and the great designers have devoted much of their time and skill to the pieces necessary for good living in the older days, just as modern silversmiths are giving their best for the modern table.

It is surprising to know how few articles were necessary at a dining table in the "good old times" of five or six hundred years ago. One of the most important articles, and practically the only one furnished by the host was the salt, standing salt. This was a large erect object, sometimes two feet in height, massive in its weight, nearly always of silver. The salts were used from the earliest times and, up to three hundred years ago, were covered, undoubtedly because of the universal fear of poison. You are familiar with the expression "sitting above the salt." It meant exactly that, for the salt placed upon the table denoted the dividing line of rank or importance. Those in the favor sat above, the others below the salt. Until the Salt was placed upon the table no one could tell what his relative position would be. In some cases the guests might be supplied with small trenchers, called the salt trenchers, into which salt was placed from the standing salt. Our individual salt cellars today are nothing but the survival of the ancient custom. Hospitality in those days did not require the host to provide his guests with anything but food. Guests brought their eating utensils with them—and they were extremely simple—a spoon, a knife, possibly a plate or trencher, and most important or all, quick fingers and strong nands There was no question of washing dishes then—that unpleasant part of the housework was done by the guests, for each cleaned his utensils in his own peculiar and individual way

The domestic economy of those days was extremely simple. Those who could afford to have silver, of course had a silver spoon, and the salt and trenchers were of silver. The silver referred to in these times is what is today known as Solid Silver, or Sterling Silver. There was no such thing as an imitation until about 1750. Solid Silver in the home, 500 years ago, was just as much an evidence of appreciation of the best as it is today.

The host and a few of the great sat on chairs; the rest upon benches, or as they might be able to provide for themselves. Sitting upon a chair at meat, was an honor given only to those who sat above the salt. In these days of democracy we all sit on chairs. We have our individual silver.

Even as late at Queen Elizabeth's time, the laying of the table in the homes of the gentry was a matter of some ceremony, requiring the placing of certain dishes in prescribed places by gentlemen armed with the wands, with bowing and much kneeling, and the presence of certain attendants

With the growth of table manners came the modern hollow ware, coffees, teas, sugars, creams, the vegetable dishes, etc. Candlesticks, of course, are very old, for before the days of oil, candles were the only light known. And the candlestick, in some form was a necessity.

Modern silver stamped "Sterling" means that the silver metal is 925-1000 pure silver and is governed by law. The other 75-1000 is copper, as it is necessary to use some alloy to harden the metal. An article of silver stamped "Sterling" is made all the way through of the same precious metal. Its beauty will never wear off, and the piece if made in substantial weight will last for generations.

Fred Hallett, jeweler, has assembled an excellent assortment of Sterling flat and hollow ware and as this is National Sterling Week he would be pleased to have you see the new things in Silver.—Advertisement.

GEORGE BROS.
House of Gifts Beautiful

George Bros. is the mecca for many of the searchers: For just as there is one jeweler for engagement rings, one florist for the bridal bouquet, one caterer famed for the wedding breakfast, just so is our Gift Shop distinguished above all others as the Shop of Smartest Gifts.

Hand made Gifts of Leather.
Decorated Baskets and Trays.
Book Ends in bronze and polychrome.

Steuben Glass

Each piece is an original, produced singly, by a man who models individuality and knowledge into his work, therefore, it takes its place rightfully, among those rare modern decorative objects, which eventually will become precious heirlooms.

The demand for Costume Jewelry is greater than ever. Each costume and every occasion demands its special style and color.

Distinctive numbers in Chokers for the tailored suits. Longer strings for afternoon, long chains of Pearls for evening.

Wedding Invitations

Our social customs, of course, come from our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. It has been said that the social customs have been indicative of the progress of civilization, particularly those customs relating to the art of entertaining and table manners. Hospitality, from the beginning of time, has always had a softening and cultivating influence upon men, families, tribes and nations.

Silver has been in use for countless thousands of years. The beauty of this metal early attracted attention, and it is not wonderful that the properties which rendered them so available to the workman should have long been understood and appreciated. Its mallaebility, ductility and brilliant polish have been known from time immemorial and it has been worshiped, honored and valued by every nation that has left any mark on the pages of history. It is no wonder that it has been called, and that it really is, the "Queen of Metals."

There have been found silver trinkets and vessels in eras before recorded history. Silver objects and silver for decoration were found in King Tut's tomb. Discoveries in the ancient Ur of Chaldees have just shown that the art of silversmithing was known in a civilization that antedated the Egyptian. The early books of the Bible indicate that many thousands of years before Christ goldsmiths and silversmiths existed and fashioned sacred vessels, ornamnets and rude utensils for the wealthy and noble of their time. We know that the tabernacle and the other sacred structures were richly embellished with silver.

Down through the pages of Greek and Roman history we find repeated reference to articles of silver as indicative of the wealth, culture and prosperity of the peoples, and antiques of the time show in substance the love and craftsmanship which it merited.

In both anicent and modern times, the table has been the place for the most extensive use and display of silver. Plates, dishes, bowls, cups, spoons and other articles have usually found their best expression in gold or silver, and the great designers have devoted much of their time and skill to the pieces necessary for good living in the older days, just as modern silversmiths are giving their best for the modern table.

It is surprising to know how few articles were necessary at a dining table in the "good old times" of five or six hundred years ago. One of the most important articles, and practically the only one furnished by the host was the salt, standing salt. This was a large erect object, sometimes two feet in height, massive in its weight, nearly always of silver. The salts were used from the earliest times and, up to three hundred years ago, were covered, undoubtedly because of the universal fear of poison. You are familiar with the expression "sitting above the salt." It meant exactly that, for the salt placed upon the table denoted the dividing line of rank or importance. Those in the favor sat above, the others below the salt. Until the Salt was placed upon the table no one could tell what his relative position would be. In some cases the guests might be supplied with small trenchers, called the salt trenchers, into which salt was placed from the standing salt. Our individual salt cellars today are nothing but the survival of the ancient custom. Hospitality in those days did not require the host to provide his guests with anything but food. Guests brought their eating utensils with them—and they were extremely simple—a spoon, a knife, possibly a plate or trencher, and most important of all, quick fingers and strong nands. There was no question of washing dishes then—that unpleasant part of the housework was done by the guests, for each cleaned his utensils in his own peculiar and individual way.

The domestic economy of those days was extremely simple. Those who could afford to have silver, of course had a silver spoon, and the salt and trenchers were of silver. The silver referred to in these times is what is today known as Solid Silver, or Sterling Silver. There was no such thing as an imitation until about 1730. Solid Silver in the home, 500 years ago, was just as much an evidence of appreciation of the best as it is today.

The host and a few of the great sat on chairs; the rest upon benches, or as they might be able to provide for themselves. Sitting upon a chair at meat, was an honor given only to those who sat above the salt. In these days of democracy we all sit on chairs. We have our individual silver.

Even as late at Queen Elizabeth's time, the laying of the table in the homes of the gentry was a matter of some ceremony, requiring the placing of certain dishes in prescribed places by gentlemen armed with the wands, with bowing and much kneeling, and the presence of certain attendants

With the growth of table manners came the modern hollow ware, coffees, teas, sugars, creams, the vegetable dishes, etc. Candlesticks, of course, are very old, for before the days of oil, candles were the only light known. And the candlestick, in some form was a necessity.

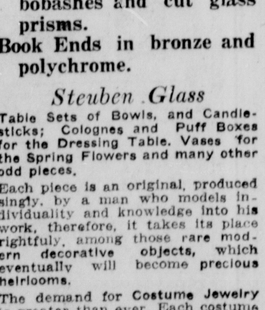

Modern silver stamped "Sterling" means that the silver metal is 925-1000 pure silver and is governed by law. The other 75-1000 is copper, as it is necessary to use some alloy to harden the metal. An article of silver stamped "Sterling" is made all the way through of the same precious metal. Its beauty will never wear off, and the piece if made in substantial weight will last for generations.

Fred Hallett, jeweler, has assembled an excellent assortment of Sterling flat and hollow ware and as this is National Sterling Week he would be pleased to have you see the new things in Silver.—Advertisement.

GEORGE BROS.
House of Gifts Beautiful

George Bros. is the mecca for many of the searchers: For just as there is one jeweler for engagement rings, one florist for the bridal bouquet, one caterer famed for the wedding breakfast, just so is our Gift Shop distinguished above all others as the Shop of Smartest Gifts.

Hand made Gifts of Leather.
Decorated Baskets and Trays.
Book Ends in bronze and polychrome.

Steuben Glass

Each piece is an original, produced singly, by a man who models individuality and knowledge into his work, therefore, it takes its place rightfuly, among those rare modern decorative objects, which eventually will become precious heirlooms.

The demand for Costume Jewelry is greater than ever. Each costume and every occasion demands its special style and color.

Distinctive numbers in Chokers for the tailored suits. Longer strings for afternoon, long chains of Pearls for evening.

Wedding Invitations

DOANE NOTES

Word has been received from California announcing the death of Mrs. A. V. Mathews (Clara Hardin) at Long Beach, May 26. Mrs. Mathews was a long time resident in Crete and student in Doane college in the early eighties. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made, pending instructions when Mr. A. V. Mathews shall arrive in Denver, Major C. B. Hardin, only brother of Mrs. Mathews, resides.

In connection with the Doane college commencement exercises on Wednesday forenoon, June 4, there will be a processional in which seniors, undergraduates, faculty, trustees, former students, and Crete people will participate. Those having a part on the program will appear in academic costume. The procession will start from Whitin library at 9:15 o'clock. A large graduating class will receive the degree of bachelor of arts from Doane at this time. Miss Fannie Hayiett of Clay Center who was a student at Doane previous to 1918 and who has done considerable work in absentia will receive her degree at this time. Two others, F. J. Dredla and L. P. Mains of Ithaca, N. Y., will not be present when the degrees are granted. They have each completed three years of required work at Doane and receive the bachelor of arts degree at the close of their engineering course at Cornell university.

Oakwood Lodge On the Blue Affords Variety of Pleasures To Those On Short Vacations

Summer vacation days are upon us, and the girls who have lived by schedule all winter are castin glonging eyes at Oakwood lodge, the Y. W. C. A. camp on the Blue river, for days may be long and lazy there or short and brisk—just as the vacationer desires. It wouldn't be so bad to go canoeing through this sylvan glade, as the girls in the above picture did last summer, nor would it be any hardship to live in these little square cottages with their screened porches.

Or how would you like the sound of tennis balls on a hard white court on a hot July morning? How would you like to spend a languid afternoon deep in a shimmering pool? How would you like to loaf the long ht hours away in a hammock or all but submerged in an easy chair on a screened porch?

How would you like to feel the little river breezes on a July night? How would you like to count millions and millions of stars, diamonds in the black sky, with never a tower nor a spire nor a skyscrapper to intervene How would you like to—to—do just as you wish, absolutely without any alarm clocks and time clocks and street cars to catch and luncheon hours to keep and appointments to make?

Kind of heavenly—just to talk about it.

Rather out of reason for those who work from eight to five—for those who earn the daily bread.

But not really so Utopian as it sounds—for it's perfectly possible for a few days or a week out of this summer.

For Oakwood lodge—just the name sounds rather peaceful and quiet and calm, doesn't it—down on the Blue river, not so far from Crete, offers you all these dielights for the summer weeks or week ends.

There's nobody to say you "yea" or "nay" while you are there. There's just Miss Mildred Bryan, physical director, at the Y. W. C. A., who is in charge of the camp and the assistant director, Miss Helen Bixby. There's a mighty good cook—those who've been there before know her cconcotions—and a housekeeper. And that's the story.

If you want to rise in the chilly dawn—chilly in the water—for a dip—you may. If you want to skip luncheon and go over the hills and far away, you may. If you want to build a camp fire—they are awfully friendly in the blackness of the woods—and sing songs, toast marshmallows, and tell stories, you may.

If you want a good hard game of tennis, there are the tennis courts If you want a row, there are row boats, if you want to canoe, there are canoes. If you want to turn on the hard used old vic and dance, there's the vic and there's the floor—and you can supply the motive power. If you want to play Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb, there are the balls and the bat and the diamond.

The Y. W. C. A camp at Crete is just like a well kept home. All sorts of amusements are provided. If the guests wish to use them, all well and good. But, if they'd rather amuse themselves elsewise and enjoy themselves more quietly, they may. You are free to find amusement as you wish.

From June 9 to 13 and from June 16 to 20, the Girl Reserves, with Miss Grace Stuff, as director will be at the camp. As these are younger girls, they will have a definite routine for the day, "dips" exercise, nature study, hikes, basketry, and eats.

The week end of June 14 the Members' council of the Y. W. C. A., an organization composed of representatives from each department of the association, will be at Oakwood lodge. Miss Kate Field will be in charge of this group. At the same time, the Federated club, chaperoned by Miss Ruby Wilson, will be at the camp.

On June 21 and 22, the members of the Axis club will swim and row and hike at Oakwood lodge and in its environs. The next week end, the gym girls will spend at the camp.

With the exception of these specified times, the camp is open for the rest of the summer to any girl or woman who wants to have a real vacation in a camp, where there's everything provided to have a real vacation.

University Notes

Baccalaureate services at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Memorial hall will begin ceremonies of the fifty-third annual commencement at the University of Nebraska. Dr. S. Mills Hays, special lecturer of the University, will deliver the sermon. The university orchestra, directed by William T. Quick, with Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond at the organ will present Handel's "Largo." Commencement week—Monday to Saturday—will be marked by student activities on Wednesday, Ivy day, student and alumni activities of the third annual roundup, Thursday Friday and Saturday, and formal commencement exercises Saturday morning.

Chancellor Samuel Avery has appointed Dean O. J. Ferguson of the college of engineering, chairman; of the department of chemistry; and Prof. E. H. Barbour, chairman of the department of geology, as a nominating committee for a scholarship granted to the University by the School of Mines, Engineering and Chemistry of Columbia University. This committee will name, on the grounds of character and ability, a student who is completing a course of study that will enable him to meet the admission requirements of Columbia university and who will register regularly as a candidate for one of the professional engineering degrees. The scholarship is one of a number set aside for the nomination of promising students by leading universities of the country. It will be awarded for one year to a student who has had not less than three years of undergraduate college training, with the prospect of reappointment if he enters one of the three-year professional courses in engineering.

Saul B. Arenson of the department of chemistry has sent nomination blanks to all members of the Nebraska section of the American Chemical society for the annual spring election of officers of the society. Nominating and balloting will be carried on by mail this week. The positions to be filled and the present officers follow: Councillor, Dr. F. W. Upson, chairman of the department at the university; chairman, Dr N. J. Blish, chemist of the agricultural experiment station; vice-chairman, R. C Abbott; executive committee (three members) Dr. E. Anderson, resigned), Dr. Horace G. Deming, and Professor Durham, chairman of the department of chemistry at Wesleyan university; and secretary-treasurer, S. B. Arenson. The Nebraska section is composed of thirty-five members, most of whom are members of college and university faculties and chemists of Lincoln.

Members of the department of philosophy who have participated in recent high school commencement programs follow: Arthur Jersild at Cushing high school May 15; C. H. Patterson at Palisade, May 15, and at Hallam, May 22. Dr. Hartley Burr Alexander, chairman of the department, addressed the graduating classes of Fullerton high school, May 22, and of York college, May 28. He will give the commencement address at the Kansas state teachers college at Emporia, June 2.

Dr. Hartley Burr Alexander, department of philosophy, announces that the departmental staff for 1924-25 will include Harry Kirk Wolfe Fellow—William Henry Werkmeister, who has had five semesters of advanced work in German universities and who is completing his second semester of graduate work in the university; graduate assistants—Arthur Jersild, Atlantic, Iowa; Lois Pedersen, Lincoln; and Nell Wahlen, Lincoln, all of whom have been assistants in the department during the past year; undergraduate assistant—Vernon Schopp, St. Joseph, Mo. Of those who have been taking advanced work in philosophy two will receive their doctor's degree at commencement—C. O. Weber, B. A. '16, M. A. '19, and C H. Patterson, M. A. '21, both of whom will continue as instructors in the department. Three candidates for the degree of master of arts will receive their degrees—Dr. H. M. McClanahan of the University College of Medicine in Omaha, Joy P. Guilford, B. A. '22, Lincoln, and Janet Pressley, B. A. '23, Omaha, fellow in philosophy, who recently won the Nebraska verse competition. Mr. Guilford is clinician this year and has been appointed assistant in psychology at Cornell university for next year. Gertrude Sanford, who has been specializing in philosophy, has been appointed assistant at Bryn Mawr. Frederick Lund, M. A. '23, has been advanced to an active instructorship at Columbia university. Lyman Sorenson, undergraduate assistant, was appointed instructor in the department of economics at the university and will begin his duties next fall.

Dean O. J. Ferguson of the College of Engineering has been appointed member of the honorary advisory committee of the American Institute of Architects and Architectural League of New York. D. Everett Waid, chairman of the league, announces that plans have been completed by the committees in charge for holding an educational and artistic exhibition of the architectural and allied arts in the Grand Central Palace in New York next April.

Prof. Louis H. Gray of the department of philosophy will leave soon for New York to begin his duties as editor of the diplomatic and social monographs relating to conditions growing out of the way which are to be published by the Carnegie Endowment of International Peace. General oversight of this work is in the hands of Prof. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, who has called Dr. Gray to assist him. Dr. Gray has recently published a number of critiques dealing with colonial and philological problems, who of which appeared in a recent number of the Journal of the American Geographical society. These two articles reviewed Italian works dealing with African problems, with which Dr. Gray became intimately acquainted through recent editing of Beer's work on Africa. A third critique reviewing A. Meillet's "Lew Origines Indo—europiennes des Metres Grecs," was published in the April number of Classical Philology. Dr. Gray has already received many responses from America and abroad on this publication.

Prof. Jacob Warshaw of the department of modern languages has resigned from the faculty of the university and will rejoin the faculty of the University of Missouri, where he will have charge of the work in Spanish instruction and act as joint chairman of the department of romance languages. In his previous tenure at Missouri he was editor of the literary series of the University of Missouri Bulletin, chairman of the William Alexander Greogory educational fund and member of the athletics committee. Professor Warshaw is a corresponding member of the Hispanic society of America and has been vice-president and member of the executive council of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish. Several of his books have been adopted as text-books; in addition to these he has written many scholarly and pedagogical articles for professional publication.

1918 HODGMAN SERVICE 1924

"Let me live by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

PERHAPS no business is called upon to render a more perfect service than ours. Never have we lost sight of this in our dealings with the public.

In our every action we try to express the deep and sincere sympathy we have for those whom we are called upon to serve.

This ideal, and a thoroughly modern and complete establishment, merits your patronage when such services are required.

DOANE NOTES

Word has been received from California announcing the death of Mrs. A. V. Mathews (Clara Hardin) at Long Beach, May 26. Mrs. Mathews was a long time resident in Crete and student in Doane college in the early eighties. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made, pending instructions when Mr. A. V. Mathews shall arrive in Denver, Major C. B. Hardin, only brother of Mrs. Mathews, resides.

In connection with the Doane college commencement exercises on Wednesday forenoon, June 4, there will be a processional in which seniors, undergraduates, faculty, trustees, former students, and Crete people will participate. Those having a part on the program will appear in academic costume. The procession will start from Whitin library at 9:15 o'clock. A large graduating class will receive the degree of bachelor of arts from Doane at this time. Miss Fannie Haylett of Clay Center who was a student at Doane previous to 1918 and who has done considerable work in absentia will receive her degree at this time. Two others, F. J. Dredla and L. P. Mains of Ithaca, N. Y., will not be present when the degrees are granted. They have each completed three years of required work at Doane and receive the bachelor of arts degree at the close of their engineering course at Cornell university.

Oakwood Lodge On the Blue Affords Variety of Pleasures To Those On Short Vacations

Summer vacation days are upon us, and the girls who have lived by schedule all winter are castin glonging eyes at Oakwood lodge, the Y. W. C. A. camp on the Blue river, for days may be long and lazy there or short and brisk—just as the vacationer desires. It wouldn't be so bad to go canoeing through this sylvan glade, as the girls in the above picture did last summer, nor would it be any hardship to live in these little square cottages with their screened porches.

Or how would you like the sound of tennis balls on a hard white court on a hot July morning? How would you like to spend a languid afternoon deep in a shimmering pool? How would you like to loaf the long ht hours away in a hammock or all but submerged in an easy chair on a screened porch?

How would you like to feel the little river breezes on a July night? How would you like to count millions and millions of stars, diamonds in the black sky, with never a tower nor a spire nor a skyscrapper to intervene. How would you like to—to—do just as you wish, absolutely without any alarm clocks and time clocks and street cars to catch and luncheon hours to keep and appointments to make?

Kind of heavenly—just to talk about it.

Rather out of reason for those who work from eight to five—for those who earn the daily bread.

But not really so Utopian as it sounds—for it's perfectly possible for a few days or a week out of this summer.

For Oakwood lodge—just the name sounds rather peaceful and quiet and calm, doesn't it—down on the Blue river, not so far from Crete, offers you all these dielights for the summer weeks or week ends.

There's nobody to say you "yea" or "nay" while you are there. There's just Miss Mildred Bryan, physical director, at the Y. W. C. A., who is in charge of the camp and the assistant director, Miss Helen Bixby. There's a mighty good cook—those who've been there before know her cconcotions—and a housekeeper. And that's the story.

If you want to rise in the chilly dawn—chilly in the water—for a dip—you may. If you want to skip luncheon and go over the hills and far away, you may. If you want to build a camp fire—they are awfully friendly in the blackness of the woods—and sing songs, toast marshmallows, and tell stories, you may.

If you want a good hard game of tennis, there are the tennis courts. If you want a row, there are row boats, if you want to canoe, there are canoes. If you want to turn on the hard used old vic and dance, there's the vic and there's the floor—and you can supply the motive power. If you want to play Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb, there are the balls and the bat and the diamond.

The Y. W. C. A. camp at Crete is just like a well kept home. All sorts of amusements are provided. If the guests wish to use them, all well and good. But, if they'd rather amuse themselves elsewise and enjoy themselves more quietly, they may. You are free to find amusement as you wish.

From June 9 to 13 and from June 16 to 20, the Girl Reserves, with Miss Grace Stuff, as director will be at the camp. As these are younger girls, they will have a definite routine for the day, "dips" exercise, nature study, hikes, basketry, and eats.

The week end of June 14 the Members' council of the Y. W. C. A., an organization composed of representatives from each department of the association, will be at Oakwood lodge. Miss Kate Field will be in charge of this group. At the same time, the Federated club, chaperoned by Miss Ruby Wilson, will be at the camp.

On June 21 and 22, the members of the Axis club will swim and row and hike at Oakwood lodge and in its environs. The next week end, the gym girls will spend at the camp.

With the exception of these specified times, the camp is open for the rest of the summer to any girl or woman who wants to have a real vacation in a camp, where there's everything provided to have a real vacation.

University Notes

Baccalaureate services at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Memorial hall will begin ceremonies of the fifty-third annual commencement at the University of Nebraska. Dr. S. Mills Hays, special lecturer of the University, will deliver the sermon. The university orchestra, directed by William T. Quick, with Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond at the organ will present Handel's "Largo." Commencement week—Monday to Saturday—will be marked by student activities on Wednesday, Ivy day, student and alumni activities of the third annual round-up, Thursday Friday and Saturday, and formal commencement exercises Saturday morning.

Chancellor Samuel Avery has appointed Dean O. J. Ferguson of the college of engineering, chairman; of the department of chemistry; and Prof. E. H. Barbour, chairman of the department of geology, as a nominating committee for a scholarship granted to the University by the School of Mines, Engineering and Chemistry of Columbia University. This committee will name, on the grounds of character and ability, a student who is completing a course of study that will enable him to meet the admission requirements of Columbia university and who will register regularly as a candidate for one of the professional engineering degrees. The scholarship is one of a number set aside for the nomination of promising students by leading universities of the country. It will be awarded for one year to a student who has had not less than three years of undergraduate college training, with the prospect of reappointment if he enters one of the three-year professional courses in engineering.

Saul B. Arenson of the department of chemistry has sent nomination blanks to all members of the Nebraska section of the American Chemical society for the annual spring election of officers of the society. Nominating and balloting will be carried on by mail this week. The positions to be filled and the present officers follow: Councillor, Dr. F. W. Upson, chairman of the department at the university; chairman, Dr. N. J. Blish, chemist of the agricultural experiment station; vice-chairman, R. C. Abbott; executive committee (three members) Dr. E. Anderson, resigned), Dr. Horace G. Deming, and Professor Durham, chairman of the department of chemistry at Wesleyan university; and secretary-treasurer, S. B. Arenson. The Nebraska section is composed of thirty-five members, most of whom are members of college and university faculties and chemists of Lincoln.

Members of the department of philosophy who have participated in recent high school commencement programs follow: Arthur Jersild at Cushing high school May 15; C. H. Patterson at Palisade, May 15, and at Hallam, May 22. Dr. Hartley Burr Alexander, chairman of the department, addressed the graduating classes of Fullerton high school, May 22, and of York college, May 28. He will give the commencement address at the Kansas state teachers college at Emporia, June 2.

Dr. Hartley Burr Alexander, department of philosophy, announces that the departmental staff for 1924-25 will include Harry Kirk Wolfe Fellow—William Henry Werkmeister, who has had five semesters of advanced work in German universities and who is completing his second semester of graduate work in the university; graduate assistants—Arthur Jersild, Atlantic, Iowa; Lois Pedersen, Lincoln; and Nell Wahlen, Lincoln, all of whom have been assistants in the department during the past year; undergraduate assistant—Vernon Schopp, St. Joseph, Mo. Of those who have been taking advanced work in philosophy two will receive their doctor's degree at commencement—C. O. Weber, B. A. '16, M. A. '19, and C. H. Patterson, M. A. '21, both of whom will continue as instructors in the department. Three candidates for the degree of master of arts will receive their degrees—Dr. H. M. McClanahan of the University College of Medicine in Omaha, Joy P. Guilford, B. A. '22, Lincoln, and Janet Pressley, B. A. '23, Omaha, fellow in philosophy, who recently won the Nebraska verse competition. Mr. Guilford is clinician this year and has been appointed assistant in psychology at Cornell university for next year. Gertrude Sanford, who has been specializing in philosophy, has been appointed assistant at Bryn Mawr. Frederick Lund, M. A. '23, has been advanced to an active instructorship at Columbia university. Lyman Sorenson, undergraduate assistant, was appointed instructor in the department of economics at the university and will begin his duties next fall.

Dean O. J. Ferguson of the College of Engineering has been appointed member of the honorary advisory committee of the American Institute of Architects and Architectural League of New York. D. Everett Waid, chairman of the league, announces that plans have been completed by the committees in charge for holding an educational and artistic exhibition of the architectural and allied arts in the Grand Central Palace in New York next April.

Prof. Louis H. Gray of the department of philosophy will leave soon for New York to begin his duties as editor of the diplomatic and social monographs relating to conditions growing out of the way which are to be published by the Carnegie Endowment of International Peace. General oversight of this work is in the hands of Prof. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, who has called Dr. Gray to assist him. Dr. Gray has recently published a number of critiques dealing with colonial and philological problems, who of which appeared in a recent number of the Journal of the American Geographical society. These two articles reviewed Italian works dealing with African problems, with which Dr. Gray became intimately acquainted through recent editing of Beer's work on Africa. A third critique reviewing A. Meillet's "Lew Origines Indo-europiennes des Metres Grecs," was published in the April number of Classical Philology. Dr. Gray has already received many responses from America and abroad on this publication.

Prof. Jacob Warshaw of the department of modern languages has resigned from the faculty of the university and will rejoin the faculty of the University of Missouri, where he will have charge of the work in Spanish instruction and act as joint chairman of the department of romance languages. In his previous tenure at Missouri he was editor of the literary series of the Universtiy of Missouri Bulletin, chairman of the William Alexander Greogory educational fund and member of the athletics committee. Professor Warshaw is a corresponding member of the Hispanic society of America and has been vice-president and member of the executive council of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish. Several of his books have been adopted as text-books; in addition to these he has written many scholarly and pedagogical articles for professional publication.

"Grads" Return For Big Roundup

More banquets at 6 o'clock—the last of the year, after which there will be more dancing outdoors. During the entr'actes of the dancing, selected numbers from "The Wishing Ring" the 1924 Kosmel Klub production will be staged—and this year's Kosmet was an awfully good affair.

Last—because Saturday is the last day of the week—is the commencement of the 1924 class of the anniversity. Glenn Frank of New York City, editor in chief of the Century magazine, is to deliver the commencement address.

POLA NEGRI IN HER LATEST SUCCESS AT THE LYRIC THIS WEEK.

One minute a fashionable society woman and the next an Apache terror in the most notorious underworld den in Paris, match that for a Pola Negri role if you can! "Shadows of Paris" with scenes of intense dramatic emotion, whirlwind Apache dancing and Parisian society with brilliant Pola will be the feature attraction at the Lyric this week. The added attractions are unusually good, Lloyd Hamilton will be seen in a riot of laughter in his latest comedy "Killing Time;" Gayle Grub & Ben Dennis, former Uni. students, will present a vocal and instrumental offering that will delight all. To miss the Lyric program this week is to miss a real treat.

Absorbing romance, thrilling adventure, delightful humor. You will find them in generous measure in "Flowing Gold," the feature attraction at the Rialto this week. The photoplay was adapted from the famous novel by Rex Beach and it is enacted by a sterling cast of screen players which includes Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Alice Calhoun, Josephine Crowell and Cissy Fitzgerald. The program includes a fine array of short subjects and a brilliant musical program. Added attraction, Mabel Ludlam and Samuel Alstadt, presenting a picturesque musical offering.

"THE MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD" AND "THE TELEPHONE GIRL" AT THE COLONIAL THIS WEEK.

George M. Cohan's big successful stage production hits the screen to a roar of thrill and laughter. "The Meanest Man in the World" is the story of a fellow who studied to say "No" and then found education a poor sub for love. The cast includes Bert Lytell, Blanche Sweet, Bryant Washburn and twenty others. "Back Stage," a new flock of laughs with "Our Gang" and "The Telephone Girl," another of H. C. Witwer's famous stories, completes an excellent program.

Screen Siftings

Ralph Graves Signed. — Ralph Graves has been signed by Mack Sennett to play a series of two reel comedies, released by Pathe. Richard Jones will direct Mr. Graves in his first picture, as yet untitled. It will be of a rural character. Natalie Kingston will be the leading lady.

Pepper Is Dead—Pepper, the famous comedy cat is dead. "The Cat's Meow," Harry Langdon's new comedy, was her last screen appearance. She was said to be the most intelligent cat that ever worked on a movie set, and the only one that could take direction.

Third Dempsey Picture.—The third of the two-reel feature pictures for Universal studios the Jack Dempsey company is making was stated recently under the direction of Jess Robbins. Carmelita Geraghty plays opposite the champion, and others in the case are "Chuck" Reisner, Ed Kennedy, and George Ovey.

"The Red Lily"—Frank Currier is playing with Enid Bennett for the second time this year. They both had parts in "The Sea Hawk," and now Mr. Currier has been signed for the role of Etienne Leonnac in "The Red Lily" in which Miss Bennett plays the role of Marise La None, the heroine. Ramon Novarro is the hero of the picture and Wallace Beery and Mitchell Lewis are other members of the cast. Fred Niblo is directing the production.

Vera Gordon In Cast.—Vera Gordon will have the part of Mrs. Potash in "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," the second Montague Glass story which Al Green is making for Goldwyn.

Play "Empty Hands" — Norma Shearer has consented to play the leading role opposite Jack Holt in "Empty Hands" a film version of Arthur Stringer's story. The picture will be made under Victor Fleming's supervision, and the supporting cast is composed of Mildred June, Charles Clary, Ramsey Wallace, Ward Crane and Hank Mann.

Chinese Dive Scene—Edward Piel, famous delineator of oriental charpen of Sophie Kerr, and the picture ious owner of a Chinese dive in "The Man Who Came Back," which is being filmed at the Fox West Coast studios. The picture is a screen version of Jules Ackert Goodman's play, and much of the dramatic action of the play takes place in the dive. George O'Brien, Dorothy Mackaill and Cyril Chadwick are the featured players in the production. Emmet J. Flynn is directing the picture.

Director Turns Actor — Phillips Smalley, husband of Lois Weber, and one time one of the screen's best known directors, has turned actor. He plays the role of Mr. Winslow in "For Sale," the First National production which is being made by Earl Hudson. George Irving, who directed "The Witching Hour," "To Hell with the Kaiser" and other pictures, also had a part in the same picture.

Loan Young Star.—When Buddy Messinger finishes playing "Playing Hookey" for Century, he is to be loaned to Universal for a prominent role in "Young Ideas," Laura La Plante's latest starring vehicle. Buddy plays the role of the younger brother to a girl who refuses love in order to give all of her attention to her family. The story is from the pen of Sophie Kerr, and the picture will be directed by Robert Hill.

Use Norris Novel—Margaret Livingston, star in Regal Pictures has been loaned to Universal for a featured role in Kathleen Norris' new novel, "Butterfly," which Clarence Brown is directing for the screen. Miss Livingston is supported by such celebrities as Norman Kerry, Kenneth Harlan, Arthur Lubkin and Laura La Plante.

Still Undecided—Harold and Mildred Lloyd have not yet named their eight-pound baby girl that was born May 21. The baby was to have been named Harold.

Named Co-respondent—Lew Cody is pretty indignant because Dr. Woodward, Mayo, Los Angeles physician, named him as co-respondent in his suit for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Mary Mayo. Mrs. Cody insists that although he has always played the role of an amorous lover of the stage, he never carried it into his private life. Mrs. Mayo is known in film circles as Mary Ruthledge.

Back from Europe—Betty Blythe has been signed for the leading feminine role, that of the Hollywood vamp, in Montague Glass's "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," which Goldwyn is producing. Miss Blythe recently returned from Europe where she portrayed the principal role in the film production of "Chu Chin Chow."

Tom Moore Switches—Tom Moore ended his engagement in the play "The Rabbit's Foot," to play the leading role opposite Laurette Taylor in "One Night in Rome," the J. Hartley Manners story, which Clarence Badger is directing for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

NEW COMEDY FOR GAP IN FOLLIES

By Brett Page

NEW YORK, May 31.—The "Follies," you know—because of the telegraph news about the strike of Flo Zeigfield due to the trouble between Actors' Equity association and the Producing Managers' association—stopped short at the New Amsterdam Theatre the other day. To fill the gap between this last "Follies"—Mr. Zeigfield would have us believe it is the very last of his marvelous brood—and the new "Follies" that undoubtedly will come some day, there leaped a new musical comery called "Plain Jane."

Presented by Louis I. Isqueth and Walter Brooks, with book and music by Phil Cook, McElbert Moore and Tom Johnstone, "Plain Jane" is one of the best summer shows—indeed it is one of the best musicl comedies taking it by and large. In some weeks if not months—that we have had the pleasure of seeing. This joy we largely owe to one nimble-witted, nimble-footed, nimble-voiced and nimbly-smiling young man. His name is Joe Laurie, jr., hereafter to be known up and down Broadway, undoubtedly, as Joe, perhaps "Plain Joe" in honor of his first great leap into the limelight all his own.

It is always difficult to give correct impression of a musical comedy. There are so many things to be considered. There's the book, for instance, and there are the lyrics to begin with. In the case of "Plain Jane" it may be said that these are very, very good most of the time, but that sometimes they limp. The music is mighty catchy. There are some hits you may hear soon. Then there are the girls, the comedy, the costumes, the scenery, the dances. It is nice to be able to report favorably on each of these. Particularly fine is it to say that in the department of the dance, "Plain Jane" is exceptionally strong. Not one individual of the large cast seems to have neglected to contribute a new step, and some, who are especially generous, give entire jigs that are wholly new.

At the time "Plain Jne" needed a stimulant it was forthcoming in the guise of as lively a prizefighter as one would wish. The story revolves around a young rich man who takes up the defense of a poor little girl and is instantly cast out by his father.

Hearing that he can win one thousdollars for each round he stays with a noted fighter this youth leaps to it. He stays two rounds and knocks out the king of the ring thereby winning a championship and twenty-five thousand dollars. The blows, didn't seem acting. Jay Gould who played that part put over some punches that seem seemed less unreal than some we have seen in the "real-for-sure" ring.

But dainty as are the girls catchy as is the music, joyous as some of the jokes are, the very best of "Plain Jane" is when the redoubtable Plain Joe is on the stage. We might dispense with other entire musical comedies before we would be willing to forfeit the memory Joe Laurie, jr., left with us.

"Plain Jane" may not be a world-beater but it is a thoroughly enjoyable musical comedy.

Creates Rumpus.

At the Provincetown Playhouse, down in Greenwich Village, Eugene O'Neill's much discussed play, "All Gods Chillun Got Wings," made its bow after more pow-wow than any other play has created this season. It started because someone very wisely let slip the information that in one scene a white woman kisses the hand of a negro. With this news all sorts of folks leaped into the fray and many leaped into print. A good press agent stunt that. And now we must tell the bitter truth.

The first act had to be read instead of played, because Mayor Hylan refused permission to allow WIHH PH5. EAOI Ieett the necessary children of both colors to act the part of the prologue that shows there is no color line in childhood, that children black and white, play together in city streets without considering color.

From this point the play shows what happened to a white girl whose husband died and left her with a child that also died. She goes to the dogs, but is always kindly watched over by a colored boy playmate of her chidlhood. When she is lowest she marries the blackman, an aspiring student of the law, and then the show goes to pot.

In some moments it seems that God's Chillun" is better suited to an insane aslum than to any stage of which we know At other moments there are gleams of power. But at no time were we ablo to discern the Eugene O'Neill who wrote, let us say, "The Emperor Jones."

Of the rest of the cast we cannot find it in our heart to say anything. Please understand that this is not a race question, for if there is one prejudice the writer has i is a violent prejudice against prejudice!

Nor is Eugene O'Neil prejudiced. One would say, after seeing this play, that O'Neill does not advocate intermarriage between whites and blacks. We suppose he intended only to show that what is, really is. In other words O'Neill strove merely to hold a colorless mirror up to blacks and whites in intimate relations. The fault, we suppose, lies in a clever press stunt going wrong.

You probably will not see the play outside of New York. The reason? Because the play is not worth while.

"The Melody Man."

Herbert Richard Lorenz is the cryptic name that follows the "By" of "The Melody Man" on the Ritz theatre program. These are the first names of Lew Field's three sons, who collaborated with him. it would seem, in writing the new three act comedy hich Lew Fields presents ith himself as star.

For here is a veritable music master the composer of the famous "Dresden Symphony" working in a jazz factory. A budding young songsmith having heard the melody swiftly swipes it for his own jazzes it and it thereby reaps larger rewards There stand the pathetic old composer raging because of the sacrilege leading for justice. Sure he gets it—in the parlance, and in the spirit of the comedy itself—gets the air! Then things begin to happen.

In the paragraph above is the idea of the entire comedy. The things that hurt the melody maker most are the things that give his audience the greatest joy The more he raves the the more he weeps the more he wrings his hands the louder come the guffaws. Yes, Lew Fields is in his element, and all of us who saw him were in our element also For there is no one who can do this thing more comically than Lew Fields

For those who are easily amused, "The Melody Man" is primarily designed A glimpse of the smile-wreathed faces of his audience seemed to disclose that all Broadway is easily amused.

Of the cast, that aids Lew Fields to achieve this laughter-producing effects much might be said. But the truth will undoubtedly prevail in the gossip of Broadway when this show is commented upon on the busy corners, that no one seems to be present upon the stage except Lew Fields.

Not so very long ago three different show-business friends at three different times—so it was not a conspiracy, but proved the ower of memory or the vitality of a tradition—viewed with amazement when I said that I had never seen Bertha Kalish in "The Kreutzer Sonata." So when the opportunity arrived by way of Lee Shubert's beautifully-staged revival at the Frazee theatre, I dashed to that show shop anticipating not a memorable evening, perhaps not a pleasant evening, but one that would be redolent with good acting and high moments in art

Seventeen years have gone since Bertha Kalish swept across the stage of the old Manhattan theatre and started the tradition that holds until today. Seventeen years make a deal of difference in life, but not so much difference in art, sometimes. Loath as I am to be compelled to record it, "The Kreutzer Sonata" and its vogue and tradition are incomprehensible to me.

Perhaps in the days that are gone this play with its touches of sin, its verge toward degeneracy in one scene at least, and its dark, dark paying, paying, paying through its four acts won its success by reason of shocks. Certainly Bertha Kalish's art aided the whole mightily for she is indeed a good actress.

In this year 1924, with all the plays and all the shocks of every sort that have gone between, "The Kreutzer Sonta" and some moments of its playing, seem not art but a sickening mess. Even those who like "strong" things in the theatre, may be forced to admit this is not now strong. It is not even weak. It is just nastily depressing from the rise of the first curtain until the fall of the last.

Bertha Kalish, as has been said is a very good actress. Some think Miss Kalish a great actress. She has the advantage of a competent company. But none would lift this Langdon Mitchell adaptation of Jacob Gordin's drama, above the mark of deepest depression it plumbed

E. E. Correll of Hebron Spends More Than Quarter Century As Editor Paper Father Started

Of the thirteen or fourteen Nebraska editors, E. E. Correll, editor of the Hebron Journal, ranks well toward the top of those men who have devoted more than a quarter of a century to the advancement of the same Nebraska paper. Twenty-nine years ago, Mr. Correll became editor of the Hebron paper and, he's been at it since that time, through bad times, and good.

Mr. Correll is a real Nebraska editor, for he was born here and the Journal is the only paper he has edited. It really wasn't choice that sent him into the newspaper "game," rather it was necessity. However, he might not have been able to avoid it, even though necessity had not showed him the way, for his father was a newspaper man and he had grown up in that atmosphere. Telling of his newspaper life, Mr. Correll says:

Father A Pioneer.

"The Hebron Journal was established by my father, E. M. Correll, when there were only three houses in the town. My boyhood impressions of that pioneer faith which visioned a new era just beyond the horizon—where yesterday's discouragements should dawn into the fruitions of tomorrow—the sublime confidence that should transform barren prairies into productive areas—all proved inspirational to me.

"The place of the newspaper in community life loomed large, and yet I did not choose the vocation for myself.

"Too close familiarity with the drudgery side of the profession, made me rather look toward the profession of law where one could talk money out of clients, or surgery, where one might deftly carve their own fortune, or the ministry, where one could pull at his own bootstraps and float heavenward, sans airplanes, or the banking profession, where one could always have money without earning it, the beautiful brass buttons of policemen, and the brass bands surrounding the movements of the president of the United States—all left the subtle enticements with their distinctive blandishments, as youth wondered just which occupation to 'accept.'"

A Newspaper Family.

Mr. Correll had been born into a newspaper family, however, and he has not been able to unclasp the tentacles that seemed to hold him to the editorial profession. Mr. Correll was born in the year of the grasshopper scourage, which may be the reason, he explains, that life for him has been "an unending, hop, skip and jump."

"At the time of my father's death," he writes, "I gave up my cherished longing for scholastic training at the university and returned home to take up office work, fighting debts, drouths, politicians, and pestilence.

"How long have I been with the paper? It seems like 902 years of labor, and 1206 years of joyful discoveries of the fine, sound purposes marking fellow citizens' characteristics that outweighed the foibles of humanity—and as I sum up the calendar, I discover that in reality only twenty-nine years of evolution in toil, patience, and hope has been mine.

Always In Newspaper Work.

"I have not been in any other line of work, though I was under the impression that no other profession had 'work'—that all the others are soft snaps—and I have often longed to engage in some of the occupations that don't have griefs—as telephone lineman who has fine chances to study atmospheric conditions when other folks have to sit around smoky stoves.

"The attraction in newspaper work lies not in the supposed love of printer's ink nor the stimulating circulation developed in dodging collectors nor side stepping the schemes of politicians who are the self-constituted guardians of the places of public graft, but rather in the reassuring visions of splendid purpose that animate the men and women who come to the office to discuss their dreams of service in affairs political, philanthropic, or inspirational

"Often when your faith in human nature wavers to the border of cynicism at the disclosure of the petty, the narrow, the grasping, the sordid—then comes some subscriber who simply and unconsciously reveals the selfless purpose of honesty and integrity that regrips your confidence in things eternal, and your grasp the age-old truth that God still rules the world."

E. E. Correll, editor of the Hebron Journal, who is a Nebraskan born and bred and who has edited one newspaper for more than a quarter of a century. The paper is a sort of family affair, having been founded by his father and having remained in the family for fifty-three years Editing is the only work Mr. Correll has done—although he is inclined to believe that no other profession outside the newspaper game has work.

Graduated From University Thirty-Six Years Ago; Finds Many Changes On Campus Now

Thirty-six years ago this June, Cora White graduated from the university.

She is Mrs. Leon Henry now and she is traveling in Europe and California and had delightful work in New York, but the pull of the alma mater brought her back and she is in Lincoln now, hoping to stay for the Roundup June 4, 5, 6, and 7. It has been many years since Mrs. Henry has seen many of the class mates of '88, but she is hoping that she can stay until those June days, so that she can meet again the men and the women who were the boys and girls she knew more than thirty years ago.

Mrs. Henry has been here from New York City during the past week, but she has felt a stranger in a strange land, for the little Lincoln and the tiny university have grown so much, the one into a city, the other into a lovely spot of many buildings and well kept campus.

When she was here as a student long, long ago, the university occupied the area from R to T streets and Tenth to Twelfth streets. Then, the students attended physiology, botany, and chemistry "lab" in the present pharmacy building and all other classes in U hall. Students registered for the classical course, the scientific course, or the literary course.

Chancellor Fairfield presided over the destinies of the young school in those days, and among the professors who were here then and who are still guiding youth of Nebraska to culture were Dean L. A. Sherman and Dr. George E. Howard. Prof. Howard Caldwell, who but lately retired, was also on the faculty.

Ellen Smith was registrar, librarian, Latin and higher arithmetic instructor thirty-six years ago, and the students all loved her. Stern and severe, as she seemed, she had the kindest of hearts and thought deeply of the young people in her classes. Miss Smith ruled with a rod of iron, but every one knew the gentleness behind the forbidding look.

When Mrs. Henry was just little Cora White, with very short dresses and only eleven years to her life's credit, she entered the Latin preparatory school of the university, which is but a memory now. She was so much tinier than the other students, even in her first college days, and so much younger, that the older girls, even as now, teased her. Coming out of chapel one day, after being the center of mockery, she was weeping and Miss Smith put her arm about her and said:

"Well, never mind,"—and to the girls—"If you would study as hard as Cora does and pass your examinations, perhaps you would get through school younger, too."

Professor Collier taught physics in the university then. Prof. Church some Latin—Mrs. Henry recalls that her first work under him was to memorize the first four lines of Caesar — Prof. Edgren, Italian, Hebrew; German and French, all of which Mrs. Henry studied, and Prof. George E. Woodbury, literary subjects.

When Mrs. Henry entered the university proper, she became a member of the Union Literary society, which, with the Palladian society, represented the literary life of the school. Mrs. Henry recalls fondly a prize she once took in an essay on "Louisa Alcott," when Roscoe Pound was the other speaker — and Mrs. Henry took the first prize. The contest took place in the old Funke Opera house—and to Mrs. Henry Lincoln is only half Lincoln with the opera house gone.

Commencement orators had not then come into vogue, and a student from each of the university courses was selected to give an "oration" at commencement. Mrs. Henry was selected from the literary members and she gave a scintillating number upon the life, habits, and influence of Percy Bysshe Shelley. A few years later commencement speakers became popular, speakers from out of town, but in '88, they were unknown.

Students did not have caps and gowns in those days, but graduated in dresses especially made for the occasion. Fraternities and sororities came into local being about the time that Mrs. Henry left, and, upon their appearance, a rule was passed that no literary society member could join a sorority or fraternity and yet remain a society member.

Mrs. Henry is connected with the H. W. Wilson Publishing company of New York City, of which her husband is superintendent and her daughter, Emily Esther, is on the editorial staff. The company is called an experiment in socialism, for practically all of the stock is owned by the employes.

The company publishes a dozen magazines for libraries, in which the newest books are reviewed, and which librarians use as a standard for purchasing new books for their shelves. Before coming west, Mrs. Henry had just completed a catalogue and brief review of children's books, in which four thousand books for children were listed.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lawson, 1725 North Thirty-first street, celebrated their golden wedding last Monday. Their seven children, Mrs. Mattie Jensen of Casper, Wyo., Mrs. Lena Standley of Denver, Mrs Amelia Christ of Chicago, J. J. Lawson of San Francisco, and Martin, William and Frank of Lincoln were all here to assist Mr. and Mrs Lawson in celebrating the day. An informal reception was held afternoon and evening during which Lincoln friends and friends from nearby towns called to offer cogratuiatios and best wishes They received many gifts including a purse of gold from the members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson came to Nebraska fifty years ago. They came to Lincoln from Wilber twenty-three years ago.

The Musical World

Doane College School of Music.

Term examinations in piano and voice were completed Wednesday. These examinations in applied music conducted at Doane for the first time this year have proved to be a fine thing for the music students. With definite technical requirements to work toward, a more thorough piece of work is done by the student. Examinations are conducted before the whole music faculty for each student—fifteen to forty minutes being allotted.

Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock the first annual music contest will be held in the college chapel as a feature of the commencement program. The contests this year will be in piano and voice, open to Doane music students with cash prizes for first and second winners.

Wednesday night, five of the undergraduates representing piano, voice, and violin departments gave a recital in the chapel. The program follows:

By Moonlight—Schumann.
The Violet—Mozart.
Mary Newcomb.
Ave Maria—Schubert.
Romance in G—Beethoven.
Eleanor Crone.
My Sweet Repose—Schubert.
The Linden Tree—Schubert.

91ST BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Jasper Riddle, 2012 Vine street, celebrated her ninety-first birthday Friday, May 23. Many friends and relatives called during the day, and many others sent messages and flowers. Refreshments were served during the afternoon by Mrs. Nora Boyd, daughter of Mrs Riddle.

Mrs. Riddle came from Virginia with her husband in 1865, and settled at what is now the town of Ashland, later taking up a homestead seventeen miles north of Lincoln. Thirty-five years ago, they moved to Lincoln, and Mrs. Riddle has lived in the same house since then. Mrs. Riddle is the oldest living member of Emmanuel Methodist church, both in age and membership.

Travel and Resorts

Vacationers this year are not only thinking about the "Dude" ranches of the Big Horn mountains in Wyoming—they are talking about them, writing to the Star's travel bureau about them, and they're going to them. There are hills, and trees, and strange streams running out of a mysterious land into other uncanny regions, but especially the "dude" ranches themselves.

And every one of those streams and rivers and mountain brooks have trout—lots of them. A thirteen and a half pound trout was brought in near the I X L ranch, at the mouth of the Tounge River canyon.

H F Bar ranch, thirty-six miles south of Sheridan, is a real ranch, but it is equipped with every modern necessity. There is big game to be shot and trails to be traveled that straggle through the looming hills in every direction.

But why talk of going across a couple of states? How about West Okoboji and Spirit lake in Iowa? The roads are graveled, and the folks are friendly—and the water's fine.

Big fish that fight, and streams and lakes where boats float with half asleep tired business men aboard, or a jolly crew of fun finders—tourists from Iowa report these.

Yet the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado and in other states, are the mecca of American tourists in this region.

Nature has not dealt with a more lavish hand in the big hills than near Glenwood springs. Here are the marvelous natural fountains that boil out their health-bringing vapor; here are the placeh to rest, offering an escape from the whirl of social engagements, and here are the places to play and grow and thrive in a kindly climate.

Hot springs and sparkling streams, crowing like children in mirth at the merry play of multi-colored trout; banks where one may pitch his tent and enjoy gloriously sunny days, restful, cool nights, and an atmosphere, sparkling, crisp, so transparent as to be a treat for smoke filled eyes, and yet bearing on every flip of a breeze the healing, pungent draught of mountain pine and cedar.

Along the Sweetwater and Frying Pan river (how is it that on those very names comes a tang of wide reaches?), are resorts that autos may reach over splendid roads, where one may spend a vacation living comfortable ranch life or amid up-to-date accommodations. And as often as not, both of these qualifications can be found in the same little bit of rough-hewn paradise.

The gurgle of mountain streams doesn't completely drown the sighs of the winds in the north woods that call for tourist bands.

Railways continue to announce improved accommodations to Minnesota and Wisconsin and highways are constantly becoming better, and the habitual visitors of the region, becoming more and more numerous. There's lots of room left, though, and lots of fish in the lakes.

Full information on any of these districts, or on any other district in any part of the world, will be gladly supplied by the Travel and Resort bureau of the Lincoln Star. Out of town readers have been asked to enclose 4 cents in stamps.

Music Notes

Joliet Township High school and Joliet grade school were winners in their respective classes in the first of the state school band contests conducted by the committee on instrumental affairs of the Music Supervisors' National conference, in cooperation with the national bureau for the advancement of music.

The Illinois state contest was held in Joliet May 10 under the auspices of the Joliet Association of Commerce, which acted as host to the visiting bands. The Music Supervisors' National conference was represented by Evan B. Brockett, president of the Greater Chicago Music Supervisors' association. V. W. Brooks was chairman of the Joliet association of Commerce committee.

Among the cities represented in the contest were Harvey, 2; Joliet, 2; Aurora, Winnetka, and Champaign. The contest was held in the high school gymnasium, a majority of the directors favoring an indoor contest. The judges were A. A. Harding, band director, University of Illinois; E. W. Murphy, director of instrumental music, University of Wisconsin, and Niel Poepping, director of Poepping's American band, S. Louis, Mo.

The results in the high school division, expressed in percentages, were as follows: Joliet Township high school, 92.5; New Trier high school, Winnetka, 88.6; Thornton Township high school, Harvey, 88.3; Aurora east high school, 83.3; Champaign high school, 80.

Harvey public school and Joliet grade school competed in the grade school division. Joliet won with a percentage of 85.6. Harvey's percentage was 80

After the contest in the school gymnasium the bands marched under command of Lieutenant William Maroney, U. S. A., through the business streets of Joliet to the Richards street athletic field, where the winners were announced and the prizes presented. The first prize in the high school division was a handsome bronze tablet. The Joliet township high school was also awarded to baton. The second prize was a bronze tablet, smaller in size than the first. A bronze trophy will be given to the band "for keeps" that takes the first prize in the state contest three times. Following the awarding of prizes the bands played together under A. R. McAllister, director of the Joliet township high school band. The winner in the grade school division was awarded a baton.

A state association of school band directors has been formed for the purpose of assisting in conducting future state band contests in Illinois. Temporary officers are: A. R. McAllister, Joliet, president; Guido Mattei, Joliet, secretary.

The chairman of the committee on instrumental affairs of the Music Supervisors' National conference is Jay W. Fay, director of instrumental music in the schools of Rochester, N. Y. The other members are Russell V. Morgan, of Cleveland; Eugene M. Hahnel, of St. Louis; Victor L. F. Rebmann, of Yonkers, N. Y., and B. F. Stuber, of Detroit.

That many of the world's greatest composers had obtained motifs from the carol of a bird and that the pleasant strains in most of the popular songs of the day are suggested by nature's songsters is the contention of Mrs. Philip S. Moxom, of Bridgeport, Conn., who has made a study of the subject.

"Perhaps some feel that one must strain the imagination to detect the songs of birds in the works of great composers," Mrs. Moxom said. "But Brahms once attributed the motif for one of his greatest works to the inspiration obtained from a bird's song. Among other great masters who found inspiration in nature were Beethoven and Wagner.'

Mrs. 'Moxom declares that the best way of hearing great music in the songs of birds is to "attune with nature." She supports her arguments by demonstrations. Whistling the well-known notes of birds, she strikes the same notes on the piano and then follows with a complete song. In these demonstrations Mrs. Moxom shows that the Kentucky cardinal sings "Darling, I Am Growing Old;' the English Sparrow with his chirp suggests "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here,' and the Baltimore oriole twitters strains from "Dixie."

COLLEGE VIEW NOTES

Professor George Bowers and Professord Malcolm Hause will receive the degree Master of Arts from the University of Nebraska this spring.

G. W. Phipps has moved his house from the corner of Thirteenth and L streets onto an adjoining lot and is beginning the erection of a new house on the old site.

Elder J. N. Anderson left last week for Washington, D. C., where he has accepted a position with the Washington Missionary college, of which Professor H. A. Morrison is president. Elder Anderson's family will follow him later.

Professor F. W. Griffin has moved into the Union Conference property at the corner of Eighth and N streets.

Miss Iva Hamel was married last Wednesday to Raymond Hartwell. Miss Hamel, whose home is in College View, has been attending the college, and Mr. Hartwell is a young minister working in the Nebraska Conference. The ceremony was solemnized by the groom's father, Elder H. C. Hartwell, president of the Missouri conference.

Professor Ed. B. Ogden is back in the View after having spent the winter in Colorado teaching school. Mr. Ogden expects to enter the summer school at the university and receive his master's degree at the close of the session.

Ed. Degering has gone to Kansas City, Mo., where he has established a business. Mrs. Degering is visiting relatives in Seattle, Wash.

Crankcase Lore.

A motorist who understands the engine of his car should clean out the crankcase by dropping the lower case and removing the muck that settles at the bottom. Do not attempt to flush out the old oil with kerosene. Most of this much is nothing more than dirt drawn into the case through the breather tube during the summer driving.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Two of your fans in your mail recently have asked about a certain actor who has appeared in several pictures lately. Now I harpen to know just who he is and perhaps I can give them the information thel are looking for. I have seen him in so many pictures that I can't forget his face. His name is Dick Sutherland. He always plays the heavy in pictures because he simply is too homely to play anything else. In "Kick In" if you remember, he played the part of a crook at the beginning of the picture. It showed two convicts being released from prison, one was Chic Hewes, played by Bert Lytell, and the other I don't remember the name he went by in the play, but his name was on the cast because he was introduced to the audience the same time Bert Lytell was. He also played in "Masters of Men." He played a sea captain in that play, and he certainly took his part well. In "Grandma's Boy" with Harold Lloyd, he played the tramp, the one he had such a terrible time to capture. In "From Rags to Riches," he also played a crook, a leader of a band of them of which Niles Welch was a member. In a recent photoplay magazine it told about certain actors, and it said that Dick Sutherland was one of many that didn't have to use make up. It also said that he was in great demand. His face seems to be his fortune, but I have seen lots of homely men in pictures, but he certainly wins the prize.

There is just one more question I would like to ask, what city was Mary Astor born in, and what is the color of her hair? Thanking you in advance, I am just one of many—JUSTICE.

Thank you so much, Justice, for the information about Mr. Sutherland. His name is not given in my cast of "Kick In," but it's a rather long cast without it, and since his part was insignificant, they left it out. I remember him, though, from the part he had in the picture. He is playing with Norma Talmadge in "Secrets." He is six feet tall, weighs 240 pounds and has blue eyes. He wears a size 13 shoe, 12 gloves and 7 7-8 hat. Some boy, isn't he?

Dear Movie Editor—Lest you should have a day when you didn't have to bother with a lot of casts, I have a few that I would like to have you print for me. They are "A Society Scandal," "Her Reputation," "The Wanters," and "Lucretia Lombardi."

Who played the role of "Mildred" in "Fogbound" with Dorothy Dalton? Please tell me all you can about her.

Thanking you in advance for the trouble I have caused you, I remain —SKEEZICKS.

The cast for "Lucretia Lombard" is: Stephen Winship, Monte Blue; Lucretia Lombard, Irene Rich; Sir Allen Lombard, Marc McDermott; Judge Winship, Alec B. Francis; Fred Winship, John Roche; Mrs. Winship, John Roche; Mrs. Winship, Lucy Beaumont; Sandy, Otto Hoffman; Mimi, Norma Shearer.

Dear Movie Editor—Is Bobby Vernon a married man or not? Where does he live? Could you tell me some of the plays he has been in? Will he come back to Lincoln soon?

Is there anyone that has opened a studio for young girls to become actresses yet?

If you do not have a picture of Bobby Vernon, please do not send me any, but keep me on your list until you get one, please.—A LOVER FOR BOBBY VERNON.

Yes, Bobby is a married man, but he doesn't object to your loving him anyhow. He lives at 1756 N. Western Ave., Hollywood, Calif., and I think you would get a picture of him much sooner if you wrote to him for it, because he seldom sends me one. He's made a multitude of pictures, among them are "Coming Thru the Rye," "Back From the Front," "Wedding Blues, "Hey Rube," "Why Wild Men Go Wild," "Papa by Proxy," and so on. He will surely be in Lincoln again soon. I see him frequently. There are schools in Los Angeles and Hollywood that are said to train young girls for actresses. Many of those already actresses go to school for training in certain facial expressions. Of course, one must have a talent along that line before you can become an actress, no matter how much trained. And then, too, you might not be able to get a job in the movies, even if you did go to school to qualify for it. There are a lot of experienced actresses who do not work every day.

Dear Movie Editor—Have written several times, and was well satisfied with the answers to my questions. How old are the following: Gloria Swanson, Jane Novak, Pola Negri, and Marion Davies? Are they married and if so to whom?

Why dont we see more of Mae Murray's pictures? I think she is a doll, don't you? What will Rudy's picture be when he has a chance to show it? Which is the best favored in a picture, a blonde or a brunette? Hoping to hear soon, we are—WALNUT and HICKORY NUT.

Gloria was born in 1893, and is single at the present writing, regardless of the fact that she's had two husbands. Jane Novak is married, and twenty-eight. Pola has been married, she was Countess Dombski, but she's single at present. She is twenty-six. Marion Davies is single, and also twenty-six.

Mae doesn't make so terribly many pictures. I think we see about all she releases, only two or three a year.

It depends very much upon what sort of a role they play in the picture as to whether a blonde or brunette is favored. You don't often see a blonde vamp, for instance. Although they have been known to exist in real life, on the screen the vamps are usually dark eyed and dark haired. The "clinging vine" type in the movies is usually portrayed by a blonde, and the "flapper type" may be either blonde or brunette just so they are petite. Of course dark eyes and light hair photograph the best. Blue or gray eyes often look "washed out" on the screen.

Dear Movie Editor—Is it true that Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne have separated?

Is Wesley Barry a son of Wallace Barry? Are Wallace and Noah related to each other.

What nationality are Anna Q. Nilsson and Nazimova? How old is Buddy Messinger and Madge Evans? What was Jackie Coogan's first picture? I don't mean the first one he made as a star, but the first he made at all? What name does Claire Windsor's little boy go by? I'm very fond of the child actors.

Will you please answer this letter as soon as possible, because I am leaving soon for my vacation, and I don't suppose I'll get to see The Star when I return. Many thanks—A TRUE FAN.

Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne are separated by their art. Mr. Bushman is in Europe, where he is playing an important role in "Ben Hur," and Beverly is in Hollywood, because she didn't care to leave her small son for so long.

Wesley is not related to Wallace at all. They don't even spell their names the same way. Wallace and Noah are brothers, and their names is spelled Beery.

Miss Nilsson is Swedish and Nazimova is Russian. Buddy and Madge are both fifteen. Jackie Coogan's first screen appearance was with Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid."

Billy Bowes is Claire Windsor's young son.

Dear Movie Editor—I have long been an interested reader of your page but have never had the nerve to express myself on paper to you before. I was just wondering why some of the real actors of the screen are not starred. Of course you would have no way of knowing, because it is probably just a combination of circumstances, but there are so many good players, who can really act that it makes me rather indignant to see some mediocre actors made stars. Take for instance Conway Tearle. He's one of the best actors I have seen for a long time, yet he is only co-featured with some star, or else just the leading man in the picture. I think he should have been chosen for the role of "Ben Hur" but he wasn't. Raymond Hatton, Theodore Kosloff and Bert Lytell are others that seem to me to do much better work than some of the popular "sheiks" of the day. Of course Thomas Meighan is popular. I don't think he's so terribly awful versatile, yet he has a winning personality and makes the most out of his roles. I do wish they would cast him in something berides a sailor boy role. I've seen him take that role so often, I know how he is going to react in every scene. Lewis Stone is quite a favorite of mine. He can play the debonair dandy, the he vamp, or the loving husband and "get-by" great in any of them.

I haven't missed Valentino one single solitary bit from the screen. He makes me tired with his greased hair, and I for one, would just as soon he didn't come back at all.

George Fawcett is a "grand old man." Makes you wish you could just rush up and hug him sometimes. He looks like a regular "bear" at times, but you know all you have to do is to be nice to him and he would be kind. I like him in all the parts I have ever seen him in, and they are many. I am also glad that Theodore Roberts has been spared to us. I hope we will see him in pictures again soon. I saw him here at the Orpheum a couple of years ago, and he is just as nice in real life as he is on the screen, only I did miss his proverbial mustache and cigar. He took the part of a German doctor here, and wore a beard, so he didn't look real natural, but he certainly could act.

I see I have written quite a lengthy letter for the first time, and I think I had better close or you will hope it will be my last. I thank you very much, kind lady, for granting me an audience, if you do, and will sign myself—A READER

Dear Movie Editor—I have often thought I would write to you, but I find a great many of my questions answered in your column, so I've put put it off from time to time. I have head that Marie Prevost is engaged to Kenneth Harlan. Is this true, and is it true that Agnes Ayres is engaged to Ramon Novarro? Who is Conrad Nagel engaged to? Is Bebe Daniels married or single? That's all the things I want to know this time. Thanking you for your time, I am —A MOVIE FAN.

I'm glad you finally decided to pay a visit to the department in a professional way. Marie and Kenneth are quite friendly and their engagement was rumored some time ago, but so far as I know, it has never been confirmed by the two interested parties. Agnes has been reported engaged to Ricardo Cortez—not Novarro, and she doesn't take the trouble to deny it. Conrad Nagel is not engaged. He's married to Ruth Helms. Bebe is single and says she intends to stay that way.

Screen Siftings

Farnum In New Show. — William Farnum, Director Wallace Morsely and a group of players have returned to Hollywood from Yosemite Valley, California, where they made several scenes for Mr. Farnum's first Paramount picture, "The Man Who Fights Alone." Lois Wilson is playing the leading feminine role opposite Mr. Farnum.

Estelle Taylor Chosen. — Estelle Taylor has been chosen to play the leading role opposite Thomas Meighan in "The Alaskan," which will be filmed in Hollywood.

Engaged to Dempsey—Estelle is a popular young lady these days. She just got through denying her engagement to Charlie Chaplin, and now Jack Dempsey gave a birthday party for her. She may or may not be engaged to him. It's rumored that she is, but she neither affirms nor denies the allegation. Jack, also, is noncommittal, but he does admit he thinks she's a nice girl.

POLA NEGRI IN HER LATEST SUCCESS AT THE LYRIC THIS WEEK.

One minute a fashionable society woman and the next an Apache terror in the most notorious underworld den in Paris, match that for a Pola Negri role if you can! "Shadows of Paris" with scenes of intense dramatic emotion, whirlwind Apache dancing and Parisian society with brilliant Pola will be the feature attraction at the Lyric this week. The added-attractions are unusually good, Lloyd Hamilton will be seen in a riot of laughter in his latest comedy "Killing Time;" Gayle Grub & Ben Dennis, former Uni. students, will present a vocal and instrumental offering that will delight all. To miss the Lyric program this week is to miss a real treat.

Absorbing romance, thrilling adventure, delightful humor. You will find them in generous measure in "Flowing Gold," the feature attraction at the Rialto this week. The photoplay was adapted from the famous novel by Rex Beach and it is enacted by a sterling cast of screen players which includes Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Alice Calhoun, Josephine Crowell and Cissy Fitzgerald. The program includes a fine array of short subjects and a brilliant musical program. Added attraction, Mabel Ludlam and Samuel Alstadt, presenting a picturesque musical offering.

George M. Cohan's big successful stage production hits the screen to a roar of thrill and laughter. "The Meanest Man in the World" is the story of a fellow who studied to say "No" and then found education a poor sub for love. The cast includes Bert Lytell, Blanche Sweet, Bryant Washburn and twenty others. "Back Stage," a new flock of laughs with "Our Gang" and "The Telephone Girl," another of H. C. Witwer's famous stories, completes an excellent program.

NEW COMEDY FOR GAP IN FOLLIES

By Brett Page

NEW YORK, May 31.—The "Follies," you know—because of the telegraph news about the strike of Flo Zeigfield due to the trouble between Actors' Equity association and the Producing Managers' association—stopped short at the New Amsterdam Theatre the other day. To fill the gap between this last "Follies"—Mr. Zeigfield would have us believe it is the very last of his marvelous brood—and the new "Follies" that undoubtedly will come some day, there leaped a new musical comery called "Plain Jane."

Presented by Louis I. Isqueth and Walter Brooks, with book and music by Phil Cook, McElbert Moore and Tom Johnstone, "Plain Jane" is one of the best summer shows—indeed it is one of the best musicl comedies taking it by and large. In some weeks if not months—that we have had the pleasure of seeing. This joy we largely owe to one nimble-witted, nimble-footed, nimble-voiced and nimbly-smiling young man. His name is Joe Laurie, jr., hereafter to be known up and down Broadway, undoubtedly, as Joe, perhaps "Plain Joe' in honor of his first great leap into the limelight all his own.

It is always difficult to give correct impression of a musical comedy. There are so many things to be considered. There's the book, for instance, and there are the lyrics to begin with. In the case of "Plain Jane" it may be said that these are very, very good most of the time, but that sometimes they limp. The music is mighty catchy. There are some hits you may hear soon. Then there are the girls, the comedy, the costumes, the scenery, the dances. It is nice to be able to report favorably on each of these. Particularly fine is it to say that in the department of the dance, "Plain Jane" is exceptionally strong. Not one individual of the large cast seems to have neglected to contribute a new step, and some, who are especially generous, give entire jigs that are wholly new.

At the time "Plain Jne" needed a stimulant it was forthcoming in the guise of as lively a prizefighter as one would wish. The story revolves around a young rich man who takes up the defense of a poor little girl and is instantly cast out by his father.

Hearing that he can win one thousdollars for each round he stays with a noted fighter ,this youth leaps to it. He stays two rounds and knocks out the king of the ring thereby winning a championship and twenty?five thousand dollars. The blows, didn't seem acting. Jay Gould who played that part put over some punches that seem seemed less unreal than some we have seen in the "real-for-sure" ring.

But dainty as are the girls catchy as is the music, joyous as some of the jokes are, the very best of "Plain Jane" is when the redoubtable Plain Joe is on the stage. We might dispense with other entire musical comedies before we would be willing to forfeit the memory Joe Laurie, jr., left with us.

"Plain Jane" may not be a world-beater but it is a thoroughly enjoyable musical comedy.

Creates Rumpus.

At the Provincetown Playhouse, down in Greenwich Village, Eugene O'Neill's much discussed play, "All Gods Chillun Got Wings,' made its bow after more pow-wow than any other play has created this season. It started because someone very wisely let slip the information that in one scene a white woman kisses the hand of a negro. With this news all sorts of folks leaped into the fray and many leaped into print. A good press agent stunt that. And now we must tell the bitter truth.

The first act had to be read instead of played, because Mayor Hylan refused permission to allow wIhH PH5. EAOI leett the necessary children of both colors to act the part of the prologue that shows there is no color line in childhood, that children black and white, play together in city streets without considering color.

From this point the play shows what happened to a white girl whose husband died and left her with a child that also died. She goes to the dogs, but is always kindly watched over by a colored boy playmate of her chidlhood. When she is lowest she marries the blackman, an aspiring student of the law, and then the show goes to pot.

In some moments it seems that God's Chillun" is better suited to an insane aslum than to any stage of which we know. At other moments there are gleams of power. But at no time were we able to discern the Eugene O'Neill who wrote, let us say, "The Emperor Jones."

Of the rest of the cast we cannot find it in our heart to say anything. Please understand that this is not a race question, for if there is one prejudice the writer has i is a violent prejudice against prejudice!

Nor is Eugene O'Neil prejudiced. One would say, after seeing this play, that O'Neill does not advocate intermarriage between whites and blacks. We suppose he intended only to show that what is, really is. In other words O'Neill strove merely to hold a colorless mirror up to blacks and whites in intimate relations. The fault, we suppose, lies in a clever press stunt going wrong.

You probably will not see the play outside of New York. The reason? Because the play is not worth while.

"The Melody Man.."

Herbert Richard Lorenz is the cryptic name that follows the "By" of "The Melody Man" on the Ritz theatre program. These are the first names of Lew Field's three sons, who collaborated with him, it would seem, in writing the new three act comedy hich Lew Fields presents ith himself as star.

For here is a veritable music master the composer of the famous "Dresden Symphony" working in a jazz factory. A budding young songsmith having heard the melody swiftly swipes it for his own jazzes it and it thereby reaps larger rewards. There stand the pathetic old composer raging because of the sacrilege leading for justice. Sure he gets it—in the parlance, and in the spirit of the comedy itself—gets the air! Then things begin to happen.

In the paragraph above is the idea of the entire comedy. The things that hurt the melody maker most are the things that give his audience the greatest joy. The more he raves the the more he weeps the more he wrings his hands the louder come the guffaws. Yes, Lew Fields is in his element, and all of us who saw him were in our element also. For there is no one who can do this thing more comically than Lew Fields.

For those who are easily amused, "The Melody Man" is primarily designed. A glimpse of the smile-wreathed faces of his audience seemed to disclose that all Broadway is easily amused.

Of the cast, that aids Lew Fields to achieve this laughter-producing effects much might be said. But the truth will undoubtedly prevail in the gossip of Broadway when this show is commented upon on the busy corners, that no one seems to be present upon the stage except Lew Fields.

Not so very long ago three different show-business friends at three different times—so it was not a conspiracy, but proved the ower of memory or the vitality of a tradition—viewed with amazement when I said that I had never seen Bertha Kalish in "The Kreutzer Sonata." So when the opportunity arrived by way of Lee Shubert's beautifully-staged revival at the Frazee theatre, I dashed to that show shop anticipating not a memorable evening perhaps not a pleasant evening, but one that would be redolent with good acting and high moments in art

Seventeen years have gone since Bertha Kalish swept across the stage of the old Manhattan theatre and started the tradition that holds until today. Seventeen years make a deal of difference in life, but not so much difference in art, sometimes. Loath as I am to be compelled to record it, "The Kreutzer Sonata" and its vogue and tradition are incomprehensible to me.

Perhaps in the days that are gone this play with its touches of sin, its verge toward degeneracy in one scene at least, and its dark, dark paying, paying, paying through its four acts won its success by reason of shocks. Certatinly Bertha Kalish's art aided the whole mightily for she is indeed a good actress.

In this year 1924, with all the plays and all the shocks of every sort that have gone between, "The Kreutzer Sonta" and some moments of its playing, seem not art but a sickening mess. Even those who like "strong" things in the theatre, may be forced to admit this is not now strong. It is not even weak. It is just nastily depressing from the rise of the first curtain until the fall of the last.

Bertha Kalish, as has been said is a very good actress. Some think Miss Kalish a great actress. She has the advantage of a competent company. But none would lift this Langdon Mitchell adaptation of Jacob Gordin's drama, above the mark of deepest depression it plumbed.

FOR WOMEN READERS.

The newly-elected officers of the Gamut club, an organization of students in elementary education in Teachers' college, with a purpose of promoting interest in education and creating a professional spirit among its members, are Miss Elsie Silver, president; the Misses Irene Davis, Irene Carson, Marion Basler, Louise Snapp, vice presidents; Miss Mabelle Duhacek, secretary; Miss Lucille Livingston, treasurer. Dr. Lida B. Earhart is sponsor of the Gamut club.

Screen Siftings

Ralph Graves Signed. — Ralph Graves has been signed by Mack Sennett to play a series of two reel comedies, released by Pathe. Richard Jones will direct Mr. Graves in his first picture, as yet untitled. It will be of a rural character. Natalie Kingston will be the leading lady.

Pepper Is Dead—Pepper, the famous comedy cat is dead. "The Cat's Meow," Harry Langdon's new comedy, was her last screen appearance. She was said to be the most intelligent cat that ever worked on a movie set, and the only one that could take direction.

Third Dempsey Picture.—The third of the two-reel feature pictures for Universal studios the Jack Dempsey company is making was stated recently under the direction of Jess Robbins. Carmelita Geraghty plays opposite the champion, and others in the case are "Chuck" Reisner, Ed Kennedy, and George Ovey.

"The Red Lily"—Frank Currier is playing with Enid Bennett for the second time this year. They both had parts in "The Sea Hawk," and now Mr. Currier has been signed for the role of Etienne Leonnac in "The Red Lily" in which Miss Bennett plays the role of Marise La None, the heroine. Ramon Novarro is the hero of the picture and Wallace Beery and Mitchell Lewis are other members of the cast. Fred Niblo is directing the production.

Vera Gordon In Cast.—Vera Gordon will have the part of Mrs. Potash in "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," the second Montague Glass story which Al Green is making for Goldwyn.

Play "Empty Hands" — Norma Shearer has consented to play the leading role opposite Jack Holt in "Empty Hands" a film version of Arthur Stringer's story. The picture will be made under Victor Fleming's supervision, and the supporting cast is composed of Mildred June, Charles Clary, Ramsey Wallace, Ward Crane and Hank Mann.

Chinese Dive Scene—Edward Piel, famous delineator of oriental charpen of Sophie Kerr, and the picture lous owner of a Chinese dive in "The Man Who Came Back," which is being filmed at the Fox West Coast studios. The picture is a screen version of Jules Ackert Goodman's play, and much of the dramatic action of the play takes place in the dive. George O'Brien, Dorothy Mackaill and Cyril Chadwick are the featured players in the production. Emmet J. Flynn is directing the picture.

Director Turns Actor — Phillips Smalley, husband of Lois Weber, and one time one of the screen's best known directors, has turned actor. He plays the role of Mr. Winslow in "For Sale," the First National production which is being made by Earl Hudson. George Irving, who directed "The Witching Hour," "To Hell with the Kaiser" and other pictures, also had a part in the same picture.

Loan Young Star. — When Buddy Messinger finishes playing "Playing Hookey" for Century, he is to be loaned to Universal for a prominent role in "Young Ideas," Laura La Plante's latest starring vehicle. Buddy plays the role of the younger brother to a girl who refuses love in order to give all of her attention to her family. The story is from the pen of Sophie Kerr, and the p icture will be directed by Robert Hill.

Use Norris Novel—Margaret Livingston, star in Regal Pictures has been loaned to Universal for a featured role in Kathleen Norris' new novel, "Butterfly," which Clarence Brown is directing for the screen. Miss Livingston is supported by such celebrities as Norman Kerry, Kenneth Harlan, Arthur Lubkin and Laura La Plante.

Still Undecided—Harold and Mildred Lloyd have not yet named their eight-pound baby girl that was born May 21. The baby was to have been named Harold.

Named Co-respondent — Lew Cody is pretty indignant because Dr. Woodward Mayo, Los Angeles physician, named him as co-respondent in his suit for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Mary Mayo. Mrs. Cody insists that although he has always played the role of an amorous lover of the stage, he never carried it into his private life. Mrs. Mayo is known in film circles as Mary Ruthledge.

Back from Europe—Betty Blythe has been signed for the leading feminine role, that of the Hollywood vamp, in Montague Glass's "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," which Goldwyn is producing. Miss Blythe recently returned from Europe where she portrayed the principal role in the film production of "Chu Chin Chow."

Tom Moore Switches—Tom Moore ended his engagement in the play "The Rabbit's Foot," to play the leading role opposite Laurette Taylor in "One Night in Rome," the J. Hartley Manners story, which Clarence Badger is directing for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lawson, 1725 North Thirty-first street, celebrated their golden wedding last Monday. Their seven children, Mrs. Mattie Jensen of Casper, Wyo., Mrs. Lena Standley of Denver, Mrs. Amelia Christ of Chicago, J. J. Lawson of San Francisco, and Martin, William and Frank of Lincoln were all here to assist Mr. and Mrs. Lawson in celebrating the day. An informal reception was held afternoon and evening during which Lincoln friends and friends from nearby towns called to offer cogratulatios and best wishes. They received many gifts including a purse of gold from the members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson came to Nebraska fifty years ago. They came to Lincoln from Wilber twenty-three years ago.

E. E. Correll of Hebron Spends More Than Quarter Century As Editor Paper Father Started

E. E. Correll, editor of the Hebron Journal, who is a Nebraskan born and bred and who has edited one newspaper for more than a quarter of a century. The paper is a sort of family affair, having been founded by his father and having remained in the family for fifty-three years. Editing is the only work Mr. Correll has done—although he is inclined to believe that no other profession outside the newspaper game has work, patience, and hope has been mine.

Of the thirteen or fourteen Nebraska editors, E. E. Correll, editor of the Hebron Journal, ranks well toward the top of those men who have devoted more than a quarter of a century to the advancement of the same Nebraska paper. Twenty-nine years ago, Mr. Correll became editor of the Hebron paper and he's been at it since that time, through bad times, and good.

Mr. Correll is a real Nebraska editor, for he was born here and the Journal is the only paper he has edited. It really wasn't choice that sent him into the newspaper "game," rather it was necessity. However, he might not have been able to avoid it, even though necessity had not showed him the way, for his father was a newspaper man and he had grown up in that atmosphere. Telling of his newspaper life, Mr. Correll says:

Father A Pioneer.

"The Hebron Journal was established by my father, E. M. Correll, when there were only three houses in the town. My boyhood impressions of that pioneer faith which visioned a new era just beyond the horizon—where yesterday's discouragements should dawn into the fruitions of tomorrow—the sublime confidence that should transform barren prairies into productive areas—all proved inspirational to me.

"The place of the newspaper in community life loomed large, and yet I did not choose the vocation for myself.

"Too close familiarity with the drudgery side of the profession, made me rather look toward the profession of law where one could talk money out of clients, or surgery, where one might deftly carve their own fortune, or the ministry, where one could pull at his own bootstraps and float heavenward, sans airplanes, or the banking profession, where one could always have money without earning it, the beautiful brass buttons of policemen, and the brass bands surrounding the movements of the president of the United States—all left the subtle enticements with their distinctive blandishments, as youth wondered just which occupation to 'accept.'"

A Newspaper Family.

Mr. Correll had been born into a newspaper family, however, and he has not been able to unclasp the tentacles that seemed to hold him to the editorial profession. Mr. Correll was born in the year of the grasshopper scourage, which may be the reason, he explains, that life for him has been "an unending, hop, skip and jump."

"At the time of my father's death," he writes, "I gave up my cherished longing for scholastic training at the university and returned home to take up office work, fighting debts, drouths, politicians, and pestilence.

"How long have I been with the paper? It seems like 902 years of labor, and 1206 years of joyful discoveries of the fine, sound purposes marking fellow citizens' characteristics that outweighed the foibles of humanity—and as I sum up the calendar, I discover that in reality only twenty-nine years of evolution in toil, and Tenth to Twelfth streets. Then, the students attended physiology, botany, and chemistry "lab" in the present pharmacy building and all other classes in U hall. Students registered for the classical course, the scientific course, or the literary course.

Chancellor Fairfield presided over the destinies of the young school in those days, and among the professors who were here then and who are still guiding youth of Nebraska to culture were Dean L. A. Sherman and Dr. George E. Howard. Prof. Howard Caldwell, who but lately retired, was also on the faculty.

Ellen Smith was registrar, librarian, Latin and higher arituhetic instructor thirty-six years ago, and the students all loved her. Stern and severe, as she seemed, she had the kindest of hearts and thought deeply of the young people in her classes. Miss Smith ruled with a rod of iron, but every one knew the gentleness behind the forbidding look.

When Mrs. Henry was just little Cora White, with very short dresses and only eleven years to her life's credit, she entered the Latin preparatory school of the university, which is but a memory now. She was so much tinier than the other students, even in her first college days, and so much younger, that the older girls, even as now, teased her. Coming out of chapel one day, after being the center of mockery, she was weeping and Miss Smith put her arm about her and said:

"Well, never mind,"—and to the girls—"If you would study as hard as Cora does and pass your examinations, perhaps you would get through school younger, too."

Professor Collier taught physics in the university then, Prof. Church some Latin—Mrs. Henry recalls that her first work under him was to memorize the first four lines of Caesar — Prof. Edgren, Italian, Hebrew, German and French, all of which Mrs. Henry studied, and Prof. George E. Woodbury, literary subjects.

When Mrs. Henry entered the university proper, she became a member of the Union Literary society, which, with the Palladian society, represented the literary life of the school. Mrs. Henry recalls fondly a prize she once took in an essay on "Louisa Alcott," when Roscoe Pound was the other speaker — and Mrs. Henry took the first prize. The contest took place in the old Funke Opera house—and to Mrs. Henry Lincoln is only half Lincoln with the opera house gone.

Commencement orators had not then come into vogue, and a student from each of the university courses was selected to give an "oration" at commencement. Mrs. Henry was selected from the literary members and she gave a scintillating number upon the life, habits, and influence of Percy Bysshe Shelley. A few years later commencement speakers became popular, speakers from out of town, but in '88, they were unknown.

Students did not have caps and gowns in those days, but graduated in dresses especially made for the occasion. Fraternities and sororities came into local being about the time that Mrs. Henry left, and, upon their appearance, a rule was passed that no literary society member could join a sorority or fraternity and yet remain a society member.

Mrs. Henry is connected with the H. W. Wilson Publishing company of New York City, of which her husband is superintendent and her daughter, Emily Esther, is on the editorial staff. The company is called an experiment in socialism, for practically all of the stock is owned by the employes.

The company publishes a dozen magazines for libraries, in which the newest books are reviewed, and which librarians use as a standard for purchasing new books for their shelves. Before coming west, Mrs. Henry had just completed a catalogue and brief review of children's books, in which four thousand books for children were listed.

Graduated From University Thirty-Six Years Ago; Finds Many Changes On Campus Now

Thirty-six years ago this June Cora White graduated from the university.

She is Mrs. Leon Henry now and shes traveling in Europe and California and had delightful work in New York, but the pull of the alma mater brought her back and she is in Lincoln now, hoping to stay for the Roundup June 4, 5, 6, and 7. It has been many years since Mrs. Henry has seen many of the class mates of '88, but she is hoping that she can stay until those June days, so that she can meet again the men and the women who were the boys and girls she knew more than thirty years ago.

Mrs. Henry has been here from New York City during the past week, but she has felt a stranger in a strange land, for the little Lincoln and the tiny university have grown so much, the one into a city, the other into a lovely spot of many buildings and well kept campus.

When she was here as a student long, long ago, the university occupied the area from R to T streets

Archery will be taught by Carolyn Airy the first part of the summer and Elizabeth Paschal the latter part. Miss Airy has taken special training in archery. Miss Paschal, who graduates from Wellesley this year has a very unusual record in her chosen sport. She has been on her class team in archery for four years and on the all-school team for three years, and she won the silver cup for being the best archer in the fall of her senior year.

Elizabeth Wilcox, who has her A. B. degree and also an M. A. degree from Nebraska university, and has been at Kiwanis camp as councillor for three years will assist with the nature work and have charge of evening stunts and programs.

Harriet Wilson, a graduate of the home economics department of the University of Nebraska will have charge of the dietetics and planning the meals.

The camp mother has not yet been chosen and her name will be announced later.

Other councillors will be, Helen Ach, Margaret Williams, Elizabeth Jones, Helen Tomson, Helen Oberlies, Martha Figenbaum, Pauline Tait, Dorothy Bell, Louise Van Sickle, Alice Stebbins, Helen Elting, Ruth Paine and Elizabeth Armstrong.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

The Right "Line" For Popularity Is Suggested Today By a High School Miss—Her Ideas Are Decidedly Youthful And No Doubt Of Value To The Youthful — We Are Told Again In Forceful Language Why Not To Dance, Are Given Quite A Sermonette In Fact — Other Discussions Also.

Old Methods Good.

The old-fashioned method of attracting the boys, such as dropping the handkerchief or book in the school hall, or of asking his advice about that "horrid old match lesson," and such like, seems to be holding its own with modern young people, according to the letter of advice from one high school miss who is quite satisfied with her popularity and good times, thank you, to one who is dissatisfied and quite generally "Undecided."

"And how can any girl find conversation difficult now days," naively inquires our young adviser, "when we have shingle bobs to talk about."

All you young school misses who feel alone and lonely in a world of chattering young people "ganging' together with you on the outside read the following letter and seek to gain help from its candid advice.

Dear Minerva: Just a few lines to "Undecided." No wonder you don't make friends. From the way you talked in your letter one could easily tell that you are the kind that has the attitude toward every body else of "I'm so-so and you are just so-so." New confess up aren't you?

Maybe you don't mean to be but I really believe that is the outside coating. Perhaps you have nice clothes and lots of money and a beautifu home. They are all right but you know they don't make popularity. Our little department store girls don't have these things, or at least are not thought of as possessing these luxuries but aren't they popular? I should say so, with both men and girls. And you'll find they were popular in their school days too

"Undecided," be one of them, jump out of your nicey-nicey ways and throw your mask off and be one of us. I'm a high school girl, too—a senior now and all I can say is just be your real self and you'll be in our gang.

You certainly do not have to let the men "love you up" in order that they will come back again. I should say not. But did you ever stop to think that you can call them down in such a way that they will only admire and respect you for it and want to cultivate your friendship. And too if you will give them a good, sound lecturing about being so soft and you don't approve of being petted, etc., you'll find they will pass the word along gently to others. Just say something to the effect that you don't care for petting parties because you find all the men alike and you don't care to indulge in such cheap pastime. Just tell them lightly but firmly and they will pass the word along that you "have a little common sense along with being a good sport too." You'll find it pays not to treat them too uppish. You know the boys are only human creatures after all like the rest of us and they are harmless.

But "Undecided" don't "pick them up." At school it is different. If you see some man that you fancy treat him in a comradely manner. Drop your book. spill all your papers near him in the ball some day, and then laugh mischievously and the first thing you know he'll be gallant enough to pick them up as nicely as you please for you and your chance for acquaintance is there. Don't just say "thank you" in a chilly way but be original about it. Talk about your studies, the latest party, the newest dance music, and yes, the old chilly professor always gets a good response. Put a little dash in your line and just be one of us.

Maybe I've given you some of the common pointers in getting acquainted with and keeping men friends but just add a few of your own.

About making friends with us girls —well, I believe that if you keep your distant attitude toward us which I feel you possess, that you will go clear through high school without being one of us. Don't be personal but be interested in our gab and chatter; seem so anyway even if you are bored to death. But above all never show it.

Is conversation hard for you? It shouldn't be. With our shingle bobs, dance steps, shorter skirts, hard assignments, vacation etc, you should have oodles to talk about. How Such-and-Such, our popular Lincoln barber. cut your neck or sliced your ear. kidded you into thinking you had the most adorable head for a shingle. that's "banana oil" but just kid wth and about him anyway.

We would love to have you as one of our modern gang if you care to and can be a good sport.—ONE OF THE BUNCH.

Dear Minerva:—I wish to correct "Watchful's" signature, as it is absolutely wrong for one who satisfies the lust of his or her body to sign with such a signature as "Watchful." The dancer can have only such material and lustful enjoyment from the dance.

Does the husband say to his wife, after dancing with her, "Let us go home to pray?" No. Does he dance on Saturday night and go to church on Sunday morning? No, he is in bed snoring loudly while the preacher is saying his last morning prayer in church.

As for the previous writer being a "hick" (that is what "Watchful" said) let me quote New Testament, Cor. 1:27,28, "But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound that which is mighty." Likewise God has chosen the "hick" to confound the would-be "Watchful." Solomon, the wisest man that ever was or will be said (through the inspired word of God) "Forget the sins of my youth." But as for "Watchful" or much better "Lustful" who is not willing to settle down after her youthful days are passed is like unto a huge stone in the center of a highway.

Ecclesiastics 12 1 "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth while the evil days come not nor the years draw nigh when Thou shalt say I have no pleasure in them."

"A Reader" was partly right, yes, very little right in her statement why shouldn't couples be allowed to go out between dances. As for the people dancing throughout all the ages, they have also murdered, killed and sinned throughout the ages as will be tormented with fire and brimstone through eternity unless the change comes before death. If "Lustful" would spend a few hours, yea even a few minutes reading the Bible once a week she would be blesed and prosper. "Observer it does hurt you to dance. Here is a piece of poetry which I made myself and which may help somebody.

As God Would Have it.

For 'round about the God of pride are ye curled.
Seek ye the Bible every evening, night by night,
Oh, make ye mention and be ye contented.

Praise ye the Lord and Give God the glory,
Take your babies to church and bring a friend along.
Thank God that ye prosper, thank God for your crop,
Lest He shut off the valve and the rain does stop.

Wake up! Wake up! Get your shoulder to the wheel.
Starting from the first and leaving out nome,
Keep God's commandments, yes, every one.
And God bless you and send upon you no evil curse
And so don't forget that His Name is exalted
For on the evil man's crops the rain hath He halted.

So keep His commandments and please don't forget
For would ye be cast into the bottomless pit?
Safety first for the body, but the soul comes first.
Do as God has commanded and be ye not cursed.
Safety first for the soul and escape the wrath of the Lamb,
Speak not profane language for your soul will God damn.
Be ye not timid but courageous and bold,
Inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, made of transparent gold
Repeat it ,repeat it, that His Name is most high,
Take not the mark of the beast in order to sell or buy.
I'll tell it to you, don't wait till the hour of eleven

Don't keep to yourself the words of His Books.
Tell of the Bible and see that he looks,
Get for yourself the best reward that can be had
And be not cast into hell-fire which is certainly sad
At least once a week the midnight oil should ye burn,
For a wonderful place in Heaven I know you earn.

Oh be reconciled to God and again don't forget,
That there's a vast place in Heaven, a place for you to set,
For you shall inherit that city built of transparent gold,
Although His word is a stumbling block to one and foolishness to the Greek,
I'm warning you now, and please don't forget that word you must seek.

INDIAN HILL POET.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods or reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion; if you are likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets, compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat steadily and easily. Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not only harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully, and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.—Advertisement.

WELL-MERITED SUCCESS

A distinguished citizen, honored politically and professionally, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, made a success few have equalled. His pure herbal remedies which have stood the test for fifty years are still among the "best sellers." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and stomach alterative. It clears the skin beautifies it, increases the blood supply and the circulation, and pimples and eruptions vanish quickly. Beauty is but skin deep and good blood is beneath both. For your blood to be good, your stomach must be in condition, your liver active. This Discovery of Doctor Pierce's puts you in fine coindition, with all the organs active. Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel in Buffalo, N. Friendly Appreciation.

Dear Minerva: Each time a girl has a date with a boy should she invite him to come down some Sunday even though she does not care to keep steady company with him? Is it proper for a couple to linger in the car before going into a dance hall and after they get home? Is it proper to tell them you have enjoyed the evening and to call again? Should a girl thank him for taking her to a show? Please, Minerva, do not throw this in the wastepaper basket and say you silly, silly, girl.—BROWN EYES.

A. It is always proper for a girl to invite a boy friend to her home for a Sunday or other day, and when he calls she should introduce him into the family circle and make his visit pleasant, not making it merely a twosing party. It is proper enough for a couple to visit with each other in the car providing they are not making this an excuse for a "petting party." Always thank your escort for whatever favors he has shown you, tell him you have enjoyed the evening, never be afraid to show your appreciation, and never be afraid to courteously invite him to call again.

Thinks Child Stubborn.

Dear Minerva: I would like some advice about a six-year-old boy. I am at my wits end. He is better than the average child but is stubborn. Everyone says what a good little boy and how well he minds but they are not told what a trial I have when we are alone. I know I am to blame too but I always was made to obey at home and I expect too much or at least that is what my husband says. Should I just let it go when I tell him to do something and he pouts and stands like he never heard me or should I scold or spank? When he tells a fib should I whip or tell him never to do it again. I have always told him not to lie for if he does I will whip him and he always gets one if he does but if he tells the truth first thing no matter what he has done I never punish him. I have only one child and I want to be a real mother to him and not have him think I am always cross and driving him like it has been of late. Please tell me what is wrong in my ways.—A MOTHER.

A: I think you have drifted into the wrong mental attitude, that you believe your boy to be a special and difficult problem and treat him accordingly. Banish from your mind for a while the child's weaknesses and trying characteristics and seek to make a chum and companion of him. When you tell him his bedtime story (and every child needs and deserves his bedtime stories), let them occasionally point a moral toward the ends in which he needs improvement.

Be firm with the child but do not get fretful and worried over his stubbornness and inattention. Give him your orders, making sure you know what you want in the first place, then if prompt attention is not given, send the child to his room for a period, deny him some pleasure or coveted article, informing him clearly why he is being punished. There measures are far more effective than the lasty whipping.

Take your time with the child. Develop patience in yourself. Get him firmly in hand and make a companion of the little fellow. You will find yourself amply rewarded for the pains.

I believe your chief mistake is in letting the boy and the situation dominate you instead of rising above him and the difficulties and getting yourself and child well in hand.

University Notes

Teachers college high school will open with class work Monday, June 9 and will end Friday, August 1. Registration will be held June 5 and 6. The summer session will be run as a high-grade demonstration school in which the latest methods in secondary education will be exemplified. Regular university supervisors will teach in their respective subjects. These teachers are specialists in their line of work and have had much experience in high school work before coming to the university. Teachers college high school is accredited to the university and is on the accredited list of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools. All credits, therefore, earned in the summer session will be accepted as entrance to the university or by any high school in the state, states a pamphlet prepared and distributed by the University Extension service.

Recitation periods will be double length and no pupil will be allowed more than two subjects. Students from other high schools will be required to have their proposed schedule approved by their principal and bring a statement to that effect. Additional information on the summer session may be got from the principal, Prof. C. W. Taylor, in room 103 Teachers college.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Two of your fans in your mail recently have asked about a certain actor who has appeared in several pictures lately. Now I happen to know just who he is and perhaps I can give them the information thel are looking for. I have seen him in so many pictures that I can't forget his face. His name is Dick Sutherland. He always plays the heavy in pictures because he simply is too homely to play anything else. In "Kick In" if you remember, he played the part of a crook at the beginning of the picture. It showed two convicts being released from prison, one was Chic Hewes, played by Bert Lytell, and the other I don't remember the name he went by in the play, but his name was on the cast because he was introduced to the audience the same time Bert Lytell was. He also played in "Masters of Men." He played a sea captain in that play, and he certainly took his part well. In "Grandma's Boy" with Harold Lloyd, he played the tramp, the one he had such a terrible time to capture. In "From Rags to Riches," he also played a crook, a leader of a band of them of which Niles Welch was a member. In a recent photoplay magazine it told about certain actors, and it said that Dick Sutherland was one of many that didn't have to use make up. It also said that he was in great demand. His face seems to be his fortune, but I have seen lots of homely men in pictures, but he certainly wins the prize.

There is just one more question I would like to ask, what city was Mary Astor born in, and what is the color of her hair? Thanking you in Advance, I am just one of many—JUSTICE.

Thank you so much, Justice, for the information about Mr. Sutherland. His name is not given in my cast of "Kick In," but it's a rather long cast without it, and since his part was insignificant, they left it out. I remember him, though, from the part he had in the picture. He is playing with Norma Talmadge in "Secrets." He is six feet tall, weighs 240 pounds and has blue eyes. He wears a size 13 shoe, 12 gloves and 7 7-8 hat. Some boy, isn't he?

Mary Astor has medium brown hair, but she seems to be a little reticent about telling her birthplace.

Dear Movie Editor—Lest you should have a day when you didn't have to bother with a lot of casts, I have a few that I would like to have you print for me. They are "A Society Scandal," "Her Reputation," "The Wanters," and "Lucretia Lombardi."

Who played the role of "Mildred" in "Fogbound" with Dorothy Dalton? Please tell me all you can about her.

What was Jack Pickfords first wife's name? I remember her, and she used to look like Mary Pickford, but I can't remember what her name was.

Thanking you in advance for the trouble I have caused you, I remain —SKEEZICKS.

A Sunday without casts would be very unusual, 'tis true. The cast for "A Society Scandal" is: Marjorie Colbert, Gloria Swanson; Daniel Farr, Rod La Rocque; Harrison dame Cervanez, Eugenie Hesserir; Coonsuelo, Louise Lester; Ramon, George Larkin; Clinton Kent, Brinsley Shaw; Pepita, Jane Wray.

Martha Mansfield played with Dorothy Dalton in "Fogbound." She is now dead. Her last picture was "The Warrens of Virginia," and it was while on location for this film that she accidentaly got her dress on fire, and was burned to death. She was born in Mansfield, Ohio, in 1899. She had blonde hair and gray eyes. Following her education she started her screen career by an engagement in the Winter Garden revue. Later she appeared in "The Century Girl" and "On With the Dance." She made her screen debut in Ma Linder Comedies. One of her most important rodes was opposite John Barrymore in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Dear Movie Editor—Is Bobby Vernon a married man or not? Where does he live? Could you tell me some of the plays he has been in? Will he come back to Lincoln soon?

Is there anyone that has opened a studio for young girls to become actresses yet?

Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne are separated by their art. Mr. Bushman is in Europe, where he is playing an important role in "Ben Hur," and Beverly is in Hollywood, because she didn't care to leave her small son for so long.

Wesley is not related to Wallace at all. They don't even spell their names the same way. Wallace and Noah are brothers, and their names is spelled Beery.

Miss Nilsson is Swedish and Nazimova is Russian. Buddy and Madge are both fifteen. Jackie Coogan's first screen appearance was with Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid."

Billy Bowes is Claire Windsor's young son.

Dear Movie Editor—I have long been an interested reader of your page but have never had the nerve to express myself on paper to you before. I was just wondering why some of the real actors of the screen are not starred. Of course you would have no way of knowing, because it is probably just a combination of circumstances, but there are so many good players, who can really act that it makes me rather loving husband and "get-by" great in any of them.

I haven't missed Valentino one single solitary bit from the screen. He makes me tired with his greased hair, and I for one, would just as soon he didn't come back at all.

George Fawcett is a "grand old man." Makes you wish you could just rush up and hug him sometimes. He looks like a reglar "bear" at times, but you know all you have to do is to be nice to him and he would be kind. I like him in all the parts I have ever seen him in, and they are many. I am also glad that Theodore Roberts has been spared to us. I hope we will see him in pictures again soon. I saw him here at the Orpheum a couple of years ago, and he is just as nice in real life as he is on the screen, only I did miss his proverbial mustache and cigar. He took the part of a German doctor here, and wore a beard, so he didn't look real natural, but he certainly couid act.

I see I have written quite a lengthy letter for the first time, and I think I had better close or you will hope it will be my last. I thank you very much, kind lady, for granting me an audience, if you do, and will sign myself—A READER.

Dear Movie Editor—I have often thought I would write to you, but I find a great many of my questions answered in your column, so I've put put it off from time to time. I have head that Marie Prevost is engaged to Kenneth Harlan. Is this true, and is it true that Agnes Ayres is engaged to Ramon Novarro? Who is Conrad Nagel engaged to? Is Bebe Daniels married or single? That's all the things I want to know this time. Thanking you for your time, I am —A MOVIE FAN.

I'm glad you finally decided to pay a visit to the department in a professional way. Marie and Kenneth are quite friendly and their engagement was rumored some time ago, but so far as I know, it has never been confirmed by the two interested parties. Agnes has been reported engaged to Ricardo Cortez—not Novarro, and she doesn't take the trouble to deny it. Conrad Nagel is not engaged. He's married to Ruth Helms. Bebe is single and says she intends to stay that way.

Screen Siftings

Farnum In New Show. — William Farnum, Director Wallace Morsely and a group of players have returned to Hollywood from Yosemite Valley, California, where they made several scenes for Mr. Farnum's first Paramount picture, "The Man Who Fights Alone." Lois Wilson is playing the leading feminine role opposite Mr. Farnum.

Estelle Taylor Chosen. — Estelle Taylor has been chosen to play the leading role opposite Thomas Meighan in "The Alaskan," which will be filmed in Hollywood.

Engaged to Dempsey—Estelle is a popular young lady these days. She just got through denying her engagement to Charlie Chaplin, and now Jack Dempsey gave a birthday party for her. She may or may not be engaged to him. It's rumored that she is, but she neither affirms nor denies the allegation. Jack, also, is noncommittal, but he does admit he thinks she's a nice girl.

Bobby Vernon, please do not send me any, but keep me on your list until you get one, please.—A LOVER FOR BOBBY VERNON.

Yes, Bobby is a married man, but he doesn't object to your loving him anyhow. He lives at 1756 N. Western Ave., Hollywood, Calif., and I think you would get a picture of him much sooner if you wrote to him for it, because he seldom sends me one. He's made a multitude of pictures, among them are "Coming Thru the Rye," "Back From the Front," Wedding Blues, "Hey Rube," "Why Wild Men Go Wild," "Papa by Proxy," and so on. He will surely be in Lincoln again soon. I see him frequently. There are schools in Los Angeles and Hollywood that are said to train young girls for actresses. Many of those already actresses go to school for training in certain facial expressions. Of course, one must have a talent along that line before you can become an actress, no matter how much trained. And then, too, you might not be able to get a job in the movies, even if you did go to school to qualify for it. There are a lot of experienced actresses who do not work every day.

Dear Movie Editor—Have written several times, and was well satisfied with the answers to my questions. How old are the following: Gloria Swanson, Jane Novak, Pola Negri, and Marion Davies? Are they married and if so to whom?

Why dont we see more of Mae Murray's pictures? I think she is a doll, don't you? What will Rudy's picture be when he has a chance to show it? Which is the best favored in a picture, a blonde or a brunette? Hoping to hear soon, we are—WALNUT and HICKORY NUT.

Gloria was born in 1893, and is single at the present writing, regardless of the fact that she's had two husbands. Jane Novak is married, and twenty-eight. Pola has been married, she was Countess Dombski, but she's single at present. She is twenty-six. Marion Davies is single, and also twenty-six.

Mae doesn't make so terribly many pictures. I think we see about all she releases, only two or three a year.

Rudy's first release since he returned to the Paramount banner is "Monsieur Beaucaire."

It depends very much upon what sort of a role they play in the picture as to whether a blonde or brunette is favored. You don't often see a blonde vamp, for instance. Although they have been known to exist in real life, on the screen the vamps are usually dark eyed and dark haired. The "clinging vine" type in the movies is usually portrayed by a blonde, and the "flapper type" may be either blonde or brunette just so they are petite. Of course dark eyes and light hair photograph the best. Blue or gray eyes often look "washed out" on the screen.

Dear Movie Editor—Is it true that Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne have separated?

Is Wesley Barry a son of Wallace Barry? Are Wallace and Noah related to each other.

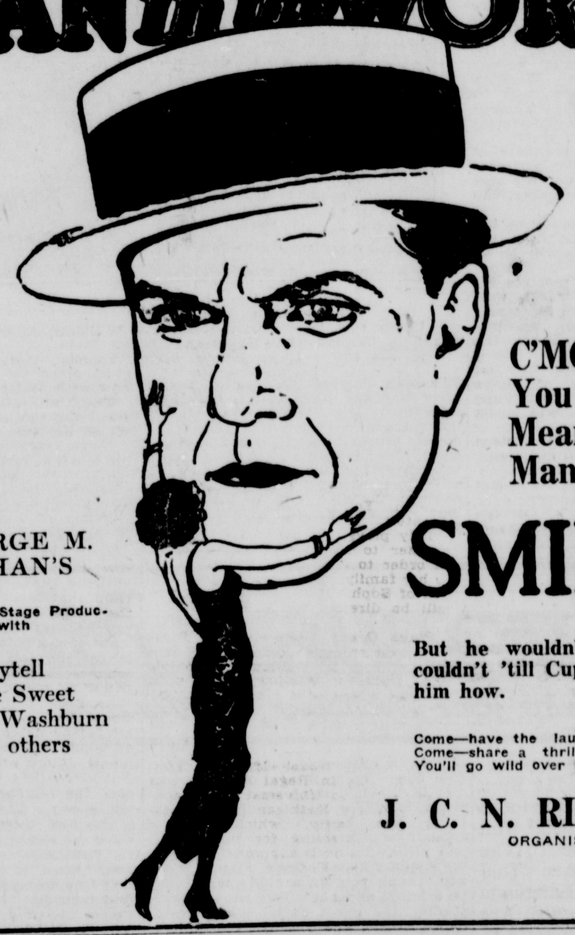

What nationality are Anna Q. Nilsson and Nazimova? How old is Buddy Messinger and Madge Evans? What was Jackie Coogan's first picture? I don't mean the first one he made as a star, but the first he made at all? What name does Claire Windsor's little boy go by? I'm very fond of the child actors.

Will you please answer this letter as soon as possible, because I am leaving soon for my vacation, and I don't suppose I'll get to see The Star indignant to see some mediocre actors made stars. Take for instance Conway Tearle. He's one of the best actors I have seen for a long time, yet he is only co-featured with some star, or else just the leading man in the picture. I think he should have been chosen for the role of "Ben Hur" but he wasn't. Raymond Hatton, Theodore Kosloff and Bert Lytell are others that seem to me to do much better work than some of the popular "sheiks" of the day. Of course Thomas Meighan is popular. I don't think he's so terribly awful versatile, yet he has a winning personality and makes the most out of his roles. I do wish they would cast him in something besides a sailor boy role. I've seen him take that role so often, I know how he is going to react in every scene. Lewis Stone is quite a favorite of mine. He can play the debonair dandy, the he vamp, or the

Lower row—Martha Curtis, Louise Van Sickle, Foster Matchett.

The camp committee of the Lincoln Camp Fire council announces its selection of councillors and staff for the coming season at Kiwanis camp as follows:

Lola Duncan, executive secretary of the Lincoln camp Fire girls for three years will be camp director.

Laureda Thompson, a junior in the Kansas State Agricultural college and president of the Women's Athletic association there, will be recreational director. Miss Thompson was assistant in this department of the work at camp last year.

Dorothy Williams, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, assistant in the Camp Fire office for the past year and an experienced camper, will be business manager.

Martha Curtis, who has won her M. A. degree in zoology from the University of Nebraska, will be in charge of nature lore.

Foster Matchett, who receives his A. B. degree from Nebraska university this June, and who has qualified under the life saving requirements of the Red Cross will hold the position of life guard.

Faye Forbes of Nebraska City, an expert in the fine arts will have charge of arts and crafts. June Bishop and Ruth Smith will assist in this department.

Loraine Bradley of Northwestern university will assist with swimming and will be in charge of canoeing Miss Bradley was on the force last year and is an expert camper.

Archery will be taught by Carolyn Afry the first part of the summer and Elizabeth Paschal the latter part. Miss Airy has taken special training in archery. Miss Paschal, who graduates from Wellesley this year has a very unusual record in her chosen sport. She has been on her class team in archery for four years and on the all-school team for three years, and she won the silver cup for being the best archer in the fall of her senior year.

Elizabeth Wilcox, who has her A. B. degree and also an M. A. degree from Nebraska university, and has been at Kiwanis camp as councillor for three years will assist with the nature work and have charge of evening stunts and programs.

Harriet Wilson, a graduate of the home economics department of the University of Nebraska will have charge of the dietetics and planning the meals.

The camp mother has not yet been chosen and her name will be announced later.

Other councillors will be, Helen Ach, Margaret Williams, Elizabeth Jones, Helen Tomson, Helen Oberlies, Martha Figenbaum, Pauline Tait, Dorothy Bell, Louise Van Sickle, Alice Stebbins, Helen Eiting, Ruth Paine and Elizabeth Armstrong.

Minerva's Mail

The Right "Line" For Popularity Is Suggested Today By a High School Miss—Her Ideas Are Decidedly Youthful And No Doubt Of Value To The Youthful — We Are Told Again In Forceful Language Why Not To Dance, Are Given Quite A Sermonette In Fact — Other Discussions Also.

Old Methods Good.

The old-fashioned method of attracting the boys, such as dropping the handkerchief or book in the school hall, or of asking his advice about that "horrid old match lesson," and such like, seems to be holding its own with modern young people, according to the letter of advice from one high school miss who is quite satisfied with her popularity and good times, thank you, to one who is dissatisfied and quite generally "Undecided."

"And how can any girl find conversation difficult now days," naively inquires our young adviser, "when we have shingle bobs to talk about."

All you young school misses who feel alone and lonely in a world of chattering young people "ganging" together with you on the outside read the following letter and seek to gain help from its candid advice.

Dear Minerva: Just a few lines to "Undecided." No wonder you don't make friends. From the way you talked in your letter one could easily tell that you are the kind that has the attitude toward every body else of "I'm so-so and you are just so-so." Now confess up, aren't you?

Maybe you don't mean to be but I really believe that is the outside coating. Perhaps you have nice clothes and lots of money and a beautifu home. They are all right but you know they don't make popularity. Our little department store girls don't have these things, or at least are not thought of as possessing these luxuries but aren't they popular? I should say so, with both men and girls. And you'll find they were popular in their school days too.

"Undecided," be one of them, jump out of your nicey-nicey ways and throw your mask off and be one of us. I'm a high school girl, too—a senior now and all I can say is just be your real self and you'll be in our gang.

You certainly do not have to let the men "love you up" in order that they will come back again. I should say not. But did you ever stop to think that you can call them down in such a way that they will only admire and respect you for it and want to cultivate your friendship. And too if you will give them a good, sound lecturing about being so soft and you don't approve of being petted, etc., you'll find they will pass the word along gently to others. Just say something to the effect that you don't care for petting parties because you find all the men alike and you don't care to indulge in such cheap pastime. Just tell them lightly but firmly and they will pass the word along that you "have a little common sense along with being a good sport too." You'll find it pays not to treat them too uppish. You know the boys are only human creatures after all like the rest of us and they are harmless.

But "Undecided" don't "pick them up." At school it is different. If you see some man that you fancy treat him in a comradely manner. Drop your book, spill all your papers near him in the hall some day, and then laugh mischievously and the first thing you know he'll be gallant enough to pick them up as nicely as you please for you and your chance for acquaintance is there. Don't just say "thank you" in a chilly way but be original about it. Talk about your studies, the latest party, the newest dance music, and yes, the old chilly professor always gets a good response. Put a little dash in your line and just be one of us.

Maybe I've given you some of the common pointers in getting acquainted with and keeping men friends but just add a few of your own.

About making friends with us girls—well, I believe that if you keep your distant attitude toward us which I feel you possess, that you will go clear through high school without being one of us. Don't be personal but be interested in our gab and chatter; seem so anyway even if you are bored to death. But above all never show it.

Is conversation hard for you? It shouldn't be. With our shingle bobs, dance steps, shorter skirts, hard assignments, vacation etc., you should have oodles to talk about. How Such-and-Such, our popular Lincoln barber, cut your neck or sliced your ear, kidded you into thinking you had the most adorable head for a shingle, that's "banana oil" but just kid wth and about him anyway.

We would love to have you as one of our modern gang if you care to and can be a good sport.—ONE OF THE BUNCH.

Dear Minerva:—I wish to correct "Watchful's" signature, as it is absolutely wrong for one who satisfies the lust of his or her body to sign with such a signature as "Watchful." The dancer can have only such material and lustful enjoyment from the dance.

Does the husband say to his wife, after dancing with her, "Let us go home to pray?" No. Does he dance on Saturday night and go to church on Sunday morning? No, he is in bed snoring loudly while the preacher is saying his last morning prayer in church.

As for the previous writer being a "hick" (that is what "Watchful" said) let me quote New Testament, Cor. 1:27,28, "But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound that which is mighty." Likewise God has chosen the "hick" to confound the would-be "Watchful." Solomon, the wisest man that ever was or will be said (through the inspired word of God) "Forget the sins of my youth." But as for "Watchful" who is not willing to settle down after her youthful days are passed is like unto a huge stone in the center of a highway.

Ecclesiastics 12.1 "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth while the evil days come not nor the years draw nigh when Thou shalt say I have no pleasure in them."

"A Reader" was partly right, yes, very little right in her statement why shouldn't couples be allowed to go out between dances. As for the people dancing throughout all the ages, they have also murdered, killed and sinned throughout the ages as will be tormented with fire and brimstone through eternity unless the change comes before death. If "Lustful" would spend a few hours, yea even a few minutes reading the Bible once a week she would be blesed and prosper. "Observer it does hurt you to dance. Here is a piece of poetry which I made myself and which may help somebody.

As God Would Have it.

For 'round about the God of pride are ye curled.
Seek ye the Bible every evening, night by night,
Give God the credit for the things you've invented,
Oh, make ye mention and be ye contented.

Praise ye the Lord and Give God the glory.
Take your babies to church and bring a friend along.
Thank God that ye prosper, thank God for your crop,
Lest He shut off the valve and the rain does stop.

Begin tonight and read the Bible through once a year,
Lest ye forget, "Thou shalt not steal!"
Wake up! Wake up! Get your shoulder to the wheel.
Starting from the first and leaving out nome,
Keep God's commandments, yes, every one.
And God bless you and send upon you no evil curse
And so don't forget that His Name is exalted
For on the evil man's crops the rain hath He halted.

So keep His commandments and please don't forget
For would ye be cast into the bottomless pit?
Safety first for the body, but the soul comes first.
Do as God has commanded and be ye not cursed.
Safety first for the soul and escape the wrath of the Lamb,
Speak not profane language for your soul will God damn.
Be ye not timid but courageous and bold.
Inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, made of transparent gold.
Repeat it ,repeat it, that His Name is most high,
Take not the mark of the beast in order to sell or buy.
I'll tell it to you, don't wait till the hour of eleven

Don't keep to yourself the words of His Books,
Tell of the Bible and see that he looks,
Get for yourself the best reward that can be had
And be not cast into hell-fire which is certainly sad.
At least once a week the midnight oil should ye burn,
For a wonderful place in Heaven I know you earn.

Oh be reconciled to God and again don't forget,
That there's a vast place in Heaven, a place for you to set,
For you shall inherit that city built of transparent gold,
I'm warning you now, and please don't forget that word you must seek.

INDIAN HILL POET.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods or reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion; if you are likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets, compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat steadily and easily. Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not only harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully, and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.—Advertisement.

WELL-MERITED SUCCESS

A distinguished citizen, honored politically and professionally, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, made a success few have equalled. His pure herbal remedies which have stood the test for fifty years are still among the "best sellers." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and stomach alterative. It clears the skin beautifies it, increases the blood supply and the circulation, and pimples and eruptions vanish quickly. Beauty is but skin deep and good blood is beneath both. For your blood to be good, your stomach must be in condition, your liver active. This Discovery of Doctor Pierce's puts you in fine coindition, with all the organs active. Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

Friendly Appreciation.

Dear Minerva: Each time a girl has a date with a boy should she invite him to come down some Sunday even though she does not care to keep steady company with him? Is it proper for a couple to linger in the car before going into a dance hall and after they get home? Is it proper to tell them you have enjoyed the evening and to call again? Should a girl thank him for taking her to a show? Please, Minerva, do not throw this in the wastepaper basket and say you silly, silly, girl.—BROWN EYES.

A. It is always proper for a girl to invite a boy friend to her home for a Sunday or other day, and when he calls she should introduce him into the family circle and make his visit pleasant, not making it merely a twosing party. It is proper enough for a couple to visit with each other in the car providing they are not making this an excuse for a "petting party." Always thank your escort for whatever favors he has shown you, tell him you have enjoyed the evening, never be afraid to show your appreciation, and never be afraid to courteously invite him to call again.

Thinks Child Stubborn.

Dear Minerva: I would like some advice about a six-year-old boy. I am at my wits end. He is better than the average child but is stubborn. Everyone says what a good little boy and how well he minds but they are not told what a trial I have when we are alone. I know I am to blame too but I always was made to obey at home and I expect too much or at least that is what my husband says. Should I just let it go when I tell him to do something and he pouts and stands like he never heard me or should I scold or spank? When he tells a fib should I whip or tell him never to do it again. I have always told him not to lie for if he does I will whip him and he always gets one if he does but if he tells the truth first thing no matter what he has done I never punish him. I have only one child and I want to be a real mother to him and not have him think I am always cross and driving him like it has been of late. Please tell me what is wrong in my ways.—A MOTHER.

A: I think you have drifted into the wrong mental attitude, that you believe your boy to be a special and difficult problem and treat him accordingly. Banish from your mind for a while the child's weaknesses and trying characteristics and seek to make a chum and companion of him. When you tell him his bedtime story (and every child needs and deserves his bedtime stories), let them occaasionally point a moral toward the ends in which he needs improvement.

Be firm with the child but do not get fretful and worried over his stubbornness and inattention. Give him your orders, making sure you know what you want in the first place, then if prompt attention is not given, send the child to his room for a period, deny him some pleasure or coveted article, informing him clearly why he is being punished. There measures are far more effective than the hasty whipping.

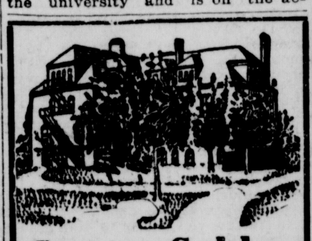

Take your time with the child. Develop patience in yourself. Get him firmly in hand and make a companion of the little fellow. You will find yourself amply rewarded for the pains.

I believe your chief mistake is in letting the boy and the situation dominate you instead of rising above him and the difficulties and getting yourself and child well in hand.

University Notes

Teachers college high school will open with class work Monday, June 9 and will end Friday, August 1. Registration will be held June 5 and 6. The summer session will be run as a high-grade demonstration school in which the latest methods in secondary education will be exemplified. Regular university supervisors will teach in their respective subjects. These teachers are specialists in their line of work and have had much experience in high school work before coming to the university. Teachers college high school is accredited to the university and is on the accredited list of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools. All credits, therefore, earned in the summer session will be accepted as entrance to the university or by any high school in the state, states a pamphlet prepared and distributed by the University Extension service.

Recitation periods will be double length and no pupil will be allowed more than two subjects. Students from other high schools will be required to have their proposed schedule approved by their principal and bring a statement to that effect. Additional information on the summer session may be got from the principal, Prof. C. W. Taylor, in room 103 Teachers college.
